A. S. B. OFFICERS FILL POSITIONS

Jerry Smith President

The Associated Student Body of Southern California Junior College looks forward to an interesting and educational administration during the school year of 1935-1936. Officers of the association, elected to their positions at the close of last year, are president, Jerry Smith; vice-presidents, Waldo Nelson and Jean Marie Petrick; secretary, Evelyn Palmquist; ass't secretary, Alyce Van Tassell; treasurer, Jack Cales; ass't treasurer, Don Smith; parliamentarian, Percy Miles; faculty advisors, Prof. C. M. Morrison and Miss Agnes Sorenson. Due to the resignation of Jack Waller as CRITERION editor, Jean Marie Petrick was elected to fill the position.

Extensive plans have been made for various activities throughout the year. It has definitely been arranged that the A.S.B. will occupy one chapel period every other week, with programs arranged by a recently elected committee consisting of Virginia Smith, Harold Kannenberg, Louise Carr, Bob Garner, Barbara Walters, Fred Handy, Miss Caroline S. Hopkins, and Prof. J. P. Fentzling. An A.S.B. banquet will be held on Sunday night, December 8, in addition to a snow party in the mountains about Christmas time.

So far this year the A.S.B. has sponsored its annual membership campaign, in which more students

Enrollment Shows Small Increase

The total enrollment for this year shows a gain of 14 over last year, standing 293 to last year's 279. This is entirely due to the large number of academy students who have enrolled this year. Their ranks have been increased from last year's 95 students to 111 for this year. While the academy increased the college enrollment has remained about the same.

The science department leads the courses with 65 pre-medical and 45 pre-nursing students. Twenty-two are taking the commercial course, 19 the normal course and 16 the ministerial course. Six are enrolled in the Liberal Arts course and nine are classified as special students, under which heading are the pre-dental, music, and Bible Worker's courses.

Several of the surrounding towns have made this large enrollment possible. Twenty-five students come from Pomona, while smaller groups come from Loma Linda, Riverside and Corona.

Men and Women Vie in Rallies

Wednesday morning, October 9, the CRITERION campaign leaders took their places as usual on the platform, but an unusual air of expectancy pervaded the chapel. The preliminaries over, several young men from various parts of the chapel rose to their feet and hurried toward the piano. Familiar chords of "Home on the Range" formed a background for the insinuation that followed that "the cute little girls with their finger-wave curls are bowing to masculine skill," and that the faculty-co-eds must recognize that the "woman belongs in the home."

Retaliation is sweet! Whatever the young ladies lacked in the public field of combat they endeavored to make up for the following chapel period, when one of their number voiced a response to the meter of Longfellow's "Psalm of Life" —

Campaigns of the past remind us
We can make our records climb,
And departing, leave behind us
Footprints on the sands of time.

The muffled drums that closed the poem dedicated to the boys had nothing in common with the drum that accompanied the young ladies orchestra for it was not muffled nor was it beating a fu-

Summer Work Improves Homes

Improvements amounting to approximately $2500 have been made on Mu Beta Kappa, Gladwyn Hall and the other buildings during the recent summer months.

One of the most important projects was the replastering and calcimining of the rooms of both homes. The stairway in the men's home underwent a much-needed repairing and the furniture was revarnished. New curtains and draperies were furnished for the lobby and new curtains for the parlor.

Improvements on Gladwyn Hall include the repairing of the roof against coming rain, and completion of runners for the halls. Padding was laid under some sections of the runners to deaden the sound. All wood-work and hard wood floors were re-varnished and the soft-wood floors painted.

M. V. Society Begins Work

With Jerry Smith as leader and Dorothea Findley, Claudia Simkin, and Frank Judson as assistants, the Missionary Volunteer Society for this year has organized. Talitha Neuman is secretary and the assistant is Jack Waller. Elmer Bryson is the Devotional Secretary.

The Society has organized several bands to work throughout the year. There is a mailing band, headed by Ruth Fillbach, and a literature band. Elder Sorenson is the Faculty advisor and he is looking after the Norco band. This band holds church and Sabbath school every Sabbath afternoon in Norco, a small town about eight miles from La Sierra Heights.

So far this year there have been three meetings. These meetings are held every other Friday night at vespers. The meeting planned for Friday night, October 18, was "The Devotional Side of Missionary Work."

On Thursday morning, October 17, Mrs. Benjamin Clark passed away suddenly. She is survived by her husband and Ben Clark, Jr. Funeral services were held on Sabbath, October 18, at the Preston Funeral Parlor in Riverside and interment followed in the Greenwood Cemetery. The faculty and students of S. C. J. C. express their sincerest sympathy to the bereaved.

CRITERION DRIVE NEARS 1000 SUBS

Pressing on to the close of a successful CRITERION campaign, the students of Southern California Junior College are working frantically writing letters and visiting friends to obtain subscriptions to meet their goal.

James Norton, the campaign manager, states that there is no doubt but that the goal of one thousand subscriptions will be reached. Upon reaching this goal, the campaign will receive two hundred subscriptions donated by the school.

Young men and young women are vying with one another as to who will be victorious. Ten subscriptions, the first bonus which was donated by the campaign management was awarded to the young men who were then in the lead. Another bonus of twenty-five subscriptions was awarded to the young women one week from the close of the campaign as they forged ahead.

School spirit has risen to an unusual height this year as is evident by the rally meetings held by the young men and young women and the subsequent competition.

Prizes will be awarded to the victorious members of each band. A Parker fountain pen and pencil set is the first prize. The remaining prizes will be announced and given the closing night which is set as October 29. All those receiving six subscriptions and those in the winning bank receiving three subscriptions will be awarded a trip to Mt. Baldy.

Campus Day Held

School books and lessons were forgotten as Professor Cossentine announced Campus Day, Oct. 2. A definite program which included base ball, volley ball, tennis, races, and swimming constituted part of the time, and the remainder was taken up by skating and games in College Hall. The close of the program was a grand march on skates. Students were relaxed, refreshed, and ready to start on a new round of studies.

"Did you know that dust is essential to life? Melvin D. Engle, of Boston, says this: 'Without dust in the air, to form the nuclei for rain drops, the entire earth would be constantly surrounded by enormous clouds of vapor, but it would never rain. Without dust there would be no beautiful sunrise or sunset, and we would never know the wonders of the aurora borealis.'"

EDITORIAL

CRITERION

The CRITERION — Our School Newspaper — The official voice of the Associated Student Body of Southern California Junior College. The recorder of our personal, homely activities. The register of our life that the home-folks crave. The reference by which conference officials rightly judge our school. The album in which former students find remembrances of S. C. J. C. "pals." The minute by minute, day by day, week by week, life-like, vibrant recounting of our news events.

Such a paper is the aim, the ideal . . . by your assistance, the actual product which your CRITERION staff will publish.

A. S. B.

More A. S. B. dues have been paid thus far this year than any other entire year. But why do students pay money to such an organization?

In the first place, why did they strive to bring this organization into existence? They certainly didn't do it to have a convenient existence! They certainly didn't do it to have a convenient means for disposing of their money. What wonders could one expect from $1.50 given to this organization? It doesn't give us enough ease to be a luxury. True, it sponsored Campaigns for the playground and swimming pool, and the CRITERION is associated under it, but students could manage campaigns on their own accord.

The CRITERION was in existence before the A. S. B. came to life; yet the A. S. B. is among us.

"What for?"

J. S.

A campaign for a school paper brings with it enthusiasm, work, and suspense. Enthusiasm to every loyal student, whether or not he helps towards success in the project. Work to the active up-and-coming person as he turns latent energy into tangible results. Suspense to students and teachers alike as the closing date draws near. Will we make it? Will enough subs come in to put it over? Is it any wonder that lessons go unprepared; that campaign talk fills the campus; that a freshman, with fuzz on his upper lip, asks if we can put it over? Calm yourself lad, we have always done it before!

New comfortable porch chairs, made in the school shops and painted in school colors have been added to both homes.

Especially appreciated by the laundry force is the new concrete floor recently put under the large washer, which adds much to the comfort of those working in that department.

Abas Quartet To Entertain

The Abas String Quartet will play in the S. C. J. C. chapel on Saturday evening, Nov. 2. Nathan Abas, the soloist with the quartet, toured Holland as a violin soloist when he was but seventeen years of age, and was the original conductor of the Standard Symphony Hour which is heard over the N.B.C. network.

The quartet uses a rare Stradivarius violin, and a Caspar di Sallo viola, made in 1590. The group specializes in educational musical performances, having won particular recognition from its performance of Arnold Schoenberg's First and Third Quartets. Typical of the criticisms of their work is that of Richard D. Saunders of the Hollywood Citizen News "The Quartet played with mutually sympathetic ensemble, artistic feeling, and well handled dynamics."

"A sunny disposition is the very soul of success."

The NEWSETTE Column

Inventory of the music library shows that the school has 3,250 copies of music for Chorus, A Cappella, and Glee Clubs.

S. C. J. C. has purchased a double-B flat bass tuba for the school orchestra.

Mrs. Baker, the neighborhood florist, donated three volumes of Glee Club numbers to the college.

The school orchestra has a membership of thirty-five. The largest in the history of the school.

Prof. Reynolds has made an electrically lighted device for his students to use in making of maps.

In the history room is posted the latest war news. A map was made by Prof. Reynolds with different colored tacks on it to represent where the armies of Italy and Ethiopia are from day to day.

Ten new class-room desks, made of Philippine mahogany, have been furnished to the teachers recently. These desks were built by student labor and compare very favorably with desks made by commercial companies. Tested inside and out, they are practically moisture proof, and should serve many years.

The Woodcraft Home band, which takes two car-loads of young people from the school to the "Old People's Home" on Sabbath afternoons, is now under the leadership of James Norton. The ministerial seminar students are thus given a wider field in which to gain experience in their work.

The Spirit of Prophecy class is now taking up the life of Mrs. Ellen G. White and her prophetic visions. The students have had to list all of her books and classify each one.

Waffles and honey were the theme of a treat enjoyed by nine of Mrs. Munson's Sabbath School class at her home recently. Those present were Marie Olson, Hazel Lay, Dorothea Dilbeck, Dorothea Findley, Betty Riley, Maxine Kochenderfer, Helen Nave, Evelyn Palmquist, and Carrie Rivas.

Rhythmic skating, peppy marching, and fast competitive games in College Hall, on Saturday evening, Oct. 19, entirely revived the examination weary students of S. C. J. C.

Mrs. Clark, the college bookkeeper, spent every evening for a week in the office making out the first month's statements.

Carol Remsen, Eunice Remsen, Virginia Smith, Alyce Van Tassell and Dorothy McLatchy, a former student, had a feed at the Remsen home recently after skating in College Hall.

Mrs. Cushman has not found her tortoise-shell Persian kitten that she lost two weeks ago. Has any one seen it?

President E. E. Cossentine left Wednesday, Oct. 23 to attend the Fall Council in Louisville, Kentucky. He plans to return the second week in November, after visiting several of our denominational institutions.

Harold Hiatt's S.C.J.C. friends regret that it was necessary for him to return to his home recently.

neral march. It indicated the speed with which the girls intended to finish the campaign.

To cap the climax series of placards bearing the inscriptions "Girls Beat Boys" slid through the transom and dropped into position while the booster song rang out and the chapel echoed with applause.

"A real optomist is a person who takes the cold water thrown upon his proposition, heats it, and makes steam, then forges ahead."

Kampus Kwips

Were those weary chaps in Organic "flabbergasted" when Professor Morrison walked into class and nonchalantly announced that the six-weeks' final had completely slipped his mind and that he had neglected to prepare an exam. Mouths moved but no sound came forth; weary eyes rolled in their sockets and haggard faces looked at each other in chagrin.

Our humble apologies Professor, we know that illness in the family is a strain.

After much argument, confusion, debate, oratory, and heated discourse, with a few side remarks thrown in, it was finally decided at the CRITERION rally that complete control should be given our competent campaign manager, Jim, who said, (quote) The campaign will be continued for two weeks. (unquote) We hope that this was satisfactory to all.

Skinned elbows, bumps and bruises of all kinds were proudly exhibited by contenders of the Saturday night skating party. It seems as though we should have a progressive trophy awarded to the person who takes the best spill. I would suggest a large pillow.

M. B. K. Starts Activities Forum Organizes

Mu Beta Kappa was the first social organization to start its activities this year. On the first Thursday evening of school, a committee was elected to nominate the officers for the first term of 1935-36. The results were Milton Denmark, president; Harold Peck, vice-president; Lee Zinn, secretary; Blaine McDermott, treasurer; Waldo Brown, chaplain; and James Aitchison, sergeant-at-arms.

Their third program was one of outstanding merit. Inspector Hawtrey of the Los Angeles Police Department spoke to a joint meeting of M. B. K. and the Forum. Mr. Hawtrey is in charge of the Communications Division of the Los Angeles Police Department. He explained the responsibilities and duties of this division, and told many interesting experiences in connection with his work in Los Angeles.

The young ladies were not far behind the young men in the organization of their club, the Girls' Forum. The officers are Murl Quick, president; Evelyn Adams, vice-president; "Pat" Clement, secretary; Ada Beryl Mourer, assistant secretary; and Hazel Lay, sergeant-at-arms.

"A school paper is a great invention. The school gets all the fame, the printer gets all the money, and the staff gets all the blame."

"People who like to pine over their hard luck should spruce up."

CAMPAIGN SPIRIT SHOWN IN RALLY

"Inside information" on the winning side of the campaign was given to the girls, last Friday, by Carlos Nicolas in the opening speech in the most interesting rally of the Criterion campaign. He attributed this success to the "pep" the boys are displaying in the men's home. Responding, Alyce Van Tassell held out high hopes for the girls because of their steady work. A revision of the boys' paraphrase "Home on the Range" was suggested in order to keep it up to date. Sympathy and encouragement were given to the girls by Eugene Chapman. The girls did not fully appreciate the thanks that was offered them for the help they had given the boys.

A very "dramatic reading," composed and given by Jack Waller, pictured the plight of a boy who "staged it" on the trip to Camp Baldy.

In response to this boy's hard luck, a girls' trio, Hazel Walde, Alice Clement, and Barbara Steen, invited the boys in a paraphrase to "Springtime in the Rockies" to join them at Baldy.

"About the only exercise some folks take is jumping at conclusions."

Beem Lectures On Ethiopia

Those who heard Dr. Marvel Beem speak Saturday night, October 26, have a personal insight into our mission work in foreign lands. He said that when one travels from one mission station to another one should always go as a Seventh-day Adventist because in this way there is a possibility of meeting a friend of the faith or sometimes an old acquaintance. Mission work has romance and thrill and provides many interesting experiences. He says that the missionaries of to-day are real heroes.

Abas Quartet To Be Featured

One of the very finest of the programs to be given this year at Southern California Junior College will be an evening of music presented by the Abas String Quartet, Saturday night, November 2, at 8 P.M. This nationally known quartet was formed by Mr. Nathan Abas, first violinist, who was the original conductor of the Standard Symphony Hour. The other members of the quartet are Messers Harold Stancliff, second violin; Abraham Weiss, viola and Karl Rossner, cello.

Of special interest is the golden age Stradivarius violin, played by Mr. Abas, and the very rare, Caspar di Sallo viola, made in 1590, played by Mr. Weiss.

 - Quartet in "D" Major Mozart
 - Allegretto
 - Andante
 - Menuetto
 - Allegretto

Religious Band Fosters Seminar

Thirty students attended Ministerial Seminar Friday night after vespers. This is a considerable increase in attendance over the preceding Friday nights.

Ministerial Seminar meets every Friday night immediately following vespers. Different members speak on timely subjects and are criticized by Professor Sorenson, the official critic.

"Woodcraft Band" is now under their supervision in order to give the ministerial students more experience.

Waldo Brown is the leader and is assisted by Conrad Hay; Geraldine Gatten is the secretary. A constitution for the seminar is in making at present.

BOYS WIN AS CAMPAIGN CLOSES

Norton Brings Victory

The big sensation of the current school year was the victory of the boys over the girls in the bitterly fought Criterion campaign which came to a close on Tuesday, October 29. This, however, does not overshadow the unique and untiring way in which campaign manager, Jim Norton, skippered the campaign to a successful close with 1225 subscriptions — the largest amount of subs ever raised by the students of S. C. J. C.

The zero hour coming sharp at 6 P.M. found Jim Aitchison receiving the individual honors with fifty-seven subs consequently receiving the Parker fountain pen and pencil. Hazel Walde was the runner-up, and she received a five-dollar merchandise order from the Southeastern Conference Book & Bible House. Eddie Potts came within reaching distance from overtaking Miss Walde having only one sub less than she.

The second-year pre-med band with an enthusiastic leader in the form of Frank Judson is entitled to honorable mention inasmuch as his band brought in the highest percentage of subs.

The rally began with the school orchestra playing a variety of numbers. Mr. Norton then proceeded to give a few figures which (Continued on Page 4)

Girls Enjoy Forum Hour

Seated comfortably on the floor with their mending, the girls of Gladwyn Hall enjoyed their regular Thursday night forum meeting. The usual opening routine was quickly dispensed with, and the program commenced with a violin solo by Grace Clement and accompanied by Annella Carr. Another musical number, "Herd Girl's Dream" by Labitzky, was given later in the evening as a piano solo by Roselyn Trummer.

The main feature of the program was humorous readings given by Mrs. Lafferty, entitled, "Nettie's Thanksgiving Visit," "Betty at the Baseball Game," "Yaccub's Love Letter," and another given in the Italian brogue, which concluded the program.

"GRIPING"

I've often thought it would be very appropriate to organize a "Griper's Club" that all of our dissatisfied students might get together to talk things over once in a while. The only obstacle is that there would be too many charter members. Without doubt ninety-nine per cent of our student body would be eligible for membership if "gripping" were the only prerequisite for admittance.

It's so easy to "gripe" about the lack of salt in the food; the lack of hot water in the "dorm." on Friday afternoons when a big portion of the folks decide to do their weekly cleaning-up; those long long assignments; or what we think are low grading standards. All in all it's not at all difficult to "gripe about seventeen or thirty-nine different things that come up during the day.

You've "griped;" I've "griped;" we've all done the same thing, in fact. And still how much have we accomplished by it. Since "gripping" accomplishes very little, if anything for us, is it worth the time we spend indulging it?

Our Advertisers

The advertising found in our school paper is there for a purpose!

Our local merchants are doing their share to help us along, but they cannot give us advertising as a charity. They pay for the space they utilize, and they rightfully expect to reap returns from their enterprise.

We are asking that you patronize the advertisers in this paper, for they are helping to keep it on a paying basis.

It is not enough, however, to patronize them. You must let others know about them.

Lets adopt a new slogan!

Next time you go to town plan to look over the stock in our advertisers' stores, and tell them, "We saw your ad in the CRITERION."

The paper will appreciate your interest and so will the business men.

German Saga

By Millicent Grant

Once upon a time Paulson, a Young Hunter who lived in the Parrish by the Seiss between Holland and Denmark, went into a Birch Grove to hunt Buck.

As he ambled through the Dale he met a Mason, a Baker and six Smiths who were going to Kannenberg. Said they, "We Ames to reach the Brewer before the rest of the Bunch."

The Hunter said, "The Councilman will put you under Locke and key if you do."

Replied they in a Gay voice, "That is our Miss Fortune not yours."

And so they went away over the Heath and the Moore.

The noble Hunter was about to chase a Hurd of holSteen when a furious Gale came up and blew a Peck of dust in his eye, not to mention the Broadbent he got in his back and this necessitated his progressing on to Ellenberg in a Carr Ehrlick in the morning.

Said he in his delirium with a voice Stearn (es) as Steele, "I Neidigh to Lay me on a Davenport with a Pellow under my Chinn. Great Scott, how I Hoyt. I Wood that I were in my Graves."

A Young Gurli named Frances with a Whitelock in her Brown hair was near him and said, "Are you by any Chance a Weisenhutter?"

"I Grant that I may be now — but I shall soon have my Emde — Quick! Heaton of Cole before I Freese," he said emitting a Howell.

"All right, but I would that I could go the miles with you home she said as she leaned against a Raley fence.

"Quiet, please, or I will hurl those Potts with a Rose in them at you," cried he, reviving like a Neuman.

"By all Powers, you Kantz do this to me. What have I Dunn?" she questioned, immediately going Seaward on a Horace that she rented for several Nicolas.

After her departure he said, "Whew, that was a Close call. I think I shall Phillip the Carr with Costely gasoline and Waller through the sand dotted with Willers till I reach the Parrish, which is home, and I shall be a Freeman."

New Teachers

Recently joined the Southern California Junior College faculty as regular, full-time teachers, are Mrs. Vesta Dunbar Friend, piano instructor, and Mrs. L. Cushman, B.S., head of the academic science department.

Mrs. Friend is a graduate of the Conservatory of Music of Union College. In addition to her extended radio and concert work, Mrs. Friend was a music instructor in Emmanuel Missionary College.

Mrs. Cushman is a graduate of Pacific Union College. In 1931, during Professor Cushman's leave of absence, she substituted in his place as head of the biological department here while he took post-graduate work.

Magnolia Drive at Night

by Jack Waller

We could not see Magnolia Drive
Beneath the California stars
We could not see the trees along the lanes

Or houses resting in nocturnal shade.

We could not see the fields that lay between

Their verdure swallowed in the night.

We only saw from where we stood
A lazy mountain etched against the sky,

Its summit on a level with our own,
And two small stars a mile above its crest

Their eyes upon the sleepy world beneath.

We could not see Magnolia Drive,
But slowly moving down the darkened valley,

Contrasted with the fastness of the mountain,

We looked upon a ceaseless line of lanterns

Which came and passed as quickly through the darkness.

And as we watched the lanterns from seclusion,

Behind each passing light a human soul

With loves and goals and purpose of its own

Went by with each a different destination

And there was joy and gladness pulsing there

And sense of beauty mingled there with sorrow —

A thousand human voices speaking Behind the passing caravan of lanterns.

We could not see Magnolia Drive
Beneath the half-apologetic stars

We could not see its stretch of endless ribbon

Its flowers gently sleeping in the gardens —

We could not see Magnolia
Drive
Our eyes were watching God.

Cafeteria

Most important in the minds of the students of S. C. J. C. is the cafeteria which is supervised by Mrs. Sorenson.

Helen Kintner and Marie Olsen are the dining-room matrons. The immaculate cleanliness is due to the efforts of Gwendolyn Ginn, Mildred Randall, and Helen Kintner.

Supervising the preparing of breakfast and supper is Dorthea Findley with Gace Scott and Mae Smith as her assistants. Dinner preparation is divided among several girls. The preparation of the entrees is the work of Grace Scott. Eloise Callander supervises the vegetables served, and Mary Sidmore makes the salads.

The baker, Norman Cole, with his assistant, Anna Becker, prepares the bread and pastry.

Last but not least is the dish-washing! Betty Riley and Irene Grove do the "bossing," and Paul Toppenberg does his part by washing pots and pans.

Writers' Guild Meet Reported

Last Thursday Professor J. P. Fentzling attended the fourth annual Convention of the California Writers' Guild held at Scripps College, Pomona. The whole field of writing was discussed from the angle of writers of magazine articles, poetry, juveniles, material, short stories, and drama.

Rupert Hughes, noted for his biography of Washington, speaking at the luncheon, stressed the idea that one should write with and from his very soul.

In the section devoted to poetry varying opinions were expressed as to whether narrative or lyric poetry is in greater demand today. Another topic for discussion was how to get people to read poetry. Much attention was given choral speaking as a means of getting people to read poetry. Mrs. Sarah Taft Teske, a noted verse-speaking choir leader, told about the principles of choral speaking and the result on the public in getting them to read more poetry.

Mr. Lee Shippey, of the "Lee Side of L. A." in the Los Angeles Times gave interesting but pertinent material from his own experience on how one should begin to break into article writing.

Professor Fentzling reported that the day was well spent in seeing the practical side of the principles he teaches.

Mr. Donald Clark Addresses C. C. C.

Rules for a Secretary Given

Seven things a secretary should remember to do were given to the Commercial Club Wednesday night by Mr. Donald Clark, bookkeeper and secretary of Mr. F. H. Raley.

1. Don't forget your gum for it will remind your employer of his boyhood days on the farm and of the old brindle cow.

2. Always come late to work; it will show your independence.

3. Sigh or yawn so your employer will know it is time to stop dictating.

4. Never dust your typewriter; it will make your boss think you are busy.

5. Never have pen and notebook ready to take dictation; it will give your employer time to collect his thoughts.

6. If the work piles up too heavy, take the day off; it will make your employer appreciate you.

7. Always leave a rush letter till the last.

These rules were included in a talk on the necessity of young people receiving a good business training in our colleges.

Doughnuts, candied sweet potatoes, and cider were part of a special treat given the commercial students by Miss Hopkins.

Officers for the year were elected as follows: Alyce Van Tassel, president; Ada Beryl Mourer, vice-president; Virginia Smith, secretary; and Hazel Walde, chairman of program committee.

FOREIGN STUDENTS ATTENDING S. C. J. C.

For East is East and West is West And ne'er the twain shall meet. — Kipling

In spite of the thought voiced in the above selection, the Orient and Occident meet at Southern California Junior College. Each year our California climate and our accredited schools on the Pacific Coast attract students from East and West.

This school year S. C. J. C. appreciate having several students here from foreign countries.

One of these is Loretta Brines, who came over from China in July. Her parents, Dr. and Mrs. R. J. Brines, are working in Yencheng Honan, China. Dr. Brines is the medical director of the Sanitarium and Hospital, and Mrs. Brines is a teacher in the nursing school. They have been laboring in that field for twelve years.

Then there is Dorothy Mae Anderson, her father, was in charge of the publishing houses.

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Neumann, of Portugal, have been laboring for six years in that field, and have now started an evangelistic effort in the town called Coimbra. They have sent their daughter, Talitha, to the States to continue her education at S. C. J. C.

Gladys Barto hails from Hawaii. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Barto are stationed at Hawi, Kohola. They have charge of a new field in an evangelistic effort where they have been the past four years.

All of these are potential missionaries and bring into our school the missionary atmosphere that we are glad to have.

Faculty Summer Activities Told

President Cossentine, Professor Reynolds, and Professor Morrison spent the summer campaigning for new students.

Five members of the faculty went to U. S. C. for the summer session: Miss M. Jensen, Miss A. Sorenson, Miss R. Rittenhouse, and Professor J. P. Fentzling. Professor Reynolds also spent the second session there. Miss Paulson attended the University of Washington and incidentally brought a new car back with her.

Elder and Mrs. C. Sorenson, Miss M. B. Scott, Miss C. Hopkins, Miss F. Ragon, Dean V. Wallace, Dean W. Crandall, Professors A. R. Smith, S. A. Smith, H. I. Smith Craig, Mr. Stearns, and Professor Wm. Beisel stayed by the stuff and carried on at La Sierra.

Professor and Mrs. Cushman worked in M. V. Junior summer camps and conducted a Biology Field Course to Mt. Whitney and the Mammouth Lake region.

Professor Harlyn Abel was superintendent of the Music Recreational Dep't for Riverside City schools.

Mrs. Adams visited her sister at P. U. C.; while Mrs. Sturges went to Prescott, Arizona.

"Ye Olde School Days" are here again. This year finds some former students now serving as teachers. Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin J. Brewer who were married last summer are among those so situated. If their success at S. C. J. C. as Galeta Applegate and Ben Brewer, students, is any indication of their success, Inglewood should be proud of its teachers.

Miss Louise Alcorn is another able representative of the type of teacher trained at S. C. J. C. She is teaching at Elsinore, where her conscientious work is sure to be appreciated.

Among the first-year "medics" at Loma Linda are Louis Fisher, Anthony Muff, Jack King, Robert Bettle, Dick Walters, Donald Davenport, and the former teachers, Margaret Van Atta and Florence Voth.

Mr. Seigel Glaze, and Miss Ver-nice Owens were recently married at Lodi, California.

Where are last year's nurses preparatory class?

Lois Clement, Lovell Roderick, and Hazel Smith are among those in training at Paradise Valley Sanitarium.

In the northern part of the state Harriet Lieberthal, Verda Dungee, and Arline Richards are in training at St. Helena.

Alladine Rich, Grace Winget, and Jean Detlor are in training at Glendale. Sunny Abbott, who took only part of the pre-nursing course, is now in training at the Mercy Hospital, a Catholic institution in San Diego.

At Loma Linda taking the nurses' course are Bea Hinkle, Velma Wilcox, Velma Mathieson, Aural Mathieson, Evangeline Voth, Irene Strock, Frances Rutan and Valerie Jones. Nettie Atteberry is enrolled in the dieticians' course.

Radio Class

Fundamentals of radio receiving and transmitting circuits are taught in the class in radio which meets every other Sunday afternoon from 1 P.M. to 5 P.M.

Learning the practical and some technical knowledge is the purpose of the first semester's course. At the end of this time the student will take an examination for receiving an amateur radio license. Mathematics and the technicalities of radio will be taught the second semester.

Continental Code is practiced during class time now. The student must attain a speed of ten words per minute to meet the requirements for receiving the amateur's license.

Work on radios will be done by partners. The first work will be to make small battery sets; this will be followed by regenerative and super-heterodyne sets of the students own designing.

New equipment amounting to approximately $350 has been purchased for this department.

The NEWSETTE Column

During the physical education period Thursday, the pre-nursing girls scaled the heights of the hill behind the school.

This year there are twenty-one vocal students taking lessons privately or in classes of three or four.

An S. C. J. C. band is being organized.

Mr. W. H. Ferguson, a pre-medical student has registered for work here.

Verna Belding, a former student and familiar as a member of the office force was a campus visitor Sabbath.

Ada Beryl Mourer had Sabbath visitors: her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mourer, and Mr. James Drake.

Evelyn Dale, Harriet Simmons, Eula McNaught, Joyce Kibler, Barbara Walters and Millicent Grant spent Thursday in Los Angeles "sub-hunting."

Mrs. J. E. Markley, Mrs. A. K. Bailey, and Miss Virginia Harris returned to S. C. J. C. with Edna Mae Markley and visited with her Sunday afternoon.

Melvin Clement visited his brother, George, Sunday.

Sabbath afternoon, October 26, the friends at Woodcraft Home were privileged to hear a very fine talk given by the band leader, Mr. James Norton. He chose as his subject "Songs of the Night."

Because this year there are fifty-five students taking Daniel and Revelation, the class has had to be divided. One meets at 7:30 a.m. and the other at 10:50.

College Bible Doctrines students have recently turned in their 2000 word theme on the subject, "Inspiration of the Bible."

A reading test was given the Orientation class with the average results of 296 words per minute. Scores were charted from 140-640. This is an average of 50 words per minute above the score made in 1926 by 435 college freshmen at the University of Nebraska; or 96 points above the average, which is 200 words, as sighted by professor Werner of the Department of Education at University of Nebraska.

Sixty books have just arrived from the bindery with new attire and twenty five more have left for the same type of renovation.

"Once to every man and nation,
Comes the moment to decide,
In the strife of Truth with Falsehood
For good or evil side."

A recent addition to the library has included a four-volume, first edition set of Dawsons, "Birds of California." This is a very valuable addition and will be a great asset to the Biology Dept.

Four news papers are at the disposal of the students, in the library at the present time, The Manchester Guardian, The Los Angeles Times, the Riverside Press, and the Arlington Times.

Because someone left an iron connected in the ironing room during worship last Wednesday night smoke and consternation filled the dormitory. No serious damage was done.

Prayer bands began their activities for the year in the Gladwyn Hall, Wednesday night.

With a sheet used as a sail, Harry Sciarillo and Irwin Rosa enjoyed skating with speed in front of the administration building Wednesday afternoon.

Isabelle Artist, a former student, is to be married to Dr. Atkinson on Thursday, Nov. 14, at the Wee Kirk o' the Heather in Glendale.

Percy Miles is rapidly recovering from an appendectomy which was performed last Tuesday, Oct. 22, at Loma Linda. He is the second student to undergo this operation already this school year, Jack Cales being first.

Professor L. Cushman took a group of Juniors to the Idyllwild summer camp site last week-end, for an investiture service.

Floyd Moreland, younger brother of Dorothy Moreland, a former student and a cousin of Chester Alcorn, was recently killed in an automobile accident.

Mrs. C. C. Morrison is at home following an appendectomy at Loma Linda.

Elizabeth and Walter Freeman, village students, are now riding to school in an Austin.

Two new students have been added to the Commercial department: Francis Betts and Gwendolyn Taylor.

Mrs. Clark took Ruth Fillbach and Evelyn Adams to Los Angeles over Sabbath; they returned Saturday night.

The fire that razed Mr. Gidding's garage Sunday, attracted most of the students and some of the faculty including the President.

BEEM LECTURES ON ETHEOPIA

where Dr. Coulston gave his life for furthering the message.

Pictures of the various places he visited were shown, especially Etheopia. It may interest you to know that Dr. Beem was to have been a mission doctor in Etheopia but due to some occurrence was not able to.

He spoke of several interesting things about the Etheopians. They claim to be partly Jewish through King Solomon.

At the close of the lecture he showed a display of silver crosses which he had purchased that were made by Etheopian women.

Kampus Kwips

Where were you born? ? ? ?

In a discussion in English Comp. a question concerning the nationality of a writer arose.

Lauretta Brines stated that he was an Englishman because he was born in England.

Professor Fentzling answers by asking if kittens born in an oven are called biscuits.

Our "Belles of the Nineties" (nurses' gym class) hiked to two-bit rock for their weekly exercise. Bethene Hedrick found it easier to hike by sitting down and going backwards.

Last Wednesday's gentle breezes caused two noticed interesting scenes. Jean Marie Petrik and Louise Cary being nearly "ge-dunked" in the fish pond by its force; and Harry Sciarillo and Erwin Rosa skating down the road with the help of a sheet used as a sail. Some fun!

The Pomona bus was forced to turn around last Wednesday as the students had absorbed so much dust and dirt that it would be impossible for them to absorb any learning. As they say, "A good bath was had by all."

It's no sin to tell your funny ones to Zinn.

The Papers Say

by Jack Waller

According to a recent note in the Sligonian, the Washington Missionary College Press is to be housed in a new building now in process of erection. The large volume of printing constantly received made the old plant entirely inadequate.

In the Medical Technician, the new publication of the California School of Physical Therapy at San Gabriel, we noted the name of Miss Una Moses, a student here for the last semester of 1935. She is acting as feature editor on the Technician staff.

A collection of valuable relics of early days in the Northwest is being made at Washington State College. The history department is supervising the project which, according to the Evergreen, is receiving the support of many prominent citizens of the region and contains many items of great interest.

On our desk is the latest edition of "The Don," progressive student paper of Santa Ana Junior College. Beginning November 1, the editors promise the Don will score a beat on all other Jaycee papers by being the first to print a full page of news photos. School papers everywhere are on the ascendancy and Santa Ana is to be congratulated for another upward step.

Sunday, Oct. 27, saw a new and exceptional progressive move at San Diego State College. A guide service for visitors was inaugurated for the College campus. The much needed service, the State College Aztec reports, will be under the supervision of N. Y. A.

MT. BALDY SCALED BY S.C.J.C.-ITES

Dr. BAXTER TO LECTURE

One of the most interesting lectures to be given this year will be presented by Dr. F. C. Baxter, Saturday night, November 9, in the College chapel.

Speaking from experience, as far as the present is concerned, Dr. Baxter will tell of life in the English universities, ancient and modern. His having taken his doctor's degree at Cambridge enables him to give the intimacies of school work taken by our English cousins.

The popularity of Dr. Baxter's courses at U. S. C. betokens the entertainment and instruction of the coming program, sponsored by the English department.

Chorus To Present "The Messiah"

Handel's oratorio "The Messiah" will be sung by a chorus of 350 voices on Dec. 15 in the Riverside Civic Auditorium. The chorus is to be composed of the S.C.J.C. chorus, choirs from five different churches in Riverside, and "The Meistersingers," a large adult choral group from San Bernardino. This year will make the fourth year "The Messiah" has been sung in Riverside. A thirty-piece orchestra and two concert pianists will assist the chorus. Four well-known soloists will also appear. The students are looking forward to partaking in this annual event.

Music Club Elects New Officers

The Music Club had its first meeting of the year on Saturday night, Nov. 2. The following officers were elected:

Barbara Steen, president; Harry Sciarillo, vice-president, who is chairman of the program committee and Grace Scott, who is chairman of the hospitality committee. Evelyn Palmquist is secretary-treasurer.

The club plans to meet once each month when such things as the composers and music appreciation will be studied. Also it is planned to have entertainments occasionally.

The club is open to anyone who is interested in good music whether he be a musician or not.

RARE QUARTET GIVES CHOICE PROGRAM

The Abas String Quartet consisting of Nathan Abas, first violinist; Harold Stancliff, second violinist; Abraham Weiss, violist; and Karl Rossner, cellist, played in the S.C.J.C. chapel Saturday night, Nov. 2.

Mr. Abas played one of the few Stradivarius violins that are in America. The viola played by Mr. Weiss was made in the 16th century.

Music by Mozart and Beethoven made up the first part of the program, a suite from each composer. Night and Tonga Taboo by Ernest Block and a serenade by Hayden represented the ultra-modern music.

"Just for the fun of it, I won't," Mr. Abas said when he was about to announce the name of the last encore. Minuette by Bocherinni was the name soon guessed by the crowd that filled the chapel to capacity.

Mr. Abas was the first conductor of the Standard Symphony, now so popular on the radio.

Refreshments were served in the dining room to the Quartet after the concert.

Elder Breitigam Leads In Prayer Week

Christ will open the door of blessings to the students during this week of prayer. Elder R. R. Breitigam, M. V. Secretary of the Southern California Conference, assured the students Friday night in the first meeting of the Fall Week of Prayer. This is the fourth week of Prayer he has conducted at S. C. J. C.

From Rev. 3:8 he read the promise of the Lord that "I set before you an open door." No door of security or hope opens to non-Christians but everything is open to the Christian. He further stated that individuals are the only ones who can shut the door of opportunity to themselves.

Elder Breitigam added that Satan tried to make Adam and Eve think that a door of knowledge and liberty was open to them, but it was a trap of deception and Satan never opens the door to his prisoners.

From 1 Cor. 3:21, 22 he read that all things are ours if we are Christ's and he is ours. The power, strength and joys of heaven are open to us. L. H.

R. A. CURTIS, PRINTER JOINS FACULTY

Coming from the Southern Publishing Association at Nashville, Tennessee, Mr. R. A. Curtis has joined the faculty of Southern California Junior College and has assumed charge of the printing shop.

Mr. Curtis completed his college work at Union College in 1928 and since then has acted as estimator and commercial salesman besides doing press work at the Southern Publishing Association.

Since his arrival on October 20 with Mrs. Curtis and their small son, Allan, Mr. Curtis has been busy finding and settling a new home and looking after the printing of the CRITERION.

Marshmallow Roast Concludes Baldy Trip

A roaring camp-fire, hot cocoa and roasted marshmallows were enjoyed by all the students on Wednesday evening, Oct. 30. When the three truck-loads of picnickers from Camp Baldy returned, they drove directly to the gravel pit, where they were greeted by the stay-at-homes, who had constructed the welcome fire, which was greatly appreciated by the tired, cold hikers.

As the night was cold and clear, each one tried to get as near the fire as possible, not only in order to roast marshmallows, but also to warm cold hands and feet. After everyone was sufficiently "thawed out," and the fire was beginning to die down into a pile of glowing embers, sheets of familiar music were passed out, and the crowd found precarious seats on the sloping sides of the gravel pit.

Lead by Professor Abel, and accompanied by the guitar, played by Olaf Locke, and the accordion played by Laurene Heath, the students and teachers sang such familiar songs as "Springtime in the Rockies," "Moonlight and Roses," "Smile," and "The Old Spinning Wheel." Eddie Edison sang "My Wild Irish Rose" in a characteristic brogue; Laurene Heath played several accordion solos, among which was "Memories," and Olaf Locke sang and yodeled a number of range songs, one of the most outstanding being "My Old Southern Home."

130 STUDENTS GO ON PICNIC

Mount Baldy was scaled by enthusiastic S.C.J.C.-ites during the CRITERION picnic last Wednesday at Camp Baldy.

Fifty-three students chaperoned by Prof. J. P. Fentzling, were taken in a truck before dinner to the foot of the five-mile trail which leads to Mount Baldy. About half of this group, however, were able to scale the peak. Of the group who left in the afternoon, chaperoned by Mrs. L. C. Cushman, twelve were successful in reaching their goal.

Approximately one-half of the student body, the largest number ever attending an outing sponsored by the A.S.B., left the campus early Wednesday morning to spend the day at Camp Baldy.

"Keep Away" renewed the rivalry between the boys and girls immediately following their arrival at the mountain resort. James Keeton fell in a pile of lumber while scrambling for the ball, but was not hurt.

Dinner was served three times to accommodate the hikers. Sweet potatoes, beans, salad and ice cream were served.

Most of the students not climbing Baldy spent the afternoon at the lodge where they were entertained with music rendered by Virginia Smith, Barbara Steen, Eddie Edison, and Carl Holland.

The first truck to take a group to Baldy trail ran out of gas and was unable to reach it. However, as the students started to hike the rest of the way, they were shortly picked up by a mountain resort truck and taken to the foot of the trail.

Those who did not care to go on the long hike took some of the many shorter hikes around the camp while others joined in a ball game.

Following a supper of hot chocolate and cake, Jim Norton introduced a short program including Swiss yodeling by a man at the resort, several songs from Virginia Smith, and a piano solo by Carl Holland, after which the students were again packed into the three trucks to begin the homeward journey.

The report was given that on the homeward journey one truckful of students enjoyed the program given by Lorraine Handy and Lyall Davis.

Pre-Meds Lead In Enrollment

With a total of 65 students, the pre-medical department leads in departmental enrollment. Of this number, 15 will make applications for Loma Linda this year. The same number made application last year and 14 students from this school were accepted. Students accepted by Loma Linda Medical College must maintain an average of 1.35 in science and also in non-science grades. Besides the 15 making application, there are 12 more students who are taking the course in three years, and 48 first year pre-medical students this year.

From Walla Walla College, Pacific Union College and Long Beach and San Bernardino Junior Colleges, six students have transferred here for their last year of pre-medical training.

On Friday, Dec. 6, the yearly aptitude test, sent to students finishing their pre-medical course this year, will be held. This same test is given throughout the United States, and Southern California Junior College has always maintained a good ranking.

Featuring addresses by various doctors from or connected with Loma Linda, the Science Club sponsored by the pre-medical department for pre-medical and science major students, will soon organize. They plan to hold an open house in the science building during the second semester, which event will be preceded by a chapel demonstration earlier in the evening.

Camp Baldy Stirs Nature Lovers

No one can truthfully say that they have never seen a real good recreational spot after they have eye-witnessed one of the most attractive mountain regions in Southern California called Mt. Baldy. Noah Webster with all his choicest expressions could never utter the full beauty of it.

The canyon, with its tributaries, contains some scenery noted for its ruggedness. The deer is another most interesting sight to see as one winds up and around the mammoth mountains. Ascending higher to an elevation of about 4700 feet, one encounters a camp sponsored by Currys. The hospitality shown there makes one feel more than welcome. The lodge, in which a nice roaring fire is going, real hominess and all the comforts one needs are found at Camp Baldy. Furnished cabins are also available.

Speaking of babbling brooks, one can look most anywhere and see water falls and little mountain streams trickling over huge rocks and little rocks. During storm times, the water rises to a crashing torrent and rolls large rocks down the stream bed. At higher elevations the spired pines mantle the tops and sides of the ridges.

At eventide all is peaceful within and without while the silver moon pencils fantastic silhouettes over the hills and vales. A crisp breeze caresses the camp and hurries the fallen leaves into little huddles here and there.

English Club Forms for Year's Program

Meeting for organization, the nucleus for the Arts and Letters Guild gathered in the parlor of Gladwyn hall, Saturday evening, November 2. A partial election of officers and a discussion of plans for meetings and increase of membership was the business of the evening.

The Arts and Letters Guild was organized last year for the promotion of appreciation of fine arts at S.C.J.C. Last year's activities included several lectures and an instructive and enjoyable field day to points of interest in and around Los Angeles. A similar but widened program is being planned for the present year.

Officers elected at the meeting were Jack Waller, president; Marguerite Tarello, vice president; Eleanor Rothgeb, secretary-treasurer. The officers are working on plans for the first regular meeting to be held next Saturday evening, November 9.

Forum

Forum Becomes Rendezvous

At nine o'clock on the night of Oct. 31, the lights blinked twice and the girls of Gladwyn Hall assembled in the parlor around a very realistic camp fire for several hours of entertainment provided by Miss Wallace. Large apples and "Smacks" served as refreshments. Accompanied by the munching of apples, Miss Wallace gave two humorous readings, "Possessing Prudence" and "The Bald Headed Man." She also told two interesting stories, one about an exciting Halloween night she once spent and the other a very thrilling story of the Concow Indian raid of 1862, which her grandfather and his family went through. By their hearty applause the girls expressed their appreciation.

EDITORIAL

WHY HATE?

We are all human or should be, and I am inclined to believe that if there is a sure way of making these natural circumstances more bearable, it is to avoid hating. Fulton Osler once said, "Give out hate, and as a rule it comes back to you, sometimes much multiplied." And I might add, "Give out love and friendship, and it always comes back to you, sometimes much multiplied."

It seems that at times we are illusioned with the thought, that to hate improves the regions of our intellect, or cultivates in us an appearance of sophistication. How absurd! Now is the time we should stop fooling ourselves, for I venture to say that there is not one among us whose mind has not been robbed of its full effect, or whose character has not been impaired by hate.

In an institution such as we are a part of, it seems incredible that such an element would exist; but in our relationships we do find just a bit of it. Someone bound by huffy temperament, some repelled by resentment, or probably irated just to be irated. How unusual yet how repulsive.

DEVOTION

We are now in the midst of the most solemn phase of school activity. We have slackened the tempo of regular routine so far as possible. Cares of this life faded into the background as we entered upon our Week of Prayer.

Men and women vie with one another for a single opportunity to join in the court functions of some human monarch. A brief moment's kneeling before royalty to receive an impersonal nod is the highest coveted experience in the lives of a select few — the one experience toward which they point back with greatest pride; yet we, for one whole week, may freely enter in a special manner the audience chambers of the King of kings.

Graciously He awaits our reverent homage. Bountiful are the blessings He grants for the asking in His courts of prayer. Here weary burdens are lightened; perplexing problems are solved; and from His inexhaustible resourcefulness we draw courage. None need fear to approach His throne. He tenderly awaits us all, yearning to flood our hearts with the radiance of His unfathomable love.

Drawing close to Him, we are drawn closer to each other by the cords of sympathy, and thru realization of our mutual needs, are better fitted to lift together. God grant that all of us will so take advantage of what this Week offers, that we may be able to meet the issues of life which grow more perplexing day by day with the assurance of ultimate victory.

Marshmallow Roast

So ended one of the most eventful days of the school year thus far—the day when hard-working subscription seekers were justly rewarded.

Farm Leads School Industries

One of the largest industrial departments of Southern California Junior College is the farm. Yet very little is known of the activity that goes on there. There are usually only two divisions thought of in connection with this department, and they are the farm and the dairy.

At the present time about ninety cows are being milked daily. This alone supplies work for two regular shifts of about four milkers each, besides relief milkers who must keep in continual practice. The milk is pasteurized, cooled, and bottled. "Jim" Norton and Harold Conner take care of this work along with the making of the ice cream for the school.

The center of activity for the farm is the horse barn. It is here that the fellows report for work and receive their jobs. At the present time there are six teams making up the "power plant" of the farm. Owing to a continual change of work, there are not the regular positions on the farm as there are in the dairy. Harold Peck and Ivan Martin have the only regular jobs of "chore boy." This includes feeding and grooming the horses before and after work each day.

The work on the farm is quite general, including the regular cultivation, and planting and harvesting of the different crops. During the summer the chief task is to get the hay in and plant and cultivate corn. Then as fast as the ground is cleared, grain is planted, some of which is to be used as green feed, some for hay, and some for grain.

There are, however, activities which are more interesting than those mentioned above. One is the breaking of colts. There is sure to be a certain amount of activity when a colt, which has just been taken from pasture, is harnessed and hitched up. "Jim" Aitchison and the "chore boys" usually take a "day off" and go for a ride in a dirt wagon, which has good brakes, as the "youngster" finds out all of the technicalities of work.

If you have never visited the farm, be sure and do so, because you will find it one of the most interesting places at S. C. J. C.

Strolls, Walks and Hikes

From S.C.J.C. are many roads leading to spots of relaxation from busy school activity. Students taking Sabbath afternoon walks often visit these places. One walk taken many times by students is the one to Hole's mansion, a beautiful estate about one mile from the school. Mr. Hole, the owner, once owned all the land of La Sierra and it is from him that the school property was purchased. Pine trees, cactus gardens, and a variety of interesting items make it an ideal place for a stroll.

Another walk is to the famed "Jack Frost Lake" a reservoir for irrigation water, about 3 miles from S.C.J.C. The wild fowl that visit it and the trees around it give it an atmosphere that makes another delightful place to spend leisure time.

Of course no one forgets the hills behind the school, and "Two-bit Rock." The view from the ridge is worth the strenuous climb over stones and brush to see all the surrounding valley and mountains.

Last but not least is the farm. Every Sabbath afternoon groups are seen headed thither to the duck pond or to see the calves, the Arabian thorough-bred, or any new addition to the farm.

Not a great variety, one may say, but these trips afford a change from keeping one's nose in books.

The Papers Say

Recording in writing the ideals for which they stand, the Associated Students of Walla Walla College have adopted a list of twenty-two W.W.C. traditions. The traditions printed in a recent copy of the "Collegian" affects the students in all phases of their College life, and gives form to the standards of Christian institutions everywhere.

In the Collegiate Digest rotogravure section of the Santa Ana J. C. "Don," is an interesting picture of two room-mates now in attendance at Dartmouth College. These young men, C. S. Grant and L. U. Lee, now sharing the battles of college life, are grandsons of the two great generals of the Civil War.

A new method in education is reported by the "Brown Daily Herald," Brown University, Providence, R. I. The pages of much demanded reserved books in the college library are filmed for projection on a screen. Then in a darkened study hall, students meet and absorb the benefits of the books.

On October 28, Stanford University began work on its new half million dollar War Memorial Auditorium. The beginning of this project, the "Stanford Daily" reports, was in 1920 shortly after the Great War with the institution of a war memorial fund. The new building, Class A in all respects will be entirely student owned.

In the shadow of S.C.J.C. there lives an inventor and of no small ability at that, judging by the account in the Riverside Junior College "Arroyo" of the latest work of astronomy student George Hayes. This ingenious student has constructed an astronomical transit by which he can accurately measure both horizontal and vertical arcs between celestial bodies. All of which means nothing to my simple literary mind but will probably be news to my scientifically inclined schoolmates.

Elder H. H. Hicks of Loma Linda was the speaker of the Seminar meeting last Friday evening. Two students, William Smith and Olaf Locke, also spoke, on the New Testament characters, Christ and Paul. All those interested are invited to attend these meetings.

Della Hiatt, of the class of '34, visited friends in Gladwyn Hall, Sabbath afternoon.

Jack King, Louis Fisher, and Anthony Muff, former students here, who are now at Loma Linda were seen on the campus Thurs. Sabbath afternoon.

Dorothea Findley, Mary Sidmore, Helen Nave, Eloise Callender, and Nora Barrett attended the Pacific International Exposition at San Diego, Sunday, November 3.

Hazel Walde is learning to run the mimeograph with the help of Miss Scott.

Several students with the aid of Miss Sorenson prepared the sandwiches for the "Criterion" picnic at the Van Tassell home Tuesday night.

Each one of the journalism students is now receiving a weekly newspaper "The Publishers' Auxiliary" published by the "Western Newspaper Union" for editors.

Fatigue from the Baldy hike caused John Hopkins to walk up the front steps on his hands and knees.

When the Loma Linda car driven by Iner Ritchie broke down Tuesday morning on the way to school, the passengers were quite late in arriving.

Nine second-year Normal students are now getting their practical work by teaching in the grammar grades.

The Spirit of Prophecy class has now organized into a real missionary band. All are contributing of their means to purchase a paper rack, in which a continuous supply of good literature will be donated, to be placed in the Bus Station in Riverside. They have chosen as their leaders, Mr. John Libby and Mr. Joe Maschmeyer. In this small way it is assured that a great blessing will come to each member and also to the vast number of traveling folk who will eagerly read the printed truth.

Oh yes, if you want to hear anything concerning the Fair at San Diego, just ask Mr. A. R. Smith. He and his wife motored down Wednesday morning, October 30, and returned Thursday morning.

Waldo Brown, one of the ministerial students, gave a very interesting talk on "Forgiveness" at the Woodcraft Home, Sabbath afternoon, November 2.

The three silos at the farm are full and there is still a large amount of corn to be cut. The large "pit silo" was completed Thursday, and, as soon as a road is made up the hill to the head of it, the farmers will start filling it.

The fellows who nightwatched Halloween were greatly disappointed. They said that nobody came around to bother anything, and as a consequence they were deprived of the pleasure of running anyone out.

We have noticed with pleasure that the lawn crew has finally pulled the weeds out of the flower beds that are in the corners of the walks between the Ad building and M.B.K.

Elburton Rice visited the school for a short time Friday. Mr. Rice was among the student body last year, and many of the old students were glad to see him again.

Speaking in chapel last Wednesday, Professor C. C. Morrison reminded us that the greatest want in the world today is the want of men and women of good character. He stated further that this is a day of opportunity for leaders with religious principles, and nowhere can these principles be learned better than in our own schools.

One-celled animals, sponges, and jelly fishes are being studied by the Zoology students in "Zoo Lab."

The Commercial Club is planning a program including, dialogues, readings and music, for Saturday evening, November 16.

Onelea Parr spent the week-end with Helen Herzer at Glendale.

Dorothy Larsin and Alvin Georgeson, former students of Lodi Academy, visited friends here Thursday.

Esther Irvine had as visitors Thursday morning, Margaret Kaiser, Miss B. Peckner, and Mrs. Korf.

Talitha Newmann and her cousin Carl Willers attended the wedding of Carl's sister, Frieda Willers in Los Angeles on Thursday evening, October 31.

Percy Miles returned to the school last Friday evening from Loma Linda. He is recovering well from his appendectomy.

Professor and Mrs. A. P. Hanson spent Sunday, November 3, visiting Mrs. Sturges and old friends around the campus.

Miss C. Hopkins entertained her Sabbath school class at her home, Saturday night, November 2.

Miss L. Seppala, school nurse here last year, paid Miss Paulson and the school a visit last Sabbath.

Kampus Kwips

Found!!! One article of clothing which is autographed by so many good (?) friends. The boss at the laundry isn't sure whose bag it might have come in. Anyone who will call at the proper window and satisfactorily identify the garment may claim it without further questioning.

Every day since the picnic we've noticed Carlos Nicholas with his bright orange hat on. To quote Mr. Craig: "He likes to have 'red' as close to his head as possible." We wonder what he could have reference to.

As another result of the delightful picnic, Mildred Randall was heard in the library the next morning asking a fellow participant (Quote) Say, is it a.m. or p.m. (Unquote) That's all right Mildred; we're glad you enjoyed yourself that much!

Miss Hopkins: "Pardon me for bumping my feet into yours."

M. Grant: "Oh, that's all right, they're so big I know you can't help it."

We do hope that Mrs. Cushman has broad shoulders because we have noticed so many of the Zoo lab. members weeping since the recent test.

It's no sin to tell your funny ones to Zinn.

Alumni

Gordon Palmer, who was injured in a motorcycle accident a little more than a year ago, is still in Loma Linda Hospital.

Henry Kuhn is working in a C.C. C. camp near Descanso. We all wish him as great success as he had in his work on the CRITERION.

Oran Colton is employed in Redlands in the position of chauffeur.

Odetah Brock, who is now working in Long Beach, plans to return to S. C. J. C. the second semester.

Esther Aam is attending San Bernardino Junior College while residing in Loma Linda.

Bernice Waters was recently married.

Luther Thompson is taking work in the pre-medical field at P. U. C. this year.

Elda Fick, a representative of one of our earliest pre-nursing classes, is taking her senior year of nurses' training at Paradise Valley Sanitarium this year.

The girls of Gladwyn Hall are indebted to Mrs. F. M. Randall for the large, new fern which she very kindly potted for them.

The Orchestra this year is the largest in the history of the school. Already this school year, the orchestra has played five times in chapel. Consisting of thirty-five instruments, it is playing standard symphonic orchestra arrangements. There are fifteen violins, a cello, clarinets, alto horns, trombones, bass trumpets, and drum, a well balanced orchestra.

Dr. F. C. Baxter of U.S.C. Addresses Students

Presenting from his personal experience the life in English Universities, Dr. F. C. Baxter, of the University of Southern California, spoke to a large group of students in the College chapel Saturday evening, Nov. 9.

Dr. Baxter states that the English universities of today as of former times are intellectual crossroads. Here is where distinguished scholars meet.

Cambridge and Oxford are different from American universities in that they are not so large and are organized differently, he said. Each English university is composed of several small colleges and in this way a student is enabled to receive greater benefit from the instruction.

Dr. Baxter prophesied that American university students will soon be divided into two classes, just as the English are today: those who want to work and obtain an education, and those who go to college for the pleasure of the sport and social life. He asserted that the Americans are now going through the period in their educational system that the English passed through many years ago.

Teaching is done much differently than one would expect, the Doctor said. The first thing a student does is buy a cap and gown, which must be worn at all times. Reporting to a tutor is the next thing. The student is given a subject upon which to study and after completing the study is supposed to know everything that anyone has ever written upon the subject. Examinations are then given, sometimes requiring a week. Grades are divided into four classes.

On Armistice

Once again is "peace-time" nearing in November's autumn day.

Once again we sing the song of "Peace on earth, good will to men."

"For it's Armistice, peace-symbol," we can hear the vet'ran say,

Who would not, for all that's dear, join the army-ranks again.

Once again the guns will thunder, once again the cannon sound—

Man of earth will hate and perish at his brother's blood-stain'd feet;

And along earth's dark horizon, peace, sweet peace, will not be found,

For 'tis Satan working slyly, and "Revenge," says he, "is sweet."

Tho' the peace-plans and the peace-hope of a sin-wrecked world are vain,

Yet we honor with due reverence this memorial day of peace.

Not till Christ the Prince returneth, not till He comes down again,

Shall this world be reconciled, won to true, eternal peace.

Young Ladies Pick Friendship Friends

Quietly a girl slips in from the garden with a lovely rose. Concealing it behind her she walks swiftly down the hall, pauses before a certain door, taps lightly, and when no one answers, enters. After several minutes she comes out and proceeds happily on her way.

Such incidents as this occur many times in Gladwyn Hall since the "Friendship Friend" idea was originated. Each girl is given a name of another girl and she is Potential Nurses Attend S. C. J. C.

Forty-six potential nurses have taken the step towards the attainment of their goal by enrolling in the pre-nursing department of Southern California Junior College this year. This department is under the supervision of Miss Anna D. One of the most interesting features of the laboratory courses is

ELDER BREITIGAM CONDUCTS WEEK OF PRAYER

WEEK OF PRAYER

Elder R. R. Breitigam, Young Peoples' Missionary Volunteer secretary of the Southern Conference conducted the Fall Week of Prayer Nov. 4-9, at Southern California Junior College.

Monday

"What would Thou have me to do?" the one question of an individual who desires to please Christ above all things, was the chief thought of the talk on Monday morning in chapel.

Examples were given, including Paul, in which the love of Christ and obedience ruled their lives.

"The great and fundamental thing in life is to know what is good, and do it," was a statement the speaker made.

Tuesday

"If in days of peace and quiet we cannot get victory over our sins, what can we do in time of supreme trial?" was the question Elder Breitigam confronted the student body with Tuesday morning.

"We must overcome our life of struggle and fearfulness through a true conversion which comes from a full surrender, and then

ARMISTICE PROGRAM HELD IN CHAPEL

Heartlessness of War Given in Story and Verse

The chapel period was devoted to a program representing our attitude toward war. Those at S.C.J.C. as a Christian group of student and faculty members believe that war should be abolished and this program attempted to give a clearer conception of the realities of war.

"The Illusions of War," a poem by Richard LeGallienne was given by Nadine Hunter. Professor J. P. Fentzling gave a reading which is a true experience entitled "Little Brother." It is written by Madeline C. Doty. This story attempted to portray the cruelties and heart-rending results of war. "War," another poem, was presented by Ronald Perry. Musical selections were supplied by the music department. A quartet sang "America, the Shouts of War Shall Cease," by Cutler. The melody was written in 1878, and the words were written in 1918.

"OUR TEACHERS"

"I sing the praise of the unknown teacher," said Henry Van Dyke recently. "Great generals plan campaigns; but it is the unknown soldier who wins the war. Famous educators devise new systems of pedagogy; but it is the unknown teacher who delivers and guides the young. . . . He keeps the watch along the border of darkness and makes the attack on the trenches of ignorance and folly. . . . He lights many candles which, in later years, will shine back to cheer him."

We know that Socrates taught Plato and Plato taught Aristotle, but who developed the keen mind of Socrates? Who was the teacher of Shakespeare? What unknown gave Lincoln those three months of schooling? Who guided the brush of the youthful Michelangelo?

Of all the professions, that of the teacher is at once the boldest and most self-abasing. Shamefully paid, scarcely noticed, the teacher is generally denied even the satisfaction of observing the results of his work. The farmer plants and cultivates a crop, and though he may profit little from it, he enjoys the thrill of a creator in seeing it grow and bear fruit. The inventor labors in secret, but in a few years he sees the product of his genius adding to human happiness and progress. But the teacher of the young must pursue his labors with only occasional news of the triumphs of his pupils in the battle of his life.

In this world's greatest industrial nation, it seems not to have dawned on many of us that our schools are factories of humanity, turning out a product vastly more valuable and important than motor cars.

We can not honor our school teachers too highly. Indeed, we do not honor them enough. They are the allies of our legislator; our best agents in the prevention of crime; the staunchest supporters of all that is good and true in religion. They oxidize the moral atmosphere. Through their incessant action and pressure the life-blood of the commonwealth is caused to circulate and return pure and healthful to the heart of the nation.

— L. G. Scovern, from "The Optimeter"

Our Launderia

What would we do without the laundry? Although it is not fully appreciated by some, it is nevertheless an important department of our school. Each girl is given a specific work to do which must be done as quickly and efficiently as possible. The work is specified by Ruth Phillips who is in charge of the laundry. Two girls, Mary Thompson and Emma Flinn, have charge of the washing machine. Of course, the girls who like the great outdoors will hang the clothes and do the work outside while the others work inside at cleaning and ironing. Possibly the most important thing (at least in the minds of the boys) is the ironing of shirts. This is usually the cause of all riots—the "certain girl" wanting the shirt belonging to that "certain boy." However rioting cannot last long because the girls are supposed to iron a shirt in a limited amount of time. Each girl is given a number and she puts this in each article she irons. This is for the purpose of judging the speed and merit of the ironer.

only will we have supreme happiness," he said.

At the close of the meeting the entire student body united in prayer for complete victory over all temptations.

Wednesday

"Christians should be the happiest people on earth," said Elder Breitigam in one of his Week of Prayer talks during the Chapel hour last Wednesday.

The practical side of Christianity was the subject dealt with in this interesting and helpful discussion. One of the avenues to Christian happiness, said the speaker, is through educational hobbies, such as nature study or photography. Various physical "stunts" also build up the body and refresh the mind.

Thursday

There comes a time in every man's experience when he must decide which way he shall take.

Moses came to the time that he either must accept the heathenistic Egyptian religion and become a priest, for that was the duty of every one in reputation for the crown, or forsake his twenty-eight years of royal training and serve the God of Heaven! Each individual, as did Moses, comes to these forks in the way, likewise having to live either for God or enjoy the pleasure of sin for a season.

Friday

That individuals be altogether Christians was the plea in the last chapel of the Week of Prayer, Friday.

If people do not accept Jesus they crucify him. Elder Breitigam further urged that all be crucified with Christ that He might live in them.

Clubs

ENGLISH

Modern literature in comparison with that of 50 years ago and previous to that was the subject of the talk given by Dr. F. C. Baxter of the University of Southern California to the English Club on the evening of Nov. 9. The two great themes of literature used to be the glory of war and romantic love. Modern literature views these things in a far more sensible and sane light. Gone is the glory of war and only the utter futility of such a plan is shown. The same thing has happened to the romantic love stories of the Victorian age. They are being replaced by books which deal with adult mind and its attempts to become adjusted to surrounding conditions. In conclusion he stressed the fact that literature was on the right track.

Preceding the lecture a violin solo was played by Charles Gallion accompanied by Jerry Smith. Virginia Smith accompanied by Barbara Steen gave a solo which concluded the program.

GLEE

Two outstanding musical organizations of the school are the Men's Glee Club and the Ladies' Glee Club. The officers are for the men: Harry Sciarillo, president; Erwin Rosa, secretary; James Norton, librarian. For the ladies: Alice Clement, president; Grace Scott, librarian. Very interesting numbers are being rehearsed including such composers as Victor Herbert, J. W. Clokey and Dudley Buck. A dress committee is planning a distinctive costume for each Glee Club to wear when they give their concert.

The purpose of all this is that the ideal for all our school grounds given us through the Spirit of Prophecy may be progressively realized.

"But the light given me is that all that section of land from the school orchard to the Mainland road, and extending on both sides of the road from the meeting-house to the school, should become a farm and a park, beautified with fragrant flowers and ornamental trees." Vol. 6, p. 187.

Those interested were shown pictures of the English Universities at the close of the lecture.

Dr. Baxter's vibrant personality which found expression in his large field of information and whimsical wit called forth many favorable comments on the delightful entertainment he had provided.

6,000 Visit S.D.A. Booth at Fair

Six thousand people have signed their names at the Adventist booth in the San Diego Fair, as interested in the truth. At least 50,000 people have been visited by those in charge. Elder F. W. Paap and Elder J. W. Rich are in charge of the booth.

Aside from this exhibit the "Christian Record Benevolent Assn.", a S.D.A. society for the blind, has a booth. Anyone stopping may have his name written in braille by Mrs. Lea Gibbons, a blind representative.

Colored lights on a large globe point out the S.D.A. institutions located throughout the world. Free literature may be obtained from those in charge. Easy chairs offer a much appreciated rest to visitors of the fair. This booth is located in the Palace of Bettey Housing.

S.C.J.C. was represented four times this summer by the college quartet composed of Professor Harlyn Abel, Elder Dunbar, Harry Sciarrillo and Paul McIntosh. Half hour concerts of sacred music were given.

Thompson's Vegetarian Cafeteria is represented in the Palace of Better Foods and Beverages. Loma Linda foods are also exhibited here.

Pictures of S.C.J.C. may be seen in the small lecture room to the rear of the S. D. A. exhibit.

the dissection of a cat which is included in the Anatomy and Physiology "lab." This may sound like a rather squeamish job, but after the student becomes accustomed to it, the work proves extremely interesting as well as helpful in learning anatomy.

This is the fourth year that the course has been offered and during this time it has become an essential part of the school. Every year a large number of students enroll and with the close of every year a large number graduate to go out to complete their training elsewhere. The growth of the school in the last four years can be largely attributed to the addition of the pre-nursing and other preparatory courses.

Eight young men are employed in maintaining the grounds and flower garden. The tree roses along the walk to the administration building have proved themselves so much of a success that it has been decided to plant that type of roses along the walks leading to each of the school homes.

The lath house is filled with flats of stocks, larkspurs and other flowers for winter blooming on the grounds.

The flower garden in front of the campus is planted in young seedlings of salpiglossis, centur-eas and several new types of calendulas, which will provide a fine supply of winter and early spring flowers.

The chrysanthemums are coming into bloom and are providing baskets of beauty for dining room and buildings.

Kampus Kwips

By Lee Zinn

Having been made more thoughtful by the gentle but positively inclining influence of our jealous guardian of literary propriety, we realize that the purpose of this column should be to point out the common but meritorious acts which do not ordinarily have attention called to them.

This is a large order to fill but we shall attack the problem bravely, and until further notice this shall be our policy.

We are glad to give Ed Potts credit for emptying the library waste basket. May his public-spirited acts never cease.

Our common appreciation goes to Harry Ellenberg for keeping the garbage from piling up around the school. It is people like him who keep things moving—for instance, "Oscar."

We certainly feel fortunate that Harold Kannenberg gets up at 4:00 a.m. every day to clean off the black-boards. (Note: We hope this sentence is corrected before it goes to press.)

We (meaning ye scribe and ye typewriter) especially regret that the following worthy acts have to be put in classified form, but space will not permit us to do otherwise. So the persons named on the left-hand side were observed holding the Ad. building door open for the persons whose names appear opposite:

Wyatt, Aubrey .. Whitelock, Ruth Sciarrillo, Harry .. Clement, Alice*
Cossentine Allan .. Flinn, Emma Cales, Jackson ..

..... Schmidt, Magdalena
Ellenberg, Robert .. Walde, Hazel
Denmark, Milton .. Tarello, Rose
Holland, Carl .. Brewer, Marjorie
Locke, Olaf .. Tarello, Marguerite
Perry, Ronald .. Dale, Evelyn

The Following Are for the Front Science Hall Door Only:

Garner, Robert .. Hedrick, Bethene
Martin, Ivan .. McNaught, Eula
Hay, Conrad .. Brines, Loretta
Peck, Harold .. Birch, Helga
Edison, Edward .. Kibler, Joyce Nelson Lawrence ..

..... Mourer, Ada Beryl

All other doors are not important enough or they are not allowed. We hope to have this list caught up with by next week.

* Onalea Parr got in on this one also. We thought Harry ought to have credit for this too.

All will have the opportunity of standing for God as Paul did. Paul never complained during the five years he was imprisoned for the cause of Christ, but he felt it a blessing to be able to stand.

Several students expressed the desire to be baptized during the call at the close of the meeting.

"Look upon your mind as a garden in which to plant thoughts, to grow into worthwhile things, and remember, all gardens, need weeding now and then."

The NEWSETTE Column

Donald Ballard, a former student, was recently married to Fern Schiedeman.

Miss Scott recently tried out a new chair for Mr. Craig. She thinks it is very comfortable.

Percy Miles is still taking the stairs quite slowly owing to his recent operation.

Harry Sciarrillo and Ivan Martin enjoyed Sabbath dinner at the home of Professor Abel.

The "pit silo" is being filled at the farm. Even though the boys have been working on it all week, there doesn't seem to be much in it yet.

Roger Neidigh and Ivan Martin look under their beds every night before retiring. Ask them for particulars.

Harold Conner could not get any steam in the milk house. The reason was that the pipe line had become clogged with boiler scale.

Beatrice Stearns, daughter of the farm manager and a member of the class of '35, visited friends here Sabbath.

On Wednesday, Miss Wallace tried to do some shopping in Los Angeles. She drove over with Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Craig, who went on business.

Dr. Madge Schlothauer, of Tehachapi, visited Murl Quick and Genevieve Howell, Sabbath. Dr. Schlothauer is a brother-in-law of Murl Quick.

President E. E. Cossentine returned from the Fall Council Monday, November 11.

Several S.C.J.C.-ites attended the Los Angeles Automobile Show last week-end.

Betty Spalding, who is enrolled in the nurses' training course at Loma Linda, visited Barbara Steen last Sabbath.

Marion Leitch, a well-known former student of S.C.J.C. and once President Cossentine's secretary, who is now one of the stenographers at the Pacific Union Conference office, visited at S.C.J.C. and Loma Linda during the past week-end.

Elder R. R. Breitigam had some competition while speaking to the Spirit of Prophecy class, Tuesday morning, when a blind flew up, making a loud noise. He spoke on his use of the Spirit of Prophecy.

Six second-year shorthand students were seen on the front row of chapel Wednesday, while Elder Breitigam spoke. They had been assigned one typewritten page of transcription from his talk.

Plans are now being laid for the A.S.B. banquet scheduled for December 8.

During the Week of Prayer, Elder Breitigam conducted joint worship in the evening for the young men and women.

Prayer bands met every day this week for a few minutes just before chapel.

Marjorie Brewer had as week-end visitors, her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Brewer.

Themes, and yes, more of them! The Spirit of Prophecy class has been collecting quotations from the writings of Mrs. E. G. White, on a topic of their own choice and organizing them. This enables a student to gain a deeper appreciation for Mrs. White's writings and to make the subjects clear in their minds.

And say, are these Normal students busy! Marie Olsen has been teaching Primary Reading this last week, and beginning on November 10, Dorothea Findley will have her turn at teaching it.

Ethel Ausherman-Wilson, a former pre-med. student, was seen on the campus Saturday night.

Henry Kuhn, former editor of the College Criterion, visited the campus last week-end.

Grace Clement, Joyce Kibler, Marjorie Brewer, Marslie Thompson, Evelyn Ruth Dale, Allen Cossentine, and Ronald Perry, all accompanied Elder R. R. Breitigam to Long Beach last Saturday.

When "Jim" Aitchison was delivering milk at Mrs. Stearns house, her dog ate a loaf of bread he found in the back of "Jim's" truck. To make up for it Mrs. Stearns gave "Jim" a loaf of her very good home-made bread.

Wednesday, Barbara and Claude Steen played for the Auxiliary of the Alumni of Loma Linda at Los Angeles accompanied by Jean Smith-Hankins on the harp. Virginia Smith also favored the members with some vocal selections.

The Papers Say

By Jack Waller

In "The Daily Trojan," University of Southern California, there recently appeared the following short verse. Your columnist was impressed by its message and takes the liberty to pass it on.

HYMN OF WAR

He was a coward . . .
Eight breasts thick they marched away,
And, Oh, the sun was bright that day!
Glittering buttons made of brass
Danced and sparkled as they passed.
"Aren't you going boy?" they'd ask,
And, "No!" he'd say, "I love the sun.
I love the breeze when the day is done—
I love to Live," and everyone
Would shake their heads and murmur low,
Would shake their heads and quickly go,
For he was a coward . . .
But, somewhere, from the void above,
Where man has learned his verse of love,
Someone looked down from aisle flowered,
And, smiling, asked of no one, "Coward?"

—Bud Colegrove

These lobbyists are at work again! The first subscription received in the "Collegian" campaign at Walla Walla College was one obtained from Washington's governor, C. D. Martin. Our own Governor Merriam can well congratulate himself that the CRITERION campaign is a thing of the past.

The ole fishin' hole has lost all attraction for geology students at Pasadena Junior College since fossil fishing came in style. Even Isaac Walton would have learned something from the account in the "Pasadena Chronicle" of the sport as it has been practiced in recent field trips to the chalk-like formations near Sierra Vista Junction.

A gala homecoming was accorded Captain Henry Walker when he returned to Washington State College a day or two ago. A member of the extension department of the northern institution, the Captain had narrowly escaped death when his plane crashed and burned during a blinding snow-storm near Mt. Rainier.

Alumni

We all remember the faithful work done on the CRITERION by James Lee. His literary ability is now helping the quality of P.U.C.'s paper, "The Campus Chronicle."

Appendectomies sometimes cause alterations in good plans which have been made. Lovell Roderick was forced to discontinue her nursing training at Paradise Valley because she has had this operation recently.

One of last year's pre-medical students is taking more work in that field of learning at P.U.C. this year. We all remember him as Lowell Ford.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sicklesteel have a son, Glenn Ellis. Mrs. Sicklesteel was known to us as Lelah Vollmer.

Leona James is an English major at Walla Walla College. Allan Turk is also in school at Walla Walla. Leona reports that she likes school there very much.

Lawn Social Given to Boys

"We (the girls) wish to honor you boys for the splendid work which you did in winning the past CRITERION campaign," stated Alyce Van Tassel in her speech which was one of the features of the short program that preceded several hours spent in marching and playing games on the evening of November 12. The statement expressed the sentiments of all the girls as the boys were the guests of honor for the evening, which was devoted to very informal entertainment. It was given on the lawn in front of the Women's Home so as to utilize the full moon, which was a little late in making its appearance.

To President E. E. Cossentine was given the honor of presenting to the boys the pennant which they merit by winning the campaign. The pennant had not arrived, but nevertheless it was presented with due formality, and the boys were assured that it really would arrive soon and would be theirs, however it is not a permanent possession but goes to the side that wins each year, and is kept by them until the close of the next campaign. "The Bells of Youth," by Speaks was given by the Girls' Glee Club accompanied by Barbara Steen.

Following the program, a short march was conducted by Prof. Abel, which was terminated by all being served light refreshments of hot postum and "crispies." The rest of the evening was then devoted to marching and playing games under the supervision of Prof. Abel. Those who did not care for such strenuous entertainment gathered around a small bon-

BIBLE INSPIRATION STRESSED BY LACEY

Dividing his sermon into two parts, the internal and the external proof of the inspiration of the Bible, Elder H. Camden Lacey, Bible instructor of the Loma Linda Medical College spoke during the church hour on November 16. Within the Bible itself, it is spoken of as the "Word of God" and in II Timothy 3:16 it is stated that "all scripture is given by inspiration of God." This inspiration was the inspiration of superintendence. That is, it is written in the vocabulary of the writer but under the supervision of God with all the thoughts and ideas coming directly from Him. Often times the writers did not understand exactly what they were writing about as was the case of Daniel and certain other prophets.

Written in an unscientific age the Bible has vindicated every true scientific discovery made. This coupled with the fact that over five hundred million copies of it are now in existence were the two main external proofs which Elder Lacey stressed.

COSSENTINE TELLS OF FALL COUNCIL

President Cossentine, during the chapel hour Wednesday, November 13, gave a brief report on the Autumn Council, held at Louisville, Kentucky, beginning October 29, following several preliminary councils. President Cossentine visited several of the S.D.A. educational institutions on the return trip from the council, arriving at S.C.J.C. Monday, Nov. 11.

Fall Council is one of our most important meetings, inasmuch as it is at this time that the budget for the following year is planned. Business is carried on by three different means, namely, special committees, which deal with major questions; smaller committees, dealing with less important matters; general meetings, in which reports from these committees are read and discussed.

Of great importance to the educational men, and of great interest to us was the matter of the accrediting senior colleges. Only two schools, Pacific Union College and Emmanuel Missionary College, were granted the privilege of securing and maintaining membership in the regional associations. All other schools may, of course, become accredited with the denomination.

Some interesting figures were given concerning the advancement of the work. The message, em-

BIBLE ANNIVERSARY HONORED BY M. V.

In honor of the four-hundredth anniversary of the English Bible, the Missionary Volunteer program Friday night was devoted to showing the influence of the Bible on the world.

"William Tyndale was the first man to attempt the translation of the Bible, but the first complete translation was by Miles Coverdale on Oct. 4, 1535," James Norton explained in his talk describing the history of the English Bible. He added that William Tyndale, when a very young man, promised himself that he would make the Bible so common that the boy at the plough would know more about the Bible than the scholars at that time.

Barbara Walters showed the influence of the Bible on the arts. Hunt's painting, "The Light of the World," shows Jesus knocking at a door, the heart. On the door there is no knob or latch. Jesus wears a crown symbolizing a King. This is only one of the masterpieces inspired by the Bible. Miss Walters explained. The Messiah by Handel was taken bodily from Isaiah, the Gospels and Revelation. "The subject of Christ is the greatest that has ever entered the domain of art."

That the Bible has influenced civil life was shown by Olaf Locke. George Washington said his life was centered around the Word of God. "Our system depends upon the Word of God," Calvin Coolidge once said. U. S. Grant Woodrow Wilson and Abraham Lincoln were guided by the Bible.

"The Bible is not only a mirror showing one's mistakes and short comings, but gives us advice," explained Murl Quick, in her talk on the personal influence of the Bible.

LIBRARY DISPLAYS BIBLE FACSIMILES

An exhibit, commemorating the four-hundredth anniversary of the English printed Bible was displayed recently by the library in the English room.

Facsimiles, show portions of the outstanding translations and editions since Coverdale dedicated the first complete translation to Henry the VIII on October 4, 1535.

While the King James version is commonly thought of in connection with the English Bible, and although there are other good versions, yet these are based upon Coverdale's work.

SCIENTIST PRESENTS SPECTACULAR PROGRAM

Opening his lecture with a bang and keeping it running at this same high speed tempo throughout the evening by the seemingly constant popping, cracking and booming noise, Mr. Glenn Morris, noted scientific lecturer, spoke and demonstrated to the student body many of the marvels of science concerning the field of electricity, Sunday night, November 17th. "My purpose is to stimulate interest or curiosity in and about the marvels of science which are all around us," he said in opening. This curiosity shows that we are still youthful. It is not until we lose it that we really grow old. Of course this intense desire for learning leads us into the field of higher education, and today more than any other time there is a great need for higher education, for manual labor is gradually but very surely being displaced by the marvelous inventions of science which make manual labor unnecessary.

Taking an ordinary current of electricity and making it spark, he demonstrated how it could be used to create the illusion of wheels going backward and sliding and also how it was a very valuable aid in the study of moving machinery. With the help of a small boy, the marvels of magnetism were shown. The magnetism was passed through the boy and various uses made of it. It is a very important factor in airplane compasses as the machinery in the airplane always

PRES. COSSENTINE SPEAKS IN SEMINAR

The seventh meeting of the Seminar was held Friday evening Nov. 15. A nominating committee was elected. President Cossentine spoke of the words of Paul when he said, "Except ye abide by the ship ye cannot be saved. We are nearing the harbor in the advent ship and we are tossed by the winds of temptation and strife," he said. The great opportunity young people have in the great advent movement was stressed. Professor Cossentine spoke of the way this living message is changing men's lives and hearts in many foreign lands. "In this age young people should definitely prepare themselves to fill the great need for missionaries." Illustrations were given of how people are hungering for the truth these days. President Cossentine concluded by saying, "We should catch the inspiration that God wants to use us today because the good advent ship is soon going home."

DIPLOMACY? TACT? "PULL?"

Recently I talked with an individual who said he didn't have to worry about gaining a certain favor from the dean because he could "polish the apple" a bit to get it. Then there was another young man who thought that even though his work was not up to par, his wages wouldn't suffer inasmuch as he "carried his can of simonize" with him regularly when he went to work. Still another misled young lady stated that the best way to get along is to "polish the apple" with her fellow students.

Most of these individuals have done this type of underhanded, dishonorable, insincere kindness to the extent that they believe that it is a unique way of exercising tact, or "diplomacy" as another one of these folks called it.

As teachers and students we should all endeavor not to "fall for the line" of these "polishers;" for if their tactics fail to bring results, they may soon be eradicated. — C.N.

OUR MONITORS

Do you know to whom goes the credit for retaining the tranquil atmosphere in the dormitories? If you do not, then, we will tell you. The honor is due our esteemed monitors who devote much of their nocturnal perambulations rapping on doors and stationing themselves on guard duty in the corridors. These young men and women have so trained their inborn faculties that they are enabled at the slightest perceptible commotion to collar the culprit responsible for such. It is they who make it possible for us to wax studious during the study hour and to obtain our much needed rest and sleep after lights are out. Inasmuch as our monitors are on call at a minute's notice, they have received the honorable title of "twenty-four hour men."

To show our appreciation for the service they render us, we should give them our full cooperation in helping to maintain a pacific attitude in the school homes. — J.K.

The dairy is a continually active department of the varied industries that are to be found at Southern California Junior College. The bovines do not seem inclined to take holidays off, or go for an outing over the week-end, so the milkers have to work every day of the year. The dairy produces on the average of 230 gallons of milk a day. About ten gallons of this is used to feed the number of calves which never seem to be able to get enough to eat. The remainder of the milk is handled through the milk house.

Approximately one hundred gallons of milk is pasteurized every day. This is bottled by machine and is distributed in one of four ways. The majority of it is sent to the White Memorial Hospital in Los Angeles. The College operates a truck for this purpose. "Jim" Aitchison operates a milk route in Arlington, and Dwight Herbert operates one in Riverside. Of course raw milk of low bacteria count is also provided for those desiring it. The College of course obtains all of its dairy supplies direct from the dairy. Ice cream is made for the College about five times a week, which uses up about fifty gallons of milk a week. All of the surplus is shipped either to Knudsen's or to a Milk Surplus Plant.

PRE-MEDS TO TAKE APTITUDE TEST

All pre-medical students planning on entering a medical school in the fall of 1936 are required to take the Medical Aptitude Test which is administered by the Committee of the Association of American Medical Colleges. This year the test will be given at 2 o'clock on the afternoon of December 6.

In a recent meeting of the Association in Toronto, after careful evaluation of the results of the Test in Medical Schools (by an independent committee) the Association adopted the Test as a permanent requirement for admission to medical schools.

This test is given only once a year. It requires approximately one hour and a half to be given. A fee of one dollar from each applicant is required. This is to defray the expenses of the Committee.

Last year 10,569 students of 617 colleges took this test. They were used by approximately 90 per cent of the approved medical schools of the United States as a factor in the selection of their students.

Twelve students of S.C.J.C. took this test last year, as the College of Medical Evangelists has this as one of its requirements for entrance. This year approximately 15 plan to take it.

"The school and all its surroundings should be object-lessons, teaching the ways of improvement, and appealing to the people for reform, so that taste, industry, and refinement may take the place of coarseness, uncleanness, disorder, ignorance, and sin." Vol. 6, p. 188.

To Pre-Meds Only

By Louis Fisher

Loma Linda! One hears many conflicting opinions about this place. In fact, after hearing the many tales of woe that are traditionally given out by Sophomores for Freshman consumption, it takes the bravest of hearts to enter the first month of school life without having some fears and misgivings.

Yet how quickly one's impressions change in the short space of several months. Possibly my first impression as to what it meant to be attending Loma Linda was when I first attended the opening Chapel exercise. The number of our class, while only fifty students, possessed representatives from the four corners of the earth. There were some students from China, Africa, and even far-off Australia—all here to receive a Christian medical education. If I ever did have a slight numbing sensation in my lower extremities (sometimes called "cold feet") it was then. I wondered (in fact it hasn't changed much) like all Freshmen before me and those that will follow, if I could make the grade. But one does not have time for much speculation, and before I realized it, the first month was over and there were other things to think about.

One often hears a question asked concerning the type of recreation available for the students. The value of recreation in a person's life is not forgotten in the daily pursuits of one's lessons. In fact, there are many opportunities for any line of endeavor that one desire. Recently, the monthly meeting of the Supper Club was held, and it is hard to picture a better time being held anywhere. All the medical students, nurses, and dieticians met in the dining room for what resembled a semi-banquet. Several former students of S.C.J.C. were on the program; namely Bill Williamson and Harry Hickman. Needless to say, the program was a tremendous success. That one has a few tests the next day fails to dampen the enjoyment of a good social.

(Editor's Note: These articles dealing with news from Loma Linda Medical School will be continued every two or three weeks.)

PARTY GIVEN FOR NOVEMBER BIRTHDAY

Lively games and tasty refreshments entertained a group of twenty students at a November birthday party in the Remsen home, Saturday night.

Seven of twenty young people present have birthdays in November.

Those present were: Estele Krohman, Carl Holland, Louise Bunch, Dorothy Raley, Arline Ryan, Erwin Rosa, Ivan Martin, Harry Scarrillo, Eunice Remsen, Carol Remsen, Carlos Nicolas, Alyce Van Tassell, Reba Colton, Oran Colton, Walt Ehrler, Thyra Thompson, Virginia Smith, Marian Hester, Conrad Hay, Percy Miles and Mrs. S. A. Smith.

The Papers Say

By Jack Waller

As civilization and the value of the dollar are changing, education changes too. American Colleges, the nation over, are teaching new courses that a decade ago would have seemed fantastic indeed. Today, by practical minded young people, they are enthusiastically received.

From The Sunflower, Wichita University, comes word of a new course in the field of Journalism. Together with Pittsburgh University, the Kansas institution is pioneering with a new course in Press Photography. Recognizing the trend toward pictures in the daily news, this course offers an open field for ambitious students.

Another type of training for open fields is the course in "dude ranching" recently offered at Wyoming University. Photographed in the Collegiate Digest the first two prospective dude ranchers were hard at work over a book of etiquette.

To geology students of Redlands University, however, the wide open spaces have more than mere romantic attraction. A recent field trip, described by the U. of R. Campus was taken to nearby earthquake faults. Too nearby was the great San Andreas fault running from San Francisco to the gulf of California and passing within four miles of the Redlands institution.

Fully described in a late copy of The War Whoop, San Bernardino Valley Union Junior College, was the arrangement by the commercial department with leading business firms of the city for the employment of commercial students for laboratory work in their various departments. Of mutual benefit, this new course gives training to the student and college-trained service to the participating business firms.

A still different type of instruction, a course in Radio Speech, is being given at Walla Walla College, the Collegian reports an interesting feature is the weekly broadcast every Sunday afternoon over Station KHJ.

Even "Cops" are turning high-brow in the new education as San Jose State College imparts instruction in Police Speech. San Jose trained policemen will lead the field in faultless English, proper tone inflections, and the desired dramatic effects.

playing 439 languages, is being given in 325 countries and islands. Of these, 30 new countries, using 35 languages, were added in 1934. It is interesting to note that this is more than twice the number of languages recorded as used on the day of Pentecost.

The burden of the Council was the great need of workers to answer the many calls which come. President Cossentine called attention to the personal challenge to each one in this need.

Two colts and one horse enjoyed a few minutes' run until they were escorted to their stalls by someone on horse back, early Wednesday morning.

Sabbath, Maxine and Blaine McDermott enjoyed a visit from their mother, who came from Santa Monica.

Prof. Craig, woodwork teacher, talked to the Economic Geography class Wednesday about lumber, and showed them specimens of various kinds of wood.

As a result of a recent football game on the campus, several participants are now limping.

Diners at the cafeteria have new places since the arrangement made a few days ago.

The first year typing students now have a chart by which they can see how fast they are progressing, which also gives them comparison with the other students.

It so happened that the academic students of Gladwyn Hall suddenly awakened after the lights went out at 9:30 Thursday evening November 14, and brought down all their books to study in the lobby.

In Norco, Sabbath School and church come on Sabbath afternoons. Carl Holland sang a solo, accompanied by Barbara Steen at the services on November 9.

Professor J. P. Fentzling gave the English Composition class a grand surprise Friday morning, November 15, by returning their autobiographies to them.

No doubt everyone has seen Johnny Hopkins' "Open-air taxi." Well, Miss Sorenson and Mrs. Craig drove over to Los Angeles with Johnny the week-end of November 15. We are sure they enjoyed the ride.

Margaret Woodall, former student and now associate editor of the L. A. Academy "Broadcaster" was a visitor Monday.

Lurline Edge and Betty Dressel of Los Angeles were Armistice day visitors.

Alice Clement and Helen Kintner spent Wednesday afternoon in Los Angeles.

Helen Kintner and Eula McNaught attended the wedding of Eula's brother, Laurel McNaught, a former student of S.C.J.C.

Mr. and Mrs. John Libby spent last week-end in Long Beach with Mrs. Libby's parents.

Edylene Sims and Maxine McDermott had a collision in Thursday's nurses physical education class. Ask them for details.

Bethene Hedrick and Harriett Simmons spent Wednesday evening at their homes in Orange.

A. R. Smith went to San Diego Tuesday to secure the S.C.J.C. picture that hung in the S.D.A. booth at the fair.

Elder Remsen, father of Carol Remsen, left Wednesday for Hawaii.

Della Hiett, a former student, while visiting the college Sabbath, brought Ruth Whitlock a souvenir from the San Diego Fair.

Milton Denmark asked his roommate to set the alarm clock at 175.

Alladine Rich and Grace Winget now "probys" at the Glendale Sanitarium, visited the campus last Sabbath.

Art Edmister, a former student from Tennessee, visited the campus recently.

Mrs. Friend, with the help of Louise Bunch, conducts a rhythm orchestra in the primary grade room.

The Spanish club meets Thursday morning at 10:55. Everyone is welcome.

Alumni

What? An alumni party for all former S.C.J.C. students who are now connected with the White Memorial Hospital in Los Angeles.

When? On October 31, 1935.

Who? Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Lily (Grace Squire), Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hankins (Jean Smith), Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Culbertson (Caroline Lucille McCurdy), Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Miller (Myrtle Garvin), Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Nash, Mr. Bill Conrad, Mrs. Gertrude, Mrs. Lawrence Ermshar (Thelma Grover), Mrs. Charles Moore (Susie Carney), Dr. Russel Atkinson, Misses Marie Christian, Margaret Hon, Emily Jane Brown, Florence Brown, Beatrice Wilhelm, Erna Conrad, Esther Angell and Mrs. Atkinson (Isabelle Artist.)

What happened? It was voted that school day memories be perpetuated by means of an alumni society consisting of the above-mentioned persons.

Bernice Prout, who graduated from the academic course with the class of '34, is studying commercial at P.U.C. this year. Her brother, Milton, also an S.C.J.C. alumnus, visited her a few weeks ago.

Richard Holbrook and Delmer Cummings are among the first year medical students at Loma Linda.

Kampus Kwips

By Lee Zinn

Last Sabbath, Miss (Ma) Hopkins invited a group of students in which my roommate and I were fortunate enough to be included to dinner. May I for once in this column be serious and sincerely thank and praise a marvelous cook and a wonderful hostess.

It was added to my knowledge today that some of the male students of S.C.J.C. have been sending various poems to the girls at the laundry in their laundry bags. With the permission of the laundry I will print one of these very amusing pieces of poetry. We think it will be best to omit the name of the author.

Of all Departments 'neath the skies,
Our College Laundry takes the prize,
They scorched my shirt and ripped the collar,
And then they tell me not to hollar.

These foolish lines I do regret,
And trust their nonsense you'll forget.
But, here is what I wanted to say,
When I wrote those lines the other day.

I wonder, who is the maiden shy and fair,
Who washes and irons my shirts
I wear?
She folds them up so clean and neat,
I'll tell you all she's hard to beat.
Little does this young lady dream,
Of the place she holds in my esteem.

And if perchance some day I meet
This fair young maiden, shy and sweet,
I trust that I may have the honor
To place my family name upon her.
I do not know who she may be,
Except for the clue found in my laundry,
For I found a single golden strand
Caught in the fold of my collar band.

You remember Cinderella,
And the little glass shoe?
Now I guess that's just What I'll have to do.

Will have to stop as there is a call to Gladwyn Hall. They say Miss Marjorie Brewer made a chocolate pudding and thru some mistake used some of the laundry's best starch which landed one of the girls in bed and made the rest heavy as lead.

has such magnetic powers as to make an ordinary compass entirely useless. By another marvelous yet seemingly simple use of electricity this is overcome. Such practical uses and things as burglar alarms, guarding machinery so that no one can be hurt by it, and lighting fires were only a few of the uses of radio demonstrated. The field of radio is one of the newest and most interesting fields to be opened up as yet.

BIBLE INSTRUCTOR URGES DILIGENCE

"Behold I come, come quickly: hold that fast which thou hast, that no man take thy crown," was urged by Elder C. M. Sorenson in chapel Friday morning.

Now is the time to place ourselves on God's side the winning side, for Satan is trying harder than ever to make as many as possible slip.

Elder Sorenson impressed upon the students the necessity of holding on to the rich blessings they had received during the past Week of Prayer. He has been present at two weeks of prayer every year for thirty years, in his connection with our schools.

Evidence that Christ is soon coming are all about us at the present time. Rev. 16:12, "That the way of the kings of the east might be prepared," is being fulfilled by the present conflict between Italy and Ethiopia.

Elder Sorenson closed his talk by assuring the students that God will never leave them.

Poems, poems and more poems — no it wasn't due to any assignment by Professor Fentzling, but rather to Murl Quick, president of the Girls' Forum, who announced that our friendship friends were to be revealed by a four-line verse which described them, and Thursday evening was the time of revealing. Some were humorous and some serious, but all showed that each girl had spent considerable time struggling to obtain the desired result. When everyone had given her poem and all friendship friends had been revealed, a "Honeymoon" race was staged with Marguerite Tarello and Velda Close as the strongest members of the family and Talitha Neuman and Eloise Callender as the weaker sex. It proved to be extremely entertaining, and it was some time before all could quiet down. The new friendship friends were revealed in "suckers."

THANKFULNESS FOR A SHORT THANKSGIVING

No quality in man warms the heart quite so much as does thankfulness. Thankfulness for your lot in life — no matter how small; thankfulness for friends and for school; thankfulness for a short vacation!

What more pleasant finale to a strenuous period of examinations could one plan than a short Thanksgiving vacation with school cares and worries thrust far into the background?

Who could find it in his heart to be niggardly because we have not a longer recess from our strenuous work?

Stretching before us we have a few days in which to forget the regular routine of school life. For some it provides a much needed opportunity to increase labor credit, to rest weary minds and tired bodies, for others it means a chance to go home and spend a few days in a different environment. Whatever our lots we are truly fortunate!

Are you thankful to-day for what to-day has to offer, or are you wasting valuable moments in complaining? — B.R.

WHAT THINK YE?

Since 1624 there has been in this country, (nominally by order of the chief governing executive) a season of thanksgiving to the Almighty for deliverance from hardship and for protection and preservation during the past year; a beautiful ceremony if more than the name is thought of.

Speaking of deeper meanings, what does Thanksgiving mean to you? A big dinner? A football game? A snow trip? A respite from school? A rest from work? A period of leisure? Or a session of "just plain uselessness"?

It is not the purpose of the writer to discuss the merits of these methods of spending your vacation. That is one's own business, fortunately or unfortunately as suits his case.

But, dear reader, would it not be considered fitting to remember at this time some of the ever-increasing number of things we have to be thankful for? Upon most of the people of America, the true spirit of Thanksgiving has been lost. In this day of intense worldwide melodrama, of national and racial hatreds, of economic dishonesty and resulting hardship, of danger from organized crime and of our uncontrolled machinery, of potential damage of the growing restlessness of nature, and the enlarging number of nearly irrepressible diseases; shouldn't we realize that we are greatly indebted to someone for the health and prosperity we enjoy?—A.C.

UNUSUAL STATISTICS

At 4:07½ P.M. Wednesday afternoon it was found that there were seventeen unmade beds in Mu Beta Kappa—whereas there were none in Gladwyn Hall. Tsk-tsk-boys!!

There are 20 occupants of Gladwyn Hall who wear "double-monocles".

The New Webster's International Dictionary (in the library) has 2744 pages.

By the looks of the picture of the student body—we have three boys who are twins.

By actual count it has been found that one of our co-eds has 95 hairs in one eyebrow and 110 in the other. You guess who?

Well — here's something — there are more boys than girls so what does that do for the A.S.B. banquet?

Science student must climb 27 steps to reach the second floor of the Science building.

If you haven't already counted — there are 125 panes of glass in the windows in the Zoo Lab.

The flower garden in front of the Science Hall is encircled by 74 rocks.

Your worthy (?) reporters have found that one must take 172½ steps to reach the front door of the Ad. Building from the front door of the Men's Home.

In visiting the kitchen, it was found that one girl had peeled an apple and the peeling measured approximately 2 yards in length.

In one day's time the heart pumps enough blood to fill an ordinary railroad tank car.—Time.

REYNOLDS COMPLETES ORIENTATION SYLLABUS

A new Orientation syllabus by Professor K. J. Reynolds was completed on November, 18.

This is the second edition of this work-book for the class in orientation, and it is used in supplement for the text "Every College Student's Problems," by O. H. Wesner. The work is primarily the same as the first edition except for some personality checking material. In addition to what one thinks he should be, he also must pass an inventory slip to some friend of his and hope the individual will be conscientious in his estimations.

It is the purpose of this course to improve the personality defects, planning and adjusting that must be made by one who is inexperienced in College methods, as Professor Reynolds puts it. This course is but a long handled spoon with which to stir the mental processes."

Jeanene: "Scuse me for smiling at you so much, Mrs. Adams, but I just can't help it when you smile at me like that."

STUDENTS HEAR TALK ON LIFE

"Life is a highway," was the expression used by J. W. Craig, woodwork teacher to the student body during chapel on Monday morning.

Life is an avenue of opportunity. While traveling this avenue we are either going in the right or wrong direction. There are sign boards by which we can tell, but we must know where we are going. We must have an object in view. As we grow our responsibilities grow also.

Several reasons why we do certain things were given by the speaker in his talk: (1) because we are told to do something from someone with authority, (2) because of an ambition or a worth while motive. Interesting incidents of famous men were given to illustrate each of these points. "Study your own lives and then the lives of other people," was his instruction, "and profit by their mistakes as well as your own."

S. D. A. STATISTICS PRESENTED IN TALK

Every hour, four people are baptized into the S.D.A. denomination, Elder E. W. Dunbar, M. V. Secretary of the Southeastern California - Arizona Conference brought to the minds of the students in chapel Friday morning.

During 1934, 38,809 people were baptized into the S. D. A. denomination making the membership total 404,000.

S. D. A. books are printed in 539 languages and dialects in contrast to 100 languages in 1914. Many of these languages were written for the first time by missionaries printing books for the natives.

In 1914, $600 would have bought one copy of every publication put out by S. D. A.'s but in 1934, it would be $2087, over three times as much.

Every ten days during 1934, the work began in a new language area. This work has been accomplished by every member sacrificing by giving of their means to spread the "gospel to every nation, kindred, tongue and people."

NOTICE

The Library is for the benefit of every enrolled student. It is your privilege to use it, and your duty to see that you do not misuse this privilege. Our college library was put together at great cost, in the hope that it might be a sanctuary, as it were, for intellectual and inspirational activity. With this in mind, students who patronize the library should see that quiet is maintained at all times, especially in the stock room where research work is in progress and where books are checked.

SILENCE IS GOLDEN. Help the Librarians to realize the original purpose of our college library.

STRIPLIN TALKS OF CHRIST'S PATIENCE

Taking as the keynote of his sermon, Isa. 53:7, "He was oppressed and he was afflicted, yet he opened not his mouth," Prof. C. D. Striplin, principal of the Los Angeles Academy and former Bible instructor here, spoke during the church hour Saturday, Nov. 23.

Placing the stress on the fact that Christ remained silent when afflicted, he offered Him as the highest example of one who knew how to speak with force and power and yet knew equally as well when and where to remain silent. "If Christ was our example, ought we not to follow Him by cultivating the ability to remain silent at the correct times?" was the pertinent question put before the congregation. Following the life of Christ from the time He was a small child down to His death on the cross, it is found that not one of retaliation ever escaped His lips. Even in His final sufferings, when His life was taken, His last words were, "Father, forgive them for they know not what they do."

CRITERION SUBJECT OF STAFF MEETING

Jean Marie Petrik, the editor, acting as chairman, with Prof. Fentzling as advisor, joined the staff in stating the outstanding principles to be upheld in our paper are accuracy, interest for students, faculty, and constituency, as well as educational material.

It was decided that the staff take a trip—either to visit the Los Angeles Times or to spend a day in the mountains. It is hoped that a combination of these two can be arranged. The trip will be held soon after the close of the first semester.

The school, showing their appreciation for the hard work of the staff, gave each member a dish of banana ice-cream to "top-off" his lunch.

BIOLOGICAL TRIP PROVES INTERESTING

with Prof. and Mrs. L. H. Cushman.

To obtain a general knowledge of plant and animal life in Southern California was the purpose of the trip.

The trip included most of the territory from Mt. Whitney to the Mammoth Lake region. From one point near Mammoth Lake, one could see twenty-two lakes. Scaling Mt. Whitney was especially interesting as the changes in plant and animal life from sea level to the highest point in the United States could be seen.

WHEN THEY WERE OUR AGE

Strange as it may be—the faculty members were young and had strange and varied ambitions—as all youngsters have.

Prof. Fentzling started his work-life by running errands for a drug store. So well done was his work that they advanced him to the position of a "soda jerker."

Prof. Morrison must have been an ambitious youth as he worked for a railroad construction company—building railroads. He later worked in a logging camp in Canada.

A. R. Smith gives hope to all janitors take courage—you might some day be a business manager. Mr. Smith also worked in a mining camp.

President Cossentine when a boy, as all boys do—wanted to be an engineer. At 16 or thereabouts his ambition was almost realized when he obtained a position on a railroad. However, he decided that maybe he ought to settle down to a monotonous (?) life, and so became a College president.

The great mystery has been solved. The reason Prof. Cushman is such a fine physics Lab. assistant is because he was a Physics Lab. Assistant at College for two years. We knew there was a reason!

PRACTICAL RELIGIOUS LIFE IS EXPLAINED

prayer, or feeling; it is a religion of the spirit, living and animate, controlling the whole man.

Christ is the guide to true Christian living, Miss Brines remarked. He waits patiently for each one to place his life in Divine hands. By early morning prayer and devotion may one's footsteps be guided in right paths. By prayer a life of perfection may be obtained.

The Papers Say

By Jack Waller

As your columnist goes hurriedly through the fist of fine college papers that come daily to the desk, he no doubt misses many things that were just intended for his particular sense of humor. Occasionally, however, he does find some of the rare bits placed there by the other editors. Some of a representative week's chuckles are passed on to you.

From the Los Angeles JUNIOR COLLEGIAN:

- How to keep awake in class,
1. Sit by a girl who drops books.
 2. Give the girls on each side of you a stick of gum.
 3. Sleep nights.

The only two reasons that so many freshmen "flunk out" of college was given by Dr. L. L. Click of Texas U. and reprinted in the Wichita University Sunflower.

1. Either freshman get too scared of their studies,
2. Or they don't get scared enough and go to sleep.

"The most horrible paradox on this campus," observes a Washington State College columnist in the Evergreen "Is the herding of over a hundred students into a room, closing the windows, screening them, shutting the doors and then showing the students pictures illustrating the respiratory system and the value of good, clean, un-defiled air."

And in closing I respectfully reprint a columnist's confession taken from the San Diego State College Aztec:

Your Titan locks and eyes so clear

Leave my emotions far too flat
But because you read my column, dear,

I could love you just for that,
All of which reminds me that I must be making plans for the A. S. B. banquet. By the way, are you chose?

STRENGTH OF SIN DEFINED IN VESPERS

Opening his sermon with several Biblical definitions of sin, Prof. C. D. Striplin, of Los Angeles, spoke during the Vesper services, Friday night, November 22. One of the most forceful definitions of sin was found in James 4:17, "Therefore to him that knoweth to do good, and doeth it not to him it is sin." Sin is not a natural thing; it is an alien and an intruder. Even as a mirage lures one on with a false promise, so sin luring the "foolish" on to eternal destruction. Sin is the strongest force in the world outside of Christ, and one in his own power can do nothing to combat it, only as individuals accept Christ can they be victorious.

Classifying sin under three heads — secret sins, presumptuous sins, and the sin of ignorance — Professor Striplin showed that President E. E. Cossentine spoke to the Commercial Club Tuesday evening at Miss Hopkins.

Joe Maschmeyer talked about eating "vegetables" in Spirit of Prophecy class recently.

A free ride and lunch induced Millicent Grant and Alyce Van Tassell to spend Friday afternoon in Los Angeles.

At the Woodcraft Home, on Sabbath afternoon, Nov. 23, the program included a talk by Olaf Locke, a violin duet by Grace Clement and Annella Carr, vocal duet by Joyce Kibler and Evelyn Dale, and an instrumental number by Delpha Rocke.

The Pomona news, edited by Bob Dunn, was published for the first time Thursday, November 2, and it shall appear on every Thursday hereafter.

Those who helped the photographer in arranging the chairs for the school picture received a complimentary picture as a reward for their service. They were Tom Pellow, Jack Cales, Jerry Smith, and Elvin Hoag.

Tickets for the Messiah given by 350 voices in the Riverside Civic Auditorium December 8 at 4:00 can be purchased now in the Student Body office.

A new shipment of cats for the second section of Anatomy lab. has arrived. This time, it is reported, all the "kitties" were in fine condition.

"Jim" Norton, the past Criterion Campaign manager, has been seen recently walking on crutches due to injuries received while he was playing football the other afternoon.

Grade Gleanings

Lest we should forget the little ones, let us cast our eyes upon the following conversation, which was over heard in the Primary Room.

Dian — (five years old) "My uncle Harry (Doctor Reynolds) had a birthday yesterday and I gave him a big hug. I hugged him so hard he just couldn't breathe—O, but I love him—I love him so much—I just can't tell you how much."

Teacher—"And does your uncle Harry love you as much as you love him, Dian?"

Dian,—(with a worried look) "We—ll, I didn't know, but anyway I don't care, for my "mem' verse" says to love them that hate you so I love him anyway."

was absolutely no excuse for sin. To each repentant sinner Christ has said, "Go thy way and sin no more."

Dorothy Gutzman and Luetta Newman from Santa Ana Junior College visited Marion Hester Thursday, November 21.

A final on the first half of the book was given in Anatomy on Wednesday, November 20.

From observation it has been noted that Florence Costely and Helen Nave have sat at the first table for breakfast and supper for several weeks. When asked who else sat there, Florence replied "Uh huh" (who is he?)

The entire student body had their picture taken Thursday morning during the Physical Education period. The picture was exhibited and orders taken for copies that afternoon.

Teachers Institute will be held at S. C. J. C. on December 2, 3, and 4.

The first grader's "Reading" teacher for this last week was Hazel Lay. She states that the little ones are more harmless than she thought they would be.

These Normal students are certainly going to be A-1 teachers when they get through at S. C. J. C., for they really are getting experience. They have now decided on what new classes they will have to teach for the next six weeks.

"Coming events cast their shadows before." Such is the case of the Bible Doctrine's class. Professor Sorenson has told them that they will be writing on a 1500 to 2000 word theme, beginning next week.

Alumni

"Are my eyes deceiving me?" thought a startled student. "How long has this student tried desperately to collect his wits and figure out the length of time, but another surprise checked the process. "Am I dreaming? or — no. That is the girl who finished a piano course here about-oh-how long ago was it? That must be her husband with her. She used to be Violet Giddings but what is her name now? I'll ask — but, there's Bill! Wonder what he's doing up here? William Clawson was cellist in the orchestra. That reminds me. His sister Kathrine is married now. Cellists? Well, there's Arthur Edmister. He always played in orchestra with Bill. If there are no more surprises in the next few minutes I'll get it figured out how long ago it was that Walter Squire was here. His brother was that tall one Horman. La Sierra Heights they called him. "Six foot six, legs like sticks" is what Criterion's "Who's Who" said. But I guess I better listen to what's being said. That's what I'm here for."

SPIRITUAL ENDEAVOR BALANCES EDUCATION

In order to have a well-balanced education at S. C. J. C., the students of both homes indulge in study, recreation, and last but not least, in Spiritual endeavor. Nothing is so essential, so uplifting, so enabling, nothing molds one's character more than being on a good wholesome diet of pure, clean, Bible helps and prayer.

It is said that "In practical ways we ride in automobiles, rail cars, airplanes, when the needs of the hour demand. But for the well-being of our inner selves, we must walk with God."

And so the occupants of Gladwyn Hall and Mu Beta Kappa have organized into bands and have a little prayer meeting every Wednesday evening.

It is well to note that all are members of some band. The young ladies of Gladwyn Hall were given a list of prospective band leaders and had the opportunity of choosing whichever leader they desired.

The ones who take charge each week are as follows: Carol Bergquist, Helga Birch, Ruth Filbach, Taliha Neuman, Evelyn Palmquist, Ruth Phillips, Eleanor Rothgeb, Grace Scott, Barbara Steen, Mary Sidmore, Marguerite Tarello and Hazel Walde.

Across the campus, as one approaches Mu Beta Kappa, one will see the young men gathering in similar groups, once, a week, with the following leaders: Elmer Bryson, Ben Buck, Norman Cole, Merle Hoffman, Frank Judson, Harold Peck, and Olaf Locke.

With a program as this consistently carried out, surely heaven will come closer to any back-slidden soul.

Various Nations Represented Here

Nationality does not decide character, but character is evident in many of our S.C.J.C. students who come from far away lands and states. For instance we have students who are Swedish, Italian, Irish, English, German, Chinese, Spanish, French, Russian, Danish and Holland-Dutch.

It is extremely interesting to know that there are two students in this school who have only been in the United States for the last four years. Kirstine Knudsen and Helga Birch are direct from Denmark. When Miss Birch arrived here in the States, she could not speak a word of English. But with a deep determination and desire to learn the English language, she studied from the first grade on and in three years completed her twelve grades of English. It is interesting to note that she even passed the entrance examination of Introductory English, which many native born Americans failed to do.

Mabel Liu comes to us from the Hawaiian Islands, where she completed her academy work in our mission school in Honolulu.

Thousands of miles beyond this place is the last home of Laurretta Brines and Gladys Barto, for their parents are workers in the "land of Sinim."

QUESTIONNAIRE REVEALS FACTS

The answers to a questionnaire recently given the student body revealed a number of interesting facts. It was found that there are 163 brunettes, 50 blondes and 7 red-heads. There are 22 folks who wear shoes size ten or over. The smallest foot seemed to belong to a girl who wears size three. There are 34 fellows (we hope) who are six feet tall or over. The shortest girl is four feet ten inches. Seventy four S.C.J.C.-ites claim to have had ancestors who came over on the Mayflower.

Out of 220 students who answered the questions, only 51 had never been away from home before coming to S.C.J.C. Out of this large group, there are 26 students whose fathers are clergyman which may mean something, and still it may not. Conversation does not grow uninteresting for at least 55 individuals at S.C.J.C. They have had major operations. We also find that the colporteur army has enlisted 39 of the students. There are only 53 folks who do not enjoy cultural Saturday night programs. It seems that 95 of the students aren't modernized to the extent that they prefer showers to bathtubs.

There are only 74 native Californians in this group. However, there are quite a few who were born outside of the United States. Some of the foreign countries represented are: China (4 students,) Hawaii (2), India, Sumatra, Denmark, England, Ireland, Africa, and the Philippines. We have 2 individuals who came from Canada.

On the straw vote regarding the Criterion, there were 58 students who expressed their dislike for the paper, against 162 who do like it. Although the students were asked not to sign their names to their ballots, Robert Garner very helpfully signed his along with a suggestion that there should be more of the students' names put in the paper.

STUDENTS URGED TO BEAR RESPONSIBILITY

Urging the students to learn to bear responsibility while still in school, Prof. J. P. Fentzling interested the students in chapel Monday, by illustrations and a reading.

Man's responsibility are three-fold; reflex or involuntary, voluntary, and, the response, so important it is called—responsibility.

Responsibility is probably the most important thing toward reaching success in life. Commit-

CHORUSES TO SING "MESSIAH"

Sunday afternoon, December 8, at 4:00 p.m. the "Messiah" by Handel will be given, in the third annual concert, at the Municipal Auditorium in Riverside. Three hundred and fifty voices, made up of the Riverside Oratorio Society, the San Bernardino Meistersingers, the Corona Chorus, and the S. C. J. C. chorus, with a thirty piece symphony orchestra will participate. Professor Harlyn Abel will direct the oratorio.

Sponsors of the presentation are the Riverside Musicians Association and the Riverside Ministerial Association. Soloists will be Blyth-Taylor Burns, soprano; Clemence Gifford, contralto; Thomas McGranshaw, tenor; and Fred McPherson, baritone. Pianists are Newell Parke and Barbara Scott.

General admission is 15 cents for adults and 10 cents for children. Tickets may be purchased in the A.S.B. office, at Applegate's store in La Sierra, and at the Keystone Drug Store in Riverside.

STUDENTS TREK TO JACK FROST

Delicious apples and roasted marshmallows attracted about 45 dormitory students to Jack Frost Lake Saturday evening. Most of the students remaining at the school during the vacation went to Jack Frost Lake on a wagon from the farm. Harold Peck was the trustworthy driver.

Miss Wallace started out sitting on a whole apple box but before she reached home again, only one slat remained of the box.

While some of the boys gathered wood for a fire the rest enjoyed a few games. Marshmallows and apples were then roasted.

MISSION INN VISITED BY DORMITORY GIRLS

Riverside and the Mission Inn was the destination, Thanksgiving evening of the twenty dormitory girls who stayed at the school during vacation. The girls enjoyed an organ concert played by Newell Parker of Riverside. Ruth La-Gourge, popular contralto, sang several vocal numbers.

"The best organ concert I have ever heard," were Rose Tarello's sentiments.

Present at the home of Barbara Stearns on Thanksgiving evening were Merle Hoffman, Lema MacKinnon, Erman Stearns, Roger Neideigh, Lester Patterson, Darrel Dunham, Karl Seiss, Quaile

ORCHESTRA AND CHOIR ENTERTAIN IN CHAPEL

The S.C.J.C. orchestra and A Capella choir offered entertainment for the student body in the chapel program of Wednesday, November 27.

Professor Harlyn Abel led the A Capella, in its first chapel presentation of the year, in a group of selections. A Thanksgiving hymn, "Come, Ye Thankful People, Come;" "Blessings of Peace," by Arkhangelsky; and "O Holy Light," by D. H. Jones were the choir numbers.

The orchestral part of the program opened with "Warriors' March," by Barch. The "Poet and Peasant Overture," by Suppe, followed, with a cello obligato by Claude Steen. The third number was a trumpet solo, by Professor L. H. Cushman, with orchestra accompaniment, "O Danny Boy," Londonderry Air. Selections from Tannhauser, by Wagner, followed, and the program concluded with the "Olympian March," by Brown.

YOUTH'S CONGRESS

Never before in the history of S.C.J.C. has this college had the privilege of being the center where the Youth's Congress carries out its programs.

Just think, right here in Southern California, every S.D.A. young person will have an opportunity to be present. Everyone should be making preparations and planning their work so that on January 23-26, in the year 1936, they will find their way to S.C.J.C.

Many problems of modern youth will be considered, and helpful instructions will be given which the youth of today can not afford to miss.

What a great gathering that will be! Can anyone afford to miss it? Indeed not! With such an effort put forth by the leaders of our denomination, all should endeavor to participate in this outstanding event.

A. S. B. BANQUET YEAR'S BIG EVENT

A. S. B. members are looking forward to the A. S. B. banquet, the big event of the year, which is to be held the night of December 15. Harry Sciarrillo, chairman of the program committee, when asked for his plans just laughed and said "The program will be a 'knock-out'." A very delicious menu is being planned by Grace Scott the chairman of the "Eats" committee.

Alyce Van Tassell, chairman of the decoration committee, said the dining room will be decorated in typical holiday colors to bring out the festive spirit of the Christmas season.

This banquet is to be exclusively for students of the college. As it is sponsored by the A. S. B., only those who have student body tickets or else pay fifty cents are eligible to attend. It promises to be one of the main events sponsored by the student body as well as one of the principle events of the school year.

PRESIDENT TALKS TO COMMERCIAL CLUB

President Cossentine was present to talk to the Commercial Club members at their second meeting this year which met at the home of Miss Hopkins, Tuesday evening, November 26. He stressed the value of obtaining an education in a Christian institution.

Several reasons were given as to why students should be trained in denominational schools. Seventh-day Adventist leaders are looking for men and women, who have been trained in these institutions, to fill places of responsibility in the work of God.

The importance of encouraging attendance in Christian education was brought out when he said that the Catholics think the mere visiting in other churches is a sin. They also require their members to enroll in their own denominational schools, if possible.

Hope of obtaining a position in conference offices or other denominational work was extended to the group of young folk who sat listening to the College President.

"God is depending on these young people to finish His work," he said in closing.

Before the talk, a deliciously cooked meal was served which consisted of sweet potatoes and Spanish rice, with sandwiches, hot chocolate, jello, and last but not least, the "Hopkins chocolate cake."

EDITORIAL

WHAT'S WRONG WITH THE CRITERION?

You would probably be amused no little if you had an opportunity to see some of the suggestions that came in from the student body for an improvement of the CRITERION—everything from the ousting of the editor and yours truly to a request for a riddle column. Regardless of this, we feel that it is impossible to please everybody; therefore we still have a little ambition to put this paper over in a big way this year. Even at that there were some very helpful suggestions handed in; and you folks who offered this type of criticism can be sure that your efforts were truly appreciated even though at times our's aren't.

The individuals who asked for a humor column and more spirit might be interested to know that there are some students who asked that the paper be "tuned down" to some extent. What would you do in this predicament?

We realize that the head is far from a satisfactory one. Just now there are a few plans under way that should remedy this situation. I feel that I would not be exercising discretion were I to write the circumstances which are causing the mediocre printing that some of you folks complained about. I might say for your own edification that at present the COLLEGE PRESS is unable to print the paper, but we are hoping that it will soon be printed there.

All other suggestions have been given serious consideration, and we want to have all of you feel free to offer any suggestions which you think will improve this, our school paper.—C.N.

Little Brothers

By Virginia Smith

Little brothers are always contrary. The big sister sometimes wonders if big ones are as bad. They always do the wrong thing at the right time. When the big sister is a little girl and has her playhouse nicely arranged and her doll put to sleep, in comes the little brother to "mess" things up. Then when she gets angry and cries, he only laughs at her and makes her feel worse. She can't plan a tea party with her playmates, for the little brother is always around, and if he is finally invited, he is sure to be a "pig" and eat all the cake.

Then when she gets a little older and has to help mother around

ELDER E. W. DUNBAR SPEAKS IN CHURCH

The Sabbath Church hour of November 30, was occupied by Elder E. W. Dunbar, Y. M. P. V. secretary of the Southeastern-Arizona Conference. Elder Dunbar's talk included statistics from the report of the Fall Council, and references to the maintenance program of the Seventh-day Adventist Church.

A second avenue of support for missionary endeavors is the Week of Sacrifice. The official Week of Sacrifice for the church closed Sabbath, November 30, but the school is to have the privilege of participating in such a week from December 7-14.

I Am a Normal Person

By Bob Cossentine

"And for Friday," the teacher ambles on, "for Friday I have decided to make one of my favorite assignments." He pauses here, while with an air of fading hope, an almost united sigh, portending of the worldly cares far too great to number, about to be capped by the crowning injustice of the ages, is released from the class.

He continues. It is as bad as I had expected. "For tomorrow you may write an informal essay on any subject you wish to choose." This last little cruelty decided it, not even a subject to grasp. The teacher looks around for the smiles of appreciation which he apparently expects, but in his warm feeling of benevolence he is satisfied by the one or two smiling faces, prodigies far too good to breathe the same atmosphere as mere mortals such as I.

Class breaks up and I wander dazedly from the class room. Gradually my cluttered mind takes on a semblance of order. I am to write an informal essay. It must be natural, not too short or too long, humorous but not forced. But tomorrow is really a long time away when you start calculating. There are still 24 hours before that essay is due; I should worry; there should be time enough.

Night comes. Memory slowly awakens conscience. I must rise to the occasion. Proposed subjects race through my mind to be rejected as quickly as they come. "On Bringing Up Parents;" this is no good since I already have a preconceived idea of the teacher's attitude. "Friendship;" here never was an essayist who failed to write on this subject. "The Trials of the Proverbial School-Boy;" if I started on this one there would be slight hope of finishing it in one evening. These and countless others lay in the recesses of my mind, rejected.

The minute hand of the clock is now in the same place it was when I first started. The hours of my beauty sleep are far past. I begin to feel a yearning for the comforts of a peaceful pillow. I wander on, recording my befuddled thoughts. I hand in my paper in the hope that it may touch a sympathetic chord in some one's heart.

EARLY MORNING CHORUS

"How in the world can we end this essay? Say roommate, get up and help me; the rising bell rang fifteen minutes ago."

"Is it time for the worship bell?" is the only answer.

A gentle ring, a sudden thud, clothes fly, stairs descended three at a jump—and what do you think? My roommate enters the parlor duly composed and on time for worship. While I, her roommate, after being up for an hour or so, barely reach the worship room before the tardy bell sounds.

Well, at any rate my essay's completed.

When They Were Our Age

Dean Crandall once worked as a molder in a steel foundry at Edgerton, Wisconsin. He wrote a story of his experiences here which won the first prize in the Narrative Section of the first Youth's Instructor award contest.

We find that Professor Reynolds had artistic ambitions when a youth. When he was eight years old he won a sled from Wanamakers' store in Philadelphia for a water color picture. Shortly after this, his family moved to Long Beach where the sled was of no use except as a window display in a delicatessen store. Later he received a $100 scholarship to the Federal School of Designing in Minneapolis.

Miss Wallace was reared on a cattle range in Monterey County. Much of her younger life was spent riding horse-back. During her academic days she gave chalk talks and played the piano for a tent effort. She made her way the last year of her Normal Course by teaching music in the lower grades.

On Fingerwaving

By Bethene Hedrick

The most common art of the nineteenth century seems to be the art of fingerwaving. Many thousands of dollars are turned in each day to the operators of beauty parlors. It seems to be a good business; or is it, I wonder, a "racket." Women of all ages, sizes, shapes, and with various degrees of intelligence, are staunch supporters of this profession. Fingerwaving is no longer considered a luxury. It is considered a necessity. Even a small child realizes the importance of this art as she grows up under the influence of a fingerwaved mother, aunt, sister, or even a grandmother. I understand that recently the male species of the human race have entered the race for this form of beautification, also.

One beautiful morning I set out for school in much of the usual way. The sun was shining beautifully, and it was a wonderful summer's day—during the last part of November. Noticing a fellow-student a few yards ahead of me, I said to myself, Ah! Sht has had a fingerwave." I walked into the classroom and noticed there another fingerwave, worn by the instructor. (This was a lady instructor.) Leaving the classroom, I returned to the Dormitory where I met the Dean of Women who had also been recently fingerwaved. After a few hours the siren blew for lunch. What a relief! Thinking at last that here would be something which would divert my mind from the effects of this so-called "art," I hurried to my table. Upon glancing at the students at the table, I saw a fingerwave boldly staring me in the face. I turned away. The sun had gone behind a cloud; the day was no longer beautiful. After the usual, "You may go," (which was said by a fingerwaved "kitchen cop") I turned

By John Hopkins

"Well I guess that leaves me out," comes a sleepy response. Then again all is quiet.

Late Thursday night, or I should say early Friday morning, tired and sullen, I piled into bed after grilling over a several thousand word theme, demanded by my honored and esteemed instructor in English. Tired in brain and limp in body, I longed to sleep the rest of the night.

I had no more than closed my eyes when my neighbor came roaring up the hill and rattled into the driveway. His "jalloppe's" mutterings and groanings drove sleep from my heavy-lidded eyes. He was greeted by his dog Susie, with very great rejoicing. Her loud barking was echoed by the shrill yaps of a hungry coyote far up on the steep hillside.

Then I heard the best alarm clocks in the neighborhood, the four roosters that have a permanent home in the backyard of my next door neighbor. They started to crow at the most unreasonable time of the night, and I longed to throw a brick at them, but no bricks were handy.

Next came the car on the other side, a nurse from the county hospital, honking her horn for someone to open the garage door. By this time I was gnashing my teeth with anger, but that didn't help me to sleep. Her dogs, Phoebe and Tiny rejoiced vociferously at her coming, and then suddenly turned their attention to the cats, chasing them round and round the house, and up on the fence of the chicken yard from whence the cats derisively yowled their defiance.

The paper boy delivering the Los Angeles Times next door was quickly followed by James Aitchison's milk truck with its bottles playing a merry tune.

Soon the baby in the house across the alley started to imitate the Swiss Yodelers by shouting a greeting to the morning sun. Mingling with her cries was the rest of the chorus—cows moored, chickens cackled, goats bleated, turkeys gobbled, geese quacked, birds chirped, eggs frying, pans banging, back doors slamming, everything was joining the chorus.

All at once came a heavy rapid fire continuous pounding on my door, and I heard, "John, John, are you asleep? Time to get up and get ready for school!" As if ever anyone could have slept through such a din.

The informal essays in this issue were written by the class in English Composition.

Us and Us

By Dale Nesbitt

"Got anything to eat?" The customary greeting of my roommate is broken short as she notices the troubled countenance of her roommate. "Cheer up, it can't be as bad as all that, what's the trouble? An informal essay! Is that all? Well you just listen to me. How about roommates?—I'd be a rare subject."

"A rare subject you'd be all right," answered her roommate, just remembering the night she slipped into bed after lights were out, only to find it full of nails, books, scissors, book-ends, can openers, and a big chair tucked carefully in at the foot.

"Hey, you can't put that in, Tain't fair." The essays progress is interrupted as my roommate reads what her roommate has just written. "After all, remember, you were the originator of such an idea."

"Shhhhh? Are you girls talking out loud again?" It's the monitor interrupting this time.

Silence. The ink dried on my pen.

"Oh for an idea!" "I am your roommate and don't you dare tell him who I am," comes suddenly from a pile of books on the opposite side of the table.

"Oh dear, lights are out." Time passes.

"Goodnight roommate," calls one to the other. All is quiet until, "Say have you heard the latest? So and so is going to take such and such to the A.S.B. banquet."

"Oh I hadn't heard that, but Whoosie asked Whatsie to go with him."

"Sin has many tools but a lie is the handle that fits them all."

the house, the little brother is always there to dirty things up. He can't see why he should pick up his clothes, or keep his room tidy. He never makes his bed, but usually leaves it in a pitiful state of disorder. One would think he had had a fight in his sleep. He leaves the wash bowl as dirty as his hands and face were in the first place, to say nothing of the towel. Then he wonders why his big sister is everlastingly fussing at him.

The big sister looks eagerly forward to the time when the little brother will grow up. She wonders if he will ever get old enough to want to be tidy and orderly, and want to give her a little brotherly attention. But alas, he then gives his attention to someone else's sister. The big sister finally decides that little brothers are mostly a bother.

I heard a student say the other day, "Well, I just don't have the courage to face that exam." Now wasn't that odd?

It is very often many of us have the same feeling, but if only when we feel so discouraged, we should think of how many others depend on us to be courageous enough to work out our difficulties it might help us to get up our courage. We all know it often takes backbone and mental stamina to face many of our exams. If you have fallen down in these last exams try and get a new start and just remember that self is the hardest person to conquer. (And they said Zinn wasn't philosophical.)

It may be well to add here that one should be careful and not join the Foot Swallowers Club—every time they open their mouth they get their foot in it.

In reading over a column in a paper I read an item which might be of interest to some of you who are more censorious. It read as follows:

The annual cyclone out in Kansas ripped the tin roof off a farmer's cowshed. He baled it up and shipped it to Henry Ford. A few weeks later he got the following reply: "It will cost you $31.95 to get your Ford repaired. What under the sun did you run into?" (No advertisement—they are driven by the best.)

They say in the foreign field, one almost forgets that slang expressions exist. It might pay some

Alumni

Arizona and the alphabet both begin with "a," but Arizona also ends with "a." That's funny. I didn't intend to say that. It must have been this card from Flora Potter that made me think of it. She's in Arizona, going to the Arizona State Teachers College.

What she says is really encouraging—at least to me. She says the Alumni column never interested her while she was at S.C.J.C. Now she reads it every week. She and Edgar Burkhardt (he's in school there too) speak of S.C.J.C. very often, even if they are in Arizona.

Speaking of Arizona reminds me that Mr. and Mrs. Lyon Lindbeck (Roberta Belding) and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Prichard have been holding a tent effort in Winslow. Since they finished the nurses' course at Paradise Valley Sanitarium they are well fitted to carry on all phases of such an enterprise.

ed and walked in line toward the counter of food. There a finger-waved server served my food, and a fingerwaved checker checked the price in her book. After sitting at the table a few minutes, a bell was rung and the matron made an announcement. I looked up. She, too, was beautifully fingerwaved. I decided to forget my personal reaction to the matter and to enjoy my lunch.

The writer of this article has noticed the wearers of these famous waves on the campus, in the buildings, in the classrooms, in the dining room, in the dormitory, in the laboratories, in worship and in the chapel. They may be seen at any meeting or social. Sometimes the ten-cent curlers still adorn their fair heads, which adds to the beauty of it, I suppose.

Feeling as I do, that there is a time and place for everything, and that all the time and every place is not the time and place for finger-waves, I think that something should be done about it. But, as the saying goes, "Every cloud has a silver lining," so I suppose, reason these victims. "Today I am sleeked down, wet, and waved; tomorrow the world benefits by the neatness and the beauty of my hair, each wave in its separate place, each curl in perfect order." This seems to be the only reasoning of it all. What a waste of money and of time! Oh (The vainness of it all is apparent.

Upon meeting someone who is not all glued down with these stick-tight waves, I feel as though it were quite an unusual thing; yet it seems wonderful, indeed, to be looking upon someone who is a natural, unconscious of the work being done by the local beauty parlors. I feel as though I could not pass these girls without greeting them with a smile of sincere admiration. Perhaps the situation balances after all.*

*Publisher's Note: This article would have been enlarged upon more had not the writer, being as weak as the other members of her sex, been in a rush to get through in order to get a much needed fingerwave.

MEDICAL STUDENTS TAKE APTITUDE TEST

With aching heads, perspiring brows and cramped bodies, sixteen advanced pre-medical students emerged from room 304 of the Science Hall on Friday afternoon at approximately 3:15 p.m. Results having been, the cause was the medical aptitude test which was taken. It is given as a requisite for entrance at the College of Medical Evangelists at Loma Linda.

It consisted of true-false statements (here is the simplest one, "Montgomery Ward's is a mail-order house"), a scientific vocabulary, spelling, justified and unjustified statements, and condensed material upon which questions were to be answered. The test, as several students stated, was the hardest they had ever taken.

Those who took it were, Jean Marie Petrik, Murl Quick, Harriet Simmons, Millicent Grant, Frances Paul, Waldo Nelson, Horace Kelley, Iner Ritchie, Paul Bunch, Donovan Phillips, Don Smith, Harold Peck, Arthur Cummings, Harry Sciarillo, Ivan Martin, and Carl Willers.

Elementary Teachers Convene at S.C.J.C.

C. A. Russell, head of the General Conference Educational department, explained the important work of the elementary school teacher to the Teacher's Institute at S.C.J.C., December 2-4.

Professor Russell came to the institute from Washington, D.C., where he leads out in the elementary educational work throughout the world. For thirty years he has been working in this field. The teachers considered it a special treat to have him with them.

Professor H. G. Lucas, Education Secretary of the Pacific Union Conference, acted as chairman. Discussions of ninth and tenth grade problems were under his supervision, while Miss Jensen, Normal Instructor at S.C.J.C., supervised grades five to eight. Mrs. K. Adams directed the study for the teachers of grades one to four inclusive. At these round tables all teachers took part in relating their experiences and methods of teaching.

Approximately 115 teachers from Southeastern California-Arizona and Southern California Conferences attended the helpful lectures on geography, arithmetic, manual training, and spiritual ideals of junior work.

In appreciation of what S.C.J.C. had done for them during the institute, the teachers took a collec-

S.C.J.C. PREPARES FOR YOUTH RALLY

Preparations are being made for a large rally of the Southeastern California-Arizona young people to gather at La Sierra, January 23-26, to discuss various problems.

During this first Youth's Congress ever held in this conference, there will be songs of devotion, prayers for the youth, and examinations of the duties that God requires of them.

Such a meeting as this should inspire every individual present to higher ideals, and to uphold the standards that have been given the youth of today.

Now, more than ever before, should they gather together to fight the battles of temptation that Satan has put before them. And what a satisfaction it will be to meet with so many other young people who are having to meet the same problems and to gain strength from the members that will gather.

PURPOSE OF S.D.A. COLLEGES PORTRAYED

At the Glendale Sanitarium chapel, on Friday evening, Dec. 6, a program of music and talks, which was designed to portray the purpose, life, and accomplishments of the Seventh-day Adventist colleges, was presented by S.C.J.C. students.

Clifford Barber spoke on the religious influences of college life, contrasting public and parochial colleges. Mr. Barber emphasized the fact that many teachers of public colleges have the definite purpose to destroy their students' belief in that "old-fashioned" book, the Bible, while in S.D.A. colleges Biblical authority is constantly held before the student.

The cultural, refining by-products of college life were discussed by Jean Marie Petrik, who spoke of the extra-curricular activities, such as the A.S.B., the M.V. Society, the CRITERION, the A Cappella, and various clubs and the part they contribute in producing what is known as a well-rounded education.

Jerry Smith portrayed campus life. The college life is one of the busiest and happiest there is. Here it is that one forms life-long friendships. When one has finished school, he looks back to the good times he had, not on the kind of grades he obtained.

Charles Gallion played two violin solos, "Poem," and "The Old Refrain," while Virginia Smith sang "O Loving Father," and "Prayer Perfect."

Elder Dunbar Tells Value of Prayer

To win our voluntary love is God's way of saving man, Elder E. W. Dunbar, Missionary Volunteer Secretary for the Southeastern California-Arizona Conference, told the students in vespers, Friday evening, December 6.

In I John 4, Elder Dunbar read that "God is love," and that God first loved sinners. If one loves God, then he will love all brethren but if one does not have love for all people, then he is not a true child of God.

In the Bible is the will of God. Elder Dunbar explained this thought by reading from Hebrews 10:35-37, "For ye have need of patience, that after ye have done the will of God, ye might receive the promise."

Prayer is the greatest thing one can learn. It was after John Knox had prayed all night asking God to give him Scotland that God gave him Scotland. "Asking and living according to his will is the paramount condition of prayer."

HANDEL'S "MESSIAH" GIVEN IN RIVERSIDE

Handel's glorious oratorio, "The Messiah," was given Sunday, December 9, in the Riverside Civic Memorial Auditorium.

Sponsors of the production were the Riverside Musicians' Association and the Riverside Ministerial Association.

An inter-community chorus consisting of 350 voices made up of members of the Riverside Oratorio Society, the San Bernardino Meistersingers, the Corona Chorus, and the Southern California Junior College chorus, participated in the oratorio.

Harlyn Abel, the college vocal instructor, directed the large chorus.

Four well-known soloists, Blythe Taylor-Burnes, soprano; Clemence Gifford, contralto; Thomas McGranahan, tenor; Fred McPherson, baritone; assisted in making the production a great success.

NEWTON LECTURES TO S.C.J.C. ITES

"If a man knows what he wants and is willing to work and to learn, he can reach his goal whatever it may be. Nothing can keep him from reaching it," Professor M. W. Newton, teacher of mathematics and astronomy at Pacific Union College, stated to the students in chapel Friday morning, Dec. 6. To illustrate this truth, he related the remarkable story of H. L. Cooper, famous American engineer.

With only a diploma to show for his ability, Hugh Lincoln Cooper at the age of eighteen, canvassed the engineering establishments of St. Paul and Minneapolis to no avail," he continued. "Since no one could use him, he took the best he could get. That was a job as stable boy from which he was advanced to an organ salesman at $200 a month. This job he quit for the Chicago, St. Paul, Milwaukee Railroad at $35 a month."

Then the Professor told how Hugh Cooper, harnessed the Niagara, a feat which was then thought impossible. Later he put a dam across the Mississippi, which all the leading engineers of that time said could not be done. Recently he designed the greatest electrical plant in the world for the Russian government. Among his many accomplishments was the beginning of the construction of the great Muscle Shoals dam in the Tennessee Valley.

In closing Professor Newton reiterated the importance of being willing to work and to learn in order to attain one's aim in life.

MEDITATION

Being of a somewhat humble origin, and by no means a less humble circumstance, I have never found it hard to appreciate the blessings of Thanksgiving.

Several months ago I was commissioned by a friend of mine to deliver a package to a relative of his residing in Belvedere Gardens and for the most part the Gardens are none too beautiful, and particularly, the one I visited. The home was scarcely a shack, and the occupants saturated with filth and crushed in the mat of the depression.

The man of the house was a tall saucer-eyed gentlemen, whom the "kids" called "Duke." He looked as if he hadn't eaten for weeks and the "kids" — well, the girls I would judge were about four and six years old, and the boy about nine. They were literally starved, and for clothing, were more or less native.

After having delivered the package, I proceeded to return home. As I was reminiscing what I had seen, life suddenly became realistic, and a comparison of my own circumstances with those I had just witnessed, seemed to be in order.

I boarded a street car, and for the first time in my life was thankful to give the token for the seat that was taken, — thankful that I didn't live in that shack, that I wasn't saucer-eyed, and the "kids" didn't call me "Duke" — thankful for almost everything. It seems so easy to be thankful, when we have a holiday or someone's unfortunate circumstances reminds us, that our own could be worse — but my wish for their constituency is: That we shall not soon lose the blessings or the spirit of the day which we have so recently celebrated.

STUDENTS ENJOY EVENING PROGRAM

Saturday evening, games and moving pictures were enjoyed by the students of S.C.J.C. in the College Hall.

First, games of volley ball and basket ball were played, which were followed by moving pictures and then more games—one, "a good old-fashioned game of dare-base"—and marches.

Moving pictures were about the winter sports in Quebec, shark fishing, submarine pictures, and, as the old-fashioned saying goes, "A good time was had by all."

tion for a gift to leave with the College.

Second year Normal students, as well as teachers, were guests of the Conference during the institute.

Elder E. W. Dunbar, Missionary Volunteer Secretary of the South-eastern California-Arizona Conference displayed the J.M.V. supplies to be used in the schools.

The temperance problem and the heavy responsibility of the grade school teacher was emphasized throughout the institute.

Importance of Choice Stressed to Assembly

"God never compels us to come to Him. It is a matter of our making a choice; failing to choose is in itself choosing," declared Professor C. A. Russell, Superintendent of Elementary Education of the General Conference, to the students and teachers assembled in the chapel the last day of Teacher's Institute, Wednesday, December 4.

"It is easy," continued the speaker, "to go with the crowd on the wide way to destruction. But there is a narrow and straight way which leads to the eternal city. This way is covered with the blood-stained footprints of our Saviour. We cannot travel both ways; either we are for Him or we are against Him."

Professor Russell reminded us that although God is not dependent for help to finish His work, He is planning to use all, and illustrated his point with the experience of one of the young men in a training camp during the last war. With card games and profanity all about him, this boy kneeled in prayer before retiring his first night in camp. Talking stopped, and cards were stacked as the players saw the boy in prayer. The next morning one of the other soldiers walked six miles, from the opposite end of the camp, to ask the boy to show his the way to the Saviour.

When They Were Our Age

Mrs. Sorenson has had a most interesting life, I think. When she was fourteen years of age she came West with her father and grandmother to obtain a homestead in Oklahoma. All the prospective homesteaders had to remain on the Kansas state line until they fired a cannon at 12 o'clock and then they could go in and claim their property. Mrs. Sorenson's father obtained 220 acres of good land. At 16 years she taught a school of 40 children. She has always liked teaching and from the time she was three or four years she taught her dolls and used to line little kittens up and teach them.

Elder Sorenson has always been very fond of reading books and traveling. He used to plan trips and when unable to fulfill his plans in reality, he read books of travel to satisfy himself. He has taken one long trip—that was from Denmark to the United States and he has traveled almost all over the United States.

Miss Scott is to be commended —she went through school without a single unexcused absence for seven years. We ought to try it—don't you think so? She attended school at P.U.C. and while there worked in the business office and the registrar's office. That is probably why she is such a good registrar now.

FACTS ABOUT A.S.B. BANQUET

You probably have heard and read about the coming A.S.B. Banquet which is to be held Sunday night, December 15. However, if you have been observant in classes, in the dining room, or in the halls and the library, you may have noticed the following:

1. A few of the fellows, seeking to have added entertainment, have been asking young ladies to accompany them to this social function.

2. The program committee, wishing to put on a real performance or something to that effect, has already started to practice.

3. Grace Scott has been stationed in a conspicuous spot in the dining room trying to issue tickets to A.S.B. members and sell tickets to non-members. It seems that she is having difficulty inasmuch as the folks do not come after them.

4. We've noticed the chairman of the decoration committee in the library consulting Emily Post.

5. Professor Morrison in urging students not to worry about the dress proposition said "Leave your clothes at home, but bring your manners."

NEED OF TEACHERS PROPOUNDED

"Today the greatest single need is more teachers for our schools," Professor C. A. Russell of the General Conference set forth to a large number of students and visiting teachers in chapel, Monday, Dec. 2.

With the chapel filled to capacity, the speaker gave the following interesting figures concerning S. D. A. schools according to the records of 1934: 772 S.D.A. schools in the United States and Canada alone; 1,051 teachers; 16,722 in attendance.

There is no greater work in all the world than teaching; there is no higher work than ministry to the children, said the speaker.

"If you want to do something for a man, do it before he is a man," was quoted to emphasize the importance of educating the youth. People are coming to realize that if they save the children, they must place them in schools where God's name is honored. The need is for more schools and more teachers who will consecrate their lives to this ministry.

"May God give us teachers to find and to follow God's way in education," appealed Professor Russell in closing.

Alumni

Just listen! Four Mathiesens have attended our school. Willard, Kenneth, Aural, and Velma. Kenneth has been away from here longer than the others. He is enjoying his work in the College or Medical Evangelists. Aural and Velma were here only last year, and they are missed by all those who knew them. They graduated from the pre-nursing course, and

CAROLING DUSK

Incident

Once riding in old Baltimore,
Heart-filled, head-filled with glee,
I saw a Baltimorean
Keep looking straight at me.

Now I was eight and very small
And he was no whit bigger,
And so I smiled, but he poked out
His tongue and called me "Nigger."

I saw the whole of Baltimore
From May until December:
Of all the things that happened
there

That's all that I remember.
—Countee Cullen

This short selection is only a taste of the many delightful poems appearing in "Caroling Dusk," the anthology of Negro poetry just received in the College library.

To many it will come as a revelation, very much the same as discovering that Santa Claus was just a kindly parental hoax, to find that we have had and still do have Negro poets of no small ability. Perhaps you will have the startling experience of finding that that poem which you read the other day and with which you were more than ordinarily impressed, was composed by a literary son of Africa. Negroes do have a poetry, and it is a poetry of their own as you will soon discover when you begin to inspect it in this new addition to our library.

JOHN BROWN'S BODY
By Stephen Vincent Benet

Another type of poetry, and one which cannot fail to impress anyone who really gives this modern poet a chance to tell you his story, is found in this Pulitzer prize-winning poem of a few years ago.

The Civil War, that period of complex romance, patriotism and misplaced ideals the spirit of the age as lived in the lives of all classes of people, no greater or meaner than you and I, is taken up in an engaging style by poet Benet, and the result is one of the greatest productions of one of the most productive ages of American literature. The language is the speech of today, a tongue that we all can understand and the book, or at least certain passages of the book, has been found by your reviewer to be thoroughly enjoyed by individuals who had previously avowed that they "had no use for poetry."

"The next time you hear anyone make fun of his religion, ask him if he would like to have his remarks placed on his tombstone."

ACTIVITIES ENJOYED BY TRAINING SCHOOL

Woodwork, sewing, and a rhythm band are several of the interesting activities which the children of the grade school are enjoying at present.

Composed of 28 pieces the rhythm band is under the leadership of Mrs. A. Friend, who is aided by Louise Bunch. The children of the first three grades play in it, and as the second and third grades are entirely boys and there are only a few girls in the first grade, the band is made up almost wholly of boys. Formed with the purpose to instill a sense of rhythm in the children, it is proving very successful, and they plan to give a program in a short time.

Victor Anderson, a normal student, is in charge of the woodwork department of the seventh and eighth grades. In this department there are about 15 boys. Their latest project was a bench for the playground. Previous to this they made book ends for their school library and also broom holders.

An equally interesting course of sewing is offered for the girls under the direction of Mrs. D. L. Sturges. Already this year they have made hot water bottle covers, besides doing some very nice embroidery work.

are now looking forward to the capping exercise in which they plan to take part at Loma Linda soon. Willard was here only a short time, but he, too, became well-known. Now he is studying at San Gabriel. Each of these has chosen a profession closely related to that of the others. Technician, doctor, and two nurses. Only an interesting sidelight on the activities of our former class-mates.

Philosophy and Humor

I would like to extoll Professor M. W. Newton on his amazing chapel talk. Many students as well as I were greatly impressed by his manner of speech. It might be interesting to know that Miss Minnie Belle Scott, registrar, was once a student under Professor Newton. She also speaks very highly of him.

Remember it, was once said, "I cannot hear what you say for listening to what you are."

It was Washington who said, "Think before you speak."

Did you know Miss Velma Wallace and Miss Marjory Brewer are on a three-day diet. We do not know Miss Wallace's reason but have heard Miss Brewer is getting in shape to wear her party dress to the A.S.B. banquet. We wish you luck, Marjory.

Mr. Parkhurst said, "Sympathy is two hearts jugging at one load."

When the German I class completes a lesson, they are given a test. Miss Sorenson recently said that they were not tests but "written class periods," to which Conrad Hay responded, "That sounds like a sugar coated pill."

This world that we're a-livin' in
Is mighty hard to beat;
You get a thorn with every rose,
But ain't the roses sweet!
—Frank L. Stanton

The girls from the laundry wish to express their thanks to John McWhinney for coming up and telling them "ghost stories" when the light went out. It has been said when other methods have failed you might be able to scare people into working.

It might be interesting to the pre-meds to know that over the French College of Physicians may be seen the words cut in stone:
"I DRESSED HIS WOUNDS GOD HEALED HIM."

The Papers Say

Recently arriving at the CRITERION office was volume 1, number 1 of "The Spray," published by the Green River Falls C.C.C. camp, near San Diego. The editor of this thoroughly readable sheet is Henry Kuhn, editor of the CRITERION for 1934-35. Henry is doing very successfully at his new home in the mountains, having received a rating as Assistant Educational Advisor, a position in which he teaches classes, does publicity work, and handles important official reports.

Just one of the boys is Seiichi Takagi, who recently passed the entrance examination to Nippon University at Tokyo, Japan. Pictured in the Collegiate Digest, his smile is that of a typical freshman. Seiichi had just passed his eightieth birthday and decided to celebrate by getting that long delayed education. He is probably the oldest undergraduate in the world.

It was an entirely new sport, and one worthy of our attention, started by three Washington State College students, two co-eds and an aspiring radio announcer. They recently started the world's first "no-talkathon," pledging themselves not to speak a word anywhere, including classes, for at least twenty-four hours. The grand prize at stake was a five pound box of candy to be purchased by the loser. Incidentally, this is just what our president has been attempting to initiate for chapel periods for as long as I can remember.

Very unusual and enlightening, considering the source, was a recent editorial appearing in the "Junio, Collegian," progressive tri-weekly publication of Los Angeles Junior College. It was entitled "Biblical Prophecies," and contained an interesting comment, theologically quite sound, on the relation of the present activities of the Italian government to prophecies of Daniel and Revelation. Perhaps this indicates nothing, the tone being purely one of speculation, but at least it shows a seriousness of thinking which is being demonstrated by young people everywhere in the face of present world crises.

Those who know me best will sense a note of self-condoning in my including this item in my column for your edification. It seems that Dr. E. L. Hardy, recently president of San Diego State College and at present Director of San Diego's famous Museum of Natural History, a student at University of Wisconsin, saw an announcement of a poetry contest. It was a first and last attempt to be a poet, but, like us all, he needed spending money. He entered and took first place. A runner-up in the contest was the now famous author, Zona Gale.

And in closing, allow me to present the dubious title of prize bit of nonsense of the week to the following which appeared in "The

Such an unusual event as the laundry work being finished early called for a celebration which was held in the form of a marshmallow roast Thursday evening during supper. Group singing was led by Marjorie Brewer, and consisted mostly of "Three Cheers for the Red, White and Blue."

A.S.B. FEATURES COURTESY PROGRAM

Two talks on courtesy, given by Clifford Barber and Barbara Steen, were the features of a program given by the A.S.B. during the chapel period, last Wednesday, December 11.

"Do we do what we do because we are what we are, or are we what we are because we do what we do?" was the question asked by Mr. Barber in introducing his talk, the first of the two. He then pointed out that although this question is yet unanswered by psychologists, it is true that "what we do is the only index our friends have by which to tell what we are." In college life, the speaker said, one has a great opportunity to show what he is.

The thought of one's actions being applied to school life is summed up in this quotation which was read from H. C. Spillman: "The most any institution of learning can do is hold the light by which you may light your own candle. . . . It is, then, a question not of whether a man has been through college, but of whether the college has been through the man."

Mr. Barber concluded his talk by discussing several points of Christian courtesy which might well be observed.

Miss Steen's talk dealt especially with table and dining-room etiquette.

"When in doubt as to what silver to use, it is usually correct to work from the outside in toward the plate," she advised. During grandmother's day it was correct to tuck the napkin in at the neck, but this is hardly the thing to do now. Instead, the napkin, partly but not completely unfolded, should be placed in the lap.

A part of the program was the presentation of a banner to the winning band in the campaign for new students, conducted during the summer. The Los Angeles band, with Louise Bunch as leader, won the campaign with an increase of 115 per cent. The banner, red and

BAPTISMAL SERVICES HELD IN RIVERSIDE

Ten students went forward in the important rite of baptism on Sabbath afternoon, December 14. Elder C. M. Sorenson performed the ceremony at the Riverside Church.

Those baptised were Arthur Dockham, Blaine McDermott, Merritt Smith, Howard Francis, Dale Nesbitt, Gurli Paulson, Selly Tobey, Betty Riley, Lillian Harvey and Miss Rickard.

MUSICIANS EXPRESS HOLIDAY SPIRIT

"Christmas Overture," by the college orchestra, opened the Christmas Musical given by the music department of S.C.J.C., Wednesday morning at chapel.

"We Three Kings," by the A Cappella Choir lent a holiday air to the program. "O Come All Ye Faithful," was another number given by the choir.

Virginia Smith sang "O Holy Night," by Buck. "Jesu Bambino," by Yon was sung as a solo by Paul McIntosh.

The A Cappella Choir, accompanied by the orchestra sang "Silent Night," as a closing number, which made the students realize more than before that Christmas was very near.

CHRISTMAS SPIRIT VESTED IN PARTY

This year the Christmas party did not consist of the usual exchange of gifts among students. Instead, after worship on the evening of Wednesday, Dec. 18, all the students gathered at College Hall for an evening of games and entertainment. Professor Morrison had charge of the well-planned program.

Diversion from the previous plan of exchanging gifts was decided upon because of the intervention of the Week of Sacrifice. This year the students were enabled to give to the Lord, money that would ordinarily have been spent on gifts.

However, there was a Santa Claus, who gave each student a Yuletide gift from the College.

A.S.B. BANQUET SCORES SUCCESS

Lighted by the dim glow of candles, decorated with poinsettias, and with the tables put in an "E" formation, the dining room underwent a complete transformation for the A.S.B. banquet held December 15, at 6 p.m. This function proved to be an entertaining success, and rightly so, since it was the greatest social endeavor yet attempted by the Associated Students of S.C.J.C.

Barbara and Claude Steen played the music which greeted the students as they walked into the dining room. This string duet, violin and cello, was accompanied at the piano by Ada Beryl Mourer.

The place cards which immediately took up the students' attention had been cleverly made in the shape of poinsettias and written in white ink.

Soon everyone was seated and proceeded to eat a delicious fruit cocktail. The dinner course that followed consisted of mashed potatoes, peas, and roast. The salad was a fruit gelatine. Ice cream and cake were served for dessert.

The Men's Glee Club, under the direction of Professor Abel, made its initial appearance of the year. The two songs rendered seemed to be thoroughly appreciated by all present.

When the meal was completed, everyone went to the chapel where a mock trial was held to determine the innocence or guilt of one, James Homer Aitchison. Eddie Edison, a simian dietitian at the zoological gardens, was the star witness. Other witnesses for the state were Mrs. L. Brines, Mr. Merritt Smith, Sergeant Patrick McDermott, and Miss Adams. Mr. Aitchison took the witness stand on his own behalf. Mr. James Norton successfully prosecuted the case; but Mr. Dwight Herbert, who was the defending attorney, claimed a moral victory inasmuch as the jury recommended clemency and no incarceration for the culprit. It was also recommended that he be put under the guardianship of a responsible person. When lots were cast, Miss Murl Quick became Mr. Aitchison's legal guardian for a period of three months.

CHRISTMAS CHEER

Christmas is here! Long-looked-forward-to vacation, shopping for gifts, dazzling Christmas trees, holiday jaunts—don't they all make you feel just like chucklin and chortling all over?

Now the teachers can all take big, long breaths and say: "Ah, no more trying to cram things into drowsy brains, no more papers, no more school for two wonderful weeks!" And just as surely you can picture the students saying as they slam down their books: "No more lessons, no more studying, no more school for two marvelous weeks!"

And what vacation brings more cheer than the Christmas holiday? Brothers and sisters come home from college for a short but happy visit, families reunite, Christmas decorations are put up, gifts are exchanged, and on every hand is manifested the joyous, gleeful feelings of a whole nation which are bespoken in the familiar meaningful old phrase, "A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year"—to you.

—J.M.P.

At Christmas time as at no other time during the year, the world takes on an air of cheer, content, happiness.

Look about you as you go down the street amidst the scurrying throng! Examine the eager, joyous faces that you see! Do you find any long, sober faces among them? Even Jack Sour who is noted for his gloomy ways finds a slight smile breaking over his countenance as the spirit of Christmas creeps into his very heart.

Busy mothers and fathers are seen hurrying about buying gifts for their children. Excited youngsters are seen with their noses pressed tightly to the window glass gazing in awe at the array of articles displayed. People in all walks of life—the rich and the poor, the young and the old, are filled with a new zest for life!

Look to yourself this day! Are you Christmas spirited?

—B.R.

S.C.J.C. on Vacation

"Be it ever so humble there's no place like home." These words appear to hold true especially during the Christmas holidays. The student ranks of S.C.J.C. will be sadly depleted when the evening of Dec. 19 rolls around, because of the students going to their various destinations.

The many answers received from the questionnaire in chapel, Dec. 11, revealed the fact that many students are looking forward to the time when the stocky form of Saint Nicholas will put in its annual ostentatious appearance.

Studies will not be neglected altogether. Many plan to catch up on back studies and to concentrate on Introductory English, commonly known as "bonehead." Perhaps the teachers won't have to despair after all.

The 6:00 o'clock rising bell will perhaps be missed the least of all the school routine. A vast majority of individuals plan to become dormant for about 12 hours out of 24. But we wonder!

The Tournament of Roses will draw many of the students. As the parade is both interesting and educational, everyone enjoys attending.

Well As a final word from your editorial staff, make the best of your vacation, and a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to you all!

Seen From the Front Steps on a Rainy Day

By Millicent Grant

Having a serious moment, I paused on the front steps on a rainy morning to watch psychological effects on "passer-ins" and "passer-outs."

Somewhat amused I watched a member of the "effusive" sex daintily reading water and upon reaching the safety of the building was heard to disdainfully exclaim, "I knew it—just as I said, the first day I wear my new shoes it has to rain." She passed on "griping."

Not too long afterward I heard a horrible shriek, saw two arms flying through the air and finally settling on a newly "fingerwaved" (excuse me, Bethene) head, "The first day I had a fingerwave all year and it had to rain." That was sad "indeedy"—but soon a buxom young maiden came glibly through the door wreathed with smiles and enclosed in so-called "rain clothes" and shouting "Happy day—at last—what I've been waiting for—and here it is." She splashed here and there in the rain—seemingly quite happy.

So busy was I watching her that I failed to notice anything unusual until loud "guffaws" of laughter were heard coming from—everywhere. Glancing about I saw one of our "mighty men" (an occupant of M.B.K.) sprawled out on the wet side-walk. It reminded me of the long past when I had taken Zoology and heard of amoeba taking on different shapes.

Well, I was glad some one was happy. Personally, I couldn't see a good thing about it. I had both a new pair of shoes and a new fingerwave.

From the Business Office

"Pseudo poem dedicated to Ruth Fillbach to assist her recovery from her current indisposition."
—A. R. Smith.

Beathes there a maid with soul so dead,
Who never to herself hath said—
"An operation's what I need?"

'Tis queer how mortals calculate,
How prone they are to play with fate.
Some surgeon does the dreadful deed!

There's sure to follow much distress,
With pain and pills, with wounds to dress;
But the maid thinks, "There's recompense."

Whereas, before, her health did bar—
Now, every door stands wide ajar
To social circles—free access.

In other days her lack of talk Distressed her mind; her tongue would balk; ;
She could no surgery describe.

When with her friends more fortunate,
She could, at best, but speculate
How much to her had been denied.

Queer as it seems to a mere man,
Describing operations can Bring happiness and cause envy.

In separate hearts, as you would guess,
These feelings ebb and flow, and press—
Odd how these operations work!

You, now, have joined the favored group;
With joy unfeigned can memories troop
Through bloody facts and pains unnamed.

When with your friends you gather round
The social tea—the talk profound
Of operations is sure to be.

P.S. Please forgive me for not sending you an invalid card expressing regrets for your illness and the hope that you get well immediately. We miss you much and hope for your speedy recovery and return.

P. S. No. 2: You will not need to be told that the grace of the first two lines of this ode is due to the fact that most of the words were copied (from memory, however) and therefore do not partake of the vices and weaknesses of the remaining lines.

P. S. No. 3: Without meaning to be unkind, I hope that you remain ill until this reaches you, for it would be a calamity to have you get well before the "sympathy" expressed in this poem should arrive.

(Editor's Note: This was sent to Ruth Fillbach, a member of the business force, during her recent illness.)

The Final Gift

The year grows old and gray
And well nigh dead,
And poinsettias sway
With holly red.

The old year's backward glance
Sees much of pain,
Co-mingled with romance,
In sun and rain;

And though almost deceased,
Before it ends,
The year declares a feast
To make amends.

Then fades all thought of cost
While tarries here,
With things mechanic lost,
A hearty cheer.

Then holly wreathes are hung,
The Christ Child praised
With joyous carols sung
In voices raised.

The past with present blends
In Christmas dream,
And joyful prayer ascends
To One Supreme.

Then under winter skies
Its service through,
The year, exhausted, dies
And comes the new.

SEMINAR DISCUSS GOALS AND PLANS

President Conrad Hay occupied the Seminar hour of Friday, Dec. 13, by discussing the goals and plans of this ministerial group.

Mr. Hay outlined the duties of those attending. Members come to the Seminar for self-development, which is manifested in soul-winning, willingness to take part in the programs, and boosting Seminar attendance.

In order to make the Seminar an active group, it is planned to conduct services in neighboring churches in the near future. Everyone should be anxious to fulfill his part in this program.

Following the talk, Elder Sorenson gave his usual critical discussion and made helpful suggestions for public-speakers.

Newly-elected officers of the Seminar are: President, Conrad Hay; vice-president, Olaf Locke; secretary, Grace Scott; ass't secretary, Helga Birch; pianist, Ruth Cossentine; and official critic, Elder Sorenson.

SYMBOLS

By M. Tarello

Christmas trees
Are decked in silver
Golden cords their boughs adorn—

Silver stars
In radiance sparkle
From the topmost branch and stem—

Glints aglow
And vari-colored
Light the Christmas evergreen.

Christmas carols
Break the silence
On a cold December night—

Symbols, these,
Of warmth and kindness,
Of a feeling of good-will.

Christmas is
But one reminder
Of the joy we can impart—

Not the gift,
Nor yet the giver,
But the spirit of the heart.

This great theme
Will be our motive,
"Peace on earth, good will to men."

College Woodshop Becoming Well-Known

S.C.J.C. is favorably known for its excellent location, its well qualified teaching staff, its library and its laboratories. It is also becoming well known because of the quality value of products turned out by its industrial departments. Its newest industry is the "College Woodshop" which is now about a year and one half old.

The Woodshop has provided part time employment this school year for fifteen students. A small amount of sheet metal and cabinet work is done, but the chief activity is in the manufacture of two lines of folding beach lawn and porch chairs, and a very substantial yet very easy opened and folded household ironing board on all of which there is an ever increasing volume of sale.

The measuring out, ripping, cutting to length, smoothing, edges, and corners, boring, assembling, varnishing, and packing of these is being done by our students, who like to "earn while they learn."

For the canvas seats and backs used on the chairs, the girls use the shop's power-driven sewing machine. Canvas is purchased by the bolt, and the girls who sew this often have seams to do that are fifty yards in length. After hemming, the lengths are cut, folded, and cross hemmed, following which comes applying the finished canvas to the chairs.

Since July 1 more than 1250 chairs and several dozen ironing boards have been made and sold. Sales representatives are doing good work and present indications are that they are developing a good continuous market. Customers repeatedly remark that these products make a splendid appearance, are strong, neat, well finished, and are very well made throughout.

Just as Good as Anything

By Eleanor Rothgeb

It's one whole week 'fore Christmas,

I'm so happy I could sing.
'Cause that jus' gives me lots o' time,
T' be as good as anything.

My mother calls, "Oh! Johnny,
I've some beans in here to string."

I 'mos' break my neck t' get there,
'N I'm as good as anything.

Dad comes in from work tonight,
"John, I'd like to have you bring My old slippers." 'N I do it
Jus' as good as anything.

Peel spuds, wash dishes, bring wood,
It sure does make me hop n' spring,

But, when I peek under sister's bed
I know I'm good as anything.

'N Christmas Eve I march t' bed
Jus' like an ancient Roman King.
If you don't tell, they'd never guess
It's 'cause I've seen 'most everything.

N' Christ's dinner's good's punch
My belt gets tight as string.
When I eat some of every dish
'Cause it's good as anything.

A Christmas Thought

When I try to paint a picture
Of Christmas on my mind,
I think of holly berries,
Yuletide hymns and bein' kind;
Then I see the Christ star shining,
Hear the herald angels sing,
See the wise men and the shepherds
Worshipping their new born King.
It's such a lovely picture,
Half finite, half divine,
Really, God, I want to thank you,
'Cause you gave us Christmas time.

Revealing friendship friends, receiving new ones, and playing games in the College Hall were the features of the unusual Girls' Forum meeting held Thursday evening, December 12.

Names of all the girls were hidden in various places in the College Hall. After the friendship friends of the past six weeks had been revealed, a search was begun for these names, which were the new friendship friend of the finder. Speaking of unusual places—imagine looking up several feet above your head on one of the basketball goals and seeing three or four small packets which contained some names, just several feet above your reach. Various original methods were used and all the names obtained. The rest of the meeting was spent in playing games.

ENGLISH CLUB HOLDS MEETING

"I never knowed no person
What wouldn't find their speech Improved a lot by learning what
The grammars has to teach."

This may not be grammatically correct, but regardless it was part of a poem, "Grammar," given by Lyle Davis at the English Club, Saturday evening. Carl Holland sang the beautiful number "The End of a Perfect Day," followed by a short talk by Lester Willess on the "Analysis of Culture." Mr. Willess stated that "to be a cultured person one must have some sort of original philosophy," and also that in our present day, "intellectual snobbishness has ceased to exist in a cultured person's life."

"The Lost Word," a reading, was given by Helga Birch. In this selection the worth of the name of God in each person's heart was shown. The meeting was closed by a violin selection played by Charles Gallion.

RACE OF LEARNING

The search for the methods of a world pax is essentially an intellectual matter, a psychological problem; it is an attempt to save mankind from the insane obsessions of patriotism; it is a race of education to avert another and greater catastrophe. The fundamental thing in human association is and always has been education; for what our education is, that also is our social organization and the quality of our lives.—H. G. Wells.

Theatre Attendance Theme of Meeting

"Shall I go to the movies tonight?" was answered by several students in vespers Friday evening, December 13.

Moral color blindness was the theme of Calvin Trautwein's answer as he showed that when we continue to attend such places we become blinded to their wrong. When we see a stop sign, we are supposed to stop; color blind people cannot discern this.

It is a matter of personal decision whether or not we will attend the movies, Miss Geraldine Gatten pointed out.

Mr. Frank Judson explained that in order to get some educational pictures we see lots of the other kind. We are not able to pick out the good in a show without getting stung. A certain man was picking berries one day and picked a bee, he then thought he should get glasses. We may get stung in the same way in regards to theatre attendance.

WEEK OF PRAYER SERVICES ATTENDED

The church attended Week of Prayer services every night in the college chapel, from December 7-14, under the supervision of Elder, C. M. Sorenson.

A very earnest spirit was shown by the parish every evening by their faithful attendance. Elder Sorenson obtained one of the faculty members or some other capable and worthy individual to take charge of the meeting.

In order that those students who found it difficult to attend in the evening might share the blessings of the week, chapel was held every day and the faculty took charge.

The Week of Prayer is a week set apart by the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists for special consecration and heart searching among its members. A set of readings, prepared by the General Conference, is usually read in which the message most needed by the denomination is thus presented.

WEEK OF SACRIFICE MET BY STUDENTS

Coming as it does just before the holiday vacation, the "Week of Sacrifice" should have an especially deep meaning for the students. During the holiday season, there is so much needless expenditures of money, the benefits of which reach very few or none; while on every side of us are those who are in dire need of help, both spiritually and physically. It is not a duty but rather a privilege for us to participate in the "Week of Sacrifice." This special week, during which each one is expected to help financially in the furtherance of the work by means of some definite sacrifice, was set aside by the General Conference to give the laity an added opportunity to help.

It is supposed to be precisely what the name implies, a week during which some sacrifice is made the results of which will show financially. In order that one may have some definite standard, a goal of one dollar per college student and fifty cents per academic student has been set. This is to serve merely as a suggestion, not as a requirement; for the sacrifice should be judged not by the amount given but by the amount that is left after it has been given.

To Pre-Meds Only

By Louis Fisher

As the end of the school month draws near, the blow of final exams is always partially lessened by the realization that a month of vacation lies just ahead.

Not a vacation in the strict sense as we often apply to this term, but in a literal way. Because as one goes out to his or her respective hospital to work, it is a welcomed vacation. It is one thing to learn some facts out of the text-books, but is something else to attempt to apply them.

It is this gap between the theoretical and the practical that the co-ordinative plan attempts to bridge. Its existence today after years of trial and experience has proven the practicability of alternating school work with hospital technique.

One often hears the question, "Well, just what do you learn on your month in the hospital." This is a difficult question to answer, and yet it can be briefly summarized in three paragraphs:

First, the text-books generally give treatments whose technique will fit all circumstances. It is up to the individual to learn the different successful variations. Thus the confusion that might easily arise from so many treatments and variations of technique is somewhat simplified by actual hospital experience with these treatments.

Secondly, the ability to get along with all classes of people is an asset of unestimable value to a physician. One soon learns, too, to differentiate between the chronic patient, who complains all the time, and the sick one who is really suffering, and remains silent.

And thirdly, it is often claimed that the average medical student is usually suffering from an inflation in the cranial portion of the body (so-called "big head.") If true, it usually takes only one day in a hospital to cure this "sad case." Being an Orderly means just what it implies, and one soon finds from all concerned that if a certain task was not done right the first time, it will be the second.

Some of the more ambitious students might ask, "Do you do any studying on your month out?" I might answer as follows: The first month my anatomy and chemistry books were taken with me and the dust accumulated so heavily over them, I had difficulty in locating them at the end of the month. The second month, I only took my chemistry books with me, and now this third month, I was scarcely able to find room for my diary.

STUDENTS URGED TO ENTER HEAD CONTEST

Three dollars in cash will be given to the winner at the close of the contest, January 2, 1936, at 6 o'clock. Professor K. J. Reynolds, Mr. Curtis, Jean Marie Petrik, Tom Pellow, and Virginia Hurd act as the judges, and their decision is final.

Quite a number of the students have already entered the contest. Completed drawings should be deposited in a box provided for them in the CRITERION office.

No one was hurt when the car which comes from Loma Linda to S.C.J.C. every day, had an unavoidable accident last Friday on the way to school. The car had to be left in a garage for two days.

Pictures concerning the Spirit of Prophecy have been promised to be shown to this class next week by Elder Sorenson.

Now the second year typing students have a chart as well as the first year students which shows the progress of each one.

The trip to the Riverside Press by the Journalism class was postponed until next week, when it was discussed in class Tuesday.

Section I of the Anatomy "lab" has finally finished the dissection of their cats.

President E. E. Cossentine spoke to the students of Los Angeles Academy during their chapel period Tuesday, December 10.

The Mathematical Analysis classes have after much effort finished trigonometry for the year and now are working on algebra.

Believe it or leave it, there are seven books in the library on etiquette. Of these, two were checked out before the banquet and the librarian intimated that "Emily Post" seemed rather restless, for every time she turned around, "Emily" was out of order.

SECOND SEMESTER COURSES OFFERED

of Nursing will be of interest. The offerings in the field of mathematics are Mathematical Analysis and Rapid Calculation. Radio will also be continued and may be entered by those sufficiently prepared for the second semester's work.

The Music Department plans to begin a course in Harmonic Analysis. One can at any time start vocal or piano.

For prospective teachers the second semester Normal courses are those that instruct in methods of teaching Bible, Arithmetic, Art, Music, and Sewing. Psychology also begins.

Subjects especially adapted for commercial students are those in accounting, secretarial training, shorthand dictation, office training, and business law. The latter half of the course in economics can be taken and a class in Christian salesmanship will be offered. Typing can also be started.

The Social Science Department will conduct an interesting course in Current History and another in American Constitution, the latter subject required for graduation. Students may also enter the second half of the course in the survey of European History.

Imagine Gurli Paulsen's surprise when she discovered she had lost one entire pound!

Thirty-one fines disgrace the records of the library and this is a comparative few to the number sometimes. These fines are primarily incurred by the failure to return period books on time.

Radio students are constructing short wave receivers for radio lab. The opportunity is given to the students to construct sets for themselves or to construct sets using the materials of the school. However, each student must have some practical experience in receiver designing. Those who have formerly accumulated radio parts are building sets for themselves.

The program at the Woodcraft Home last Sabbath afternoon consisted of a talk on "Christ, the Saviour," by Allan Cossentine; a violin solo by Charles Gallion; a saxophone solo by Edwin Potts; and a vocal and instrumental number by Olaf Locke, Conrad Hay, and Charles Gallion.

Miss Wallace's car could have passed quite well for a bus, Thursday afternoon as she took Emma Flinn, Dale Nesbitt, and Berwyn Palmer to Riverside and Betty Riley, Murl Quick and Millicent Grant to San Bernardino.

Some new shelves have been installed in the laundry—no one seems to know what they are for.

Tall, thin, quiet, bashful—all these and more are necessary for a true description of a young boy who started to school here about six years ago. He is still tall, thin—but not quite so quiet nor quite so bashful. Strange, but he remarked the other day that he was beginning to make a name for himself in the school he now attends. He takes pardonable pride in displaying the school paper from Woodbury College in Los Angeles, for in the mast head is this line—Carl D. Moser, Editor in Chief. As some few of the "old students" may remember, Carl worked in the College Press while here, and was thus enabled to put out a small publication called "World Pals" for the boys with whom he was corresponding in various parts of the world. Although this publication was short-lived, he still seems to be interested in that type of work.

Philosophy and Humor

By Lee Zinn

When you read this article the great student body banquet will be a thing of the past; but the good time will remain in many of the students' minds. There are many last minute plans being made and also many last minute dates. Girls are wondering just which dress to wear, and boys are having their suits cleaned; everything must be ready by Sunday night. In every corner and in every room where you might chance to walk, you will hear some one say, "With whom are you going to the banquet?" We do hope the banquet is a huge success.

MARRIAGE RITES HELD FOR RUTH GAHAGAN

Ruth Marie Gahagan, Class of '35 exchanged vows with Henry Harper Clary of San Gabriel in a beautiful ceremony at the Seventh-day Adventist Church of Arlington on New Year's eve. Elder F. O. Fowler, uncle of the bride officiated.

Dorothy Willard also of the class of '35, was the maid of honor. The brides maids were Arline Ryan, Thyra Thompson, Elizabeth Clary, and Beatrice Gordon. The groom was attended by Tommy Penfold, B. E. Harrett, Finis Wiggins, Kenneth Mathiesen, H. A. Ebenhart.

White rose and sweet peas were carried by the bride who wore a gown of pearl satin.

FEW REMAIN FOR CHRISTMAS DAY

During the mid-winter vacation, almost every student of S. C. J. C. left the campus at one time or another. There was about an average of twelve women and twenty men on the campus remaining. At Christmas dinner, the total dropped to only twenty, with only three women, Talitha Neumann, Irene Grove, and Goldie Ehdlich, to prepare the meal for seventeen men.

On both Saturday evenings of vacation and at several other times, College Hall was open for games. On Sunday evening, December 29, the young men were the guests of the young women at Gladwyn Hall. Games, an informal program, and refreshments of popcorn, apples, and candy canes were enjoyed.

STEVENS OF GENERAL CONFERENCE STRESSES YOUTHS' OPPORTUNITIES

That the youth of today use their God-given talents toward spreading of the Message, was the thought expressed by Elder Stevens, General Conference worker in chapel Tuesday, January 7.

As an introduction to the Layman's Evangelistic Institute, the speaker emphasized the need for more workers. One-third of the people of the United States have no connection with any religion he said. For the last 8 or 9 years, every 10 days has seen a new language printed in S. D. A. papers.

WILLOUGHBY PROVES STRENGTH OF PRAYER

"Prayer is man's joining of hands with God to accomplish a high purpose," was the main thought of the vesper service, Friday evening, January 3, conducted by Elder Willoughby, pastor of the Riverside Church. Individuals try to reach up to heaven, but God's hand reaches down for us to grasp.

Iniquities separate man from God and thus cause prayers to be unanswered. This was illustrated by Elder Willoughby in Psalms 66: 18.

In order to keep the connection, by means of prayer, open between God and man, one must live a truly consecrated life. At the close of the sermon, students joined together in praying for a more truly consecrated life.

LAY PREACHER'S INSTITUTE HELD

The Southern California-Arizona Lay Preacher's Institute was held January 6 and 7, at Southern California Junior College. Those present received very valuable help on successful methods of lay-evangelism which the Spirit of Prophecy says will be an important agency through which the third Angel's Message will be presented in these latter days.

The importance of the work which may be done by able, consecrated, and talented church members is being recognized more now than ever before; and in harmony with this knowledge, a very successful program of lay-Evangelism is being introduced by this Conference.

About twenty-five members were present, and this year gives promise of good results for the work which will be done by them.

PILLSBURY LECTURES ON AGRICULTURE AND BIOLOGY

Potatoes can be increased in growth from 104 bushels per acre, when grown in soil, to two and three thousand bushels when not planted in soil or cultivated, Arthur C. Pillsbury, naturalist, scientist, inventor, explorer, author, and lecturer, revealed in pictures to a capacity crowd in the college chapel Saturday night, January 4. Professor Pillsbury is a graduate of Stanford and was a classmate of Herbert Hoover.

Tomato vines twelve feet tall, as a result of growing in sawdust over water were shown by Professor Pillsbury. These plants were grown in a green house but grew so fast they started to grow down and had to be removed from the house. The tomatoes became so heavy that frames had to be built to hold them.

Pictures were shown of his work on the ocean bottom in the harbor of Pago Pago, American Samoan Islands, where he sketched coral and fish in their natural habitat in color, with the use of a color chart composed of 250 different colored silk samples.

With only the protection of a large helmet, Professor Pillsbury was let down to the ocean bottom by natives who were only used to throwing out fish lines, consequently he was thrown out in the same way and sometimes landed head first.

Pictures of natives walking on red hot stones in their bare feet interested the students.

HISTORY OF DENTISTRY RELATED TO STUDENTS

Emphasizing the importance and growth in the field of dentistry in recent years, Dr. T. F. Wright greatly interested the student body in chapel, Monday, December 16.

Several phases were given. In the history of dentistry, the students were told that fillings were put in mummies, and that dentistry brought anesthesia to us. Dentistry is becoming more and more equalized with profession of Medicine, as good teeth are essential to good health. A part of this course is the same as that of the medical course.

Diet is very important in the care of teeth. Cavities, if treated in time by correct diet, may be cured. A pint of orange juice and a lemon a day is excellent in caring for one's teeth.

Children especially should learn to take care of their teeth. A tooth should never be pulled until it is ready, as the following tooth is dependent upon the preceding one for certain articles. Porcelain is not good for filling as it does not last long.

SEMESTER EXAMS

What do you know that I should know? Do you think he will ask this? How did you get along in that last one? Were a few of the many questions tired students were asking each other as they finished one semester examination and prepared for another one last week. Three days were given to examinations, January 8-10 inclusive. Each day was divided into four two-hour periods.

Anxious students gathered in the building, and on the campus to do that last bit of "cramming" which he hoped would carry them safely through the next test.

GLEE CLUBS CHOOSE UNIFORMS FOR YEAR

The Glee Clubs of Southern California Junior College have recently decided on their costumes for the year. The Men's Glee Club plans to wear black and white polo shirts with dark trousers, the school emblem across the front of their shirts, and red sashes.

The Women's Glee Club plans to wear white skirts, white blouses, and white barrel sweaters, with the school emblem worn in their sweaters.

The Glee Clubs are practicing on a number of brilliant numbers which they will present to the public. The Men's Club plans a short tour.

CHRISTIAN SERVICE IS THEME OF M. V.

Having as its theme "Active Christian Service," the Missionary Volunteer Society took charge of the vesper hour Friday evening, January 10. Various phases of the active Christian life were discussed by Louise Carr, Charles Gallion, and Don Smith.

In her talk, "How We Can Find a Place for Christian Service," Miss Carr gave an account of all the bands now functioning here and mentioned several others that might be started.

Christ was pointed out to all as the source of the strength to carry on his work in the talk given by Mr. Gallion, while Mr. Smith cited several examples to show the results of active Christian service which is being carried on by other M. V. Societies in the homeland as well as in the foreign fields.

OF NOSES AND THINGS

Having always the tendency to emphasize the more trivial aspects of a noteworthy occasion, I find it utterly too late to discard the habit.

Recently I was put in a position where it required very little effort to comprehend the construction of some peoples' ears, the brilliancy of some peoples' eyes, and last, but by no means less prominent, the enormity of some peoples' noses.

As you might appreciate, it is with no little hesitation that I undertake to write of such personal articles as noses and etc., but being a youth highly susceptible to explanation, and believing that a person's looks are only responsible for one-tenth of his personality, I shall attempt in the next few lines to reaffirm my belief.

A few evenings past found me seated by a person who previous to this time I had intentionally avoided. I admit with disgust, that this avoiding act was probably stimulated by the fact that I didn't like the young man's looks. We readily fell into conversation, there was something truly agreeable about him; and his obvious love of adventure quickly found a responsive chord in me. Little by little the prominence of the nose gave way to the more brilliant and expressive eyes. Needless to say I shan't avoid him again.

Another matter, and of more interest was probably that of a young lady who sat not far from me on the same evening. This person is anything but beautiful, but the cool, handsome, sophisticated sort, who so easily arrests one's admiration.

Would, that I could come anywhere near suggesting the fascination that was hers. She had the extraordinary ability of putting entirely at ease all those who sat about her. She could converse intelligently and in the most technical terms; yet, from her listeners received not the slightest inference of boredom or mental impact; and if I wanted to grow philosophical, I could easily run this discription in the ground.

Elsewhere on my route of observation were those who were in no way suited to my mental or emotional taste. Oh indeed, they were good looking. I recall now with considerable satisfaction just how good looking most of them were, but this attribute alone does not suffice.

Now if you are good looking and know you are, be as good as you look; and you can't lose; you have a decided advantage. But, if you are not good looking, and know you are not, don't despair at this circumstance; but be so much better than you look, that the gusto of your personality will make it difficult for the observer to concentrate on anything but your remarkable presence.

"There's a Sucker in Every Crowd"

By Carlos Nicolas

"Ten! Ten! Fifteen! Am I bid twenty? Sold for twenty cents to the man in the brown suit. This beautiful piece of oriental tapestry that is surely worth ten dollars sold for twenty cents. What's this world coming to anyway? Two years ago I could have gotten eleven or twelve dollars easily for it." You've heard this many times, I presume, as you have walked on the streets in many a town or city.

If you have stopped in a curious way, you have probably soon been right in the thick of the bidding—offering perfectly good money for some bit of trash that you know you have no use for. Still you bid just because you hate to see the other fellow get a "bargain" when you have a chance of getting it yourself.

"Step right in, folks, and get your tickets for the drawing that will take place right after this seveny-five dollar, twenty-one karat gold, seventeen jewel Swiss watch is auctioned off. Please, don't stand in the door way. If a fire inspector should come and see you folks crowding the exit, we should be fined heavily." And then you step in knowing perfectly well that no fire inspector is going to come, and if he did come, he'd do nothing about the matter. You also know that the drawing that will take place will not come until a couple or three hours from the time the auctioneer has specified; nevertheless you go in and take a ticket.

Then just to make things interesting, the auctioneer starts the bidding on "this beau-u-iful watch" at one dollar. This continues until it is finally sold for seven dollars and sixty-five cents. You know, the auctioneer knows, and the fellow who buys it knows that he's a "sucker." The auction continues with a number of priceless articles being "practically given away," as the auctioneer says. Finally the drawing comes. The numbers are called off; and of course, someone else gets the forty bars of coconut oil soap, or the twenty-four bottles of dandruff remover.

However, you don't walk out empty-handed. You are carrying with you six boxes of razor blades, three combs, two bottles of "imported" perfume, a radio lamp,

The best way out is to provide yourself with a good excuse for your difficulty, and the results are surprising. I recall that when I was very young, I was continually terrorized with the thought that the plumpness which has remained with me to this day would some day prove a handicap to my ascent on the social ladder. My grandfather relieved my mind of this "weighty" matter by explaining that the plumpness in my case was a decided sign of Irish nobility, and to this day I evoke a silent gratefulness to the old gentleman for providing me with such a pleasant excuse.

Editor's Note: This is not a game of "Who's Who" for those who sat around me at our recent banquet. Further more the author refused to disclose the extent of his climb on the social ladder.

CAMPUS COMMENT

By The Old Observer

John Parrish and Quail Norton are starting a course on the "Fine Art of Hitch-hiking," which will consist of six lessons with practice periods accompanying it. All of this is offered for the nominal cost of fifty cents. The special offer will have a ten per cent discount if the applicant presents his student body card and pays cash. Those who complete this course shall receive the degree of Royal Knights of the Road.

This subject focuses our attention on Blaine McDermott, who once paid a fellow twenty-five cents (cash) to teach him to hitch-hike. He finally had to pay his and the other fellow's interurban fare from Pomona to Los Angeles. Furthermore, Blaine rises to the occasion by relating that he once got a ride with a fellow who had seventeen flats on the trip from Los Angeles to this, our large metropolis of La Sierra.

You can ask Lester Willless about his hitch-hiking adventures. If he's too modest, you might go to the offices of the Los Angeles Times; and after a bit of investigation through retro issues, you'll know all about the disadvantages of this mode of transportation as far as Lester is concerned.

Incidentally, did you know that Ronald Scott's little brother received an electric train for Christmas and that Ron voluntarily undertook the job of engineer all during the vacation?

There is no doubt that the embarrassment of this childish passion was surpassed when Jimmy Keeton recently explained that a catalogue was a dialogue among four persons. And the fellow who generally expostulates on Humor and Philosophy, Lee Zinn, once said that unleavened bread was bread without ingredients.

But the prize story of the day was supplied at the expense of Paul Bunch. It seems that when he played football for Long Beach J.C. he always carried some hay under his jersey just in case he'd get a charley horse.

Anyway, the Old Observer hopes you'll patronize his column in four weeks when it will no doubt again make its appearance.

The Joy of Hitchhiking

By Lester Willless

There is no sense of satisfaction equal to that of complete freedom. I mean freedom from all cares of body, mind, and maybe of morals. This dangerously blissful state comes to me when I am going places the air way, you know, "air you goin' my way?" Who can deny the joy of standing on a corner watching and waiting to see which one in the great stream of personalities that is passing by it will be your pleasure to explore? The expressions on the faces of the people in those cars often show many cares. What would they give to be foot loose and fancy free and standing on a corner waving a happy thumb.

What pleasure is so great as that which is yours when one of those great shining creatures stops to take you into its sanctum? The first few words are the hardest, but with a little careful casting around you can discover or create an interest in the mind of the person to whom you are giving the pleasure of your brilliant and erudite conversation. In such a place think of the opportunity of doing something that will jar the mind of your client who more often than not does most of his thinking (?) in a rut.

I wish I could tell you of the many interesting conversations that I have had with my chance companions of the road, but to do that would be an almost endless undertaking. However if you crave adventure from this life, shake yourself and try walking the roads for a while. You will see and learn many new and interesting things about this great human race.

That Misplaced Eyebrow

By Dwight Herbert

Why women like them, I don't know. Many times my "better half" has complained, "there you stuck me again! I wish you would trim it right next time." In the morning a few licks of the safety razor and all is done, except—well, you have to get the old "straight edge" down and wield it deftly, carefully, and slowly around one or two whiskers that must remain.

In place of the old fashioned "coffee dippers" of days gone by, today, we have the more modern stream-line effect, that graces the upper lip. What makes them distinctive is that all men can't wear one and some can't even grow one. Have you ever noticed that the blonds are the ones that throw out the remarks of "diggs," or if they aren't "pale faces," some one who couldn't raise a crop of stubble even if he let the cat lick cream off his face every morning till the tom's whiskers grew old and gray.

I have seen men that looked a little unbalanced. I had studied one such head carefully for a while and then—the idea came home! Nine whiskers on the upper lip on each side would serve the exact purpose and make a perfect balance. Then I looked again, and to my dismay the man was a blond. My hopes for his facial balance were gone; my helpful attitude had been in vain, and on coming closer to the man I would have helped, I heard him say, "Say, will that thing wash off." I smiled and shook my head sadly for I concluded he was beyond help, and I am afraid my conclusions were right.

We who wear them have been accused of many things. One is that we are trying to be stylish. If you think that, watch the crowds go by. Why, the style is to be clean shaven. But watch a little longer, outside of a few, the most of the men wearing mustaches are quite distinctive and many of them "downright" handsome. The man with the well-shaped mustache of today, if it fits his personality, is ahead of the ordinary man when it comes to appearance.

Have you noticed that many young doctors and professional men wear them? It makes them look older and more mature, consequently their word carries more weight. A young doctor told me a few gray hairs that were noticeable on the side of his head were worth thousands of dollars to him. What the younger men need is something that will make them look older and will consequently help them cope with life's problems. Many a time because a man lacked that moustache some one has said to him, "No, you are too young." One time when I was in my middle twenties I went into the drug store for some ant paste, and the clerk wanted to know if I was eighteen. It was after that, that I decided to raise a paying crop. It worked and I noticed the difference in my salesmanship, too.

Perhaps in a few years my razor will slip some morning and off will come one side and then the other, but I know that just as soon as I do, some one, closer to me than any one else will fuss about it till I grow another.

After all whom should I please, some puritanical few, a blond professor, who might give me better grades, or one who sits opposite me at the table three times a day and has to look at me the rest of her life. By the way, she said I was the handsomest man on the campus except for a certain blond professor, who doesn't even wear a moustache.

Alumni

Magnetism—can that be the magic force which seems to draw our old students back to our campus at odd times? Just for illustration let me try to list for you some of the people I saw since the last time I sat before a typewriter with the intention of telling the Criterion readers something about the alumni. Bernice Prout and her cousin, Margaret Feldkamp, were visitors here from P. U. C. They are occupied by pre-nursing and chemistry major courses, respectively. Another alumnus of our school who visited here from P.U.C. was J. Forrest Lawson. He used to be active in Criterion editing. Now he is finishing the ministerial course. Frances Rutan, Aural and Velma Mathiesen all found the way over here from Loma Linda. Besides many which I did not see, there are Elizabeth Gates Mann, her husband, Victor Mann, and her brother, Charles. She was proudly displaying a five-week-old daughter. Something brings them all back to the old school of their younger days.

KLEMPER WILL OFFER MUSIC BY BRAHMS, MOZART

Opening his winter season in Los Angeles after two months of leading the New York orchestra, Otto Klemperer conducts the Philharmonic orchestra Thursday evening.

In the first year of his reign here, the German musician embarked upon a cycle of Beethoven symphonies and in the short space of a season convinced music critics that the Los Angeles orchestra under his leadership was capable of a feat which only the largest and oldest organizations usually attempt.

Between now and April he will repeat the achievement, this time with the music of Brahms to include the four symphonies, the "Requiem," the violin concerto, and the piano concertos with Schnabel and Buhlig as soloists. Thursday night, he will commence the Brahms with the Symphony Number One in C Minor. The overture to "Der Freischutz" will open the program, followed by the Mozart G Minor Symphony, and Strauss' "Death and Transfiguration."—U. S.C. Daily Trojan.

The Board of Directors of the Southern California Junior College met on Monday, December 30. The need for additional space for several of the departments was one of the items discussed.

JOHN MASEFIELD LECTURES IN POMONA

John Masefield, poet laureate of England and famous for his sea poems, lectured and read some of his poems at the Pomona College, on Wednesday evening, January 15. A large number of the students and faculty of Southern California Junior College were privileged to hear this outstanding Britisher.

Masefield described the qualities of a poet and the instincts or inclinations which lead a person to become a poet. He said that there is an inner uncontrollable urge within a poetic person, a "bird," that makes him express his feelings through the medium of verse.

Masefield stated that every poet looks forward with feverish anticipation to the annual verse-

Momyer Lectures on Indian Hieroglyphics

Hieroglyphics of the early American Indians were flashed before the student body and explained by George R. Momyer, Principal of the San Bernardino Senior High School, Saturday night, in an illustrated lecture on this subject.

These early American Indians many times either carved or painted their simple hieroglyphics on stone walls or mountain sides, thus they have been preserved for this modern generation. In California and several of the other south western states are the ruins of numerous Indian villages. It was from these source that Mr. Momyer obtained his interesting pictures

SUPERSTITIONS, TOPIC OF CHAPEL DISCUSSION

"Superstitions" was the opportune topic for discussion in chapel Monday the 13th, by Prof. Carson C. Morrison. The time was devoted to a questionnaire and special data on the subject.

Since 1922, superstitions have spread rapidly over the country. That ninety-eight per cent of the people are superstitious, was discovered by Otis Caldwell and Gerhard Lundeen after four years research in Columbia University. Every student, according to surveys in certain schools by Thomas Bear, has one or more.

"Women are more superstitious than men," and the "least superstition is shown in educated persons," he said.

"Luck" spirit prevails. God does not see fit for us to have our fortunes told, or He would have told us. Certain individuals have paid as high as $100.00 to have their horoscopes read before making any important step in life.

reading contest at Oxford, which Masefield instituted.

The speaker described at length his experiences in amateur dramatic productions in several small villages near Oxford. Mr. Masefield pointed out the social value of such undertakings, in which the unlearned common man takes part. Typical of Masefield's dramatic efforts was the production of "King Lear," on a 11 by 11 ft stage, with the noted poet acting as King Lear, director, property man, prompter, etc.

The expectant audience was not disappointed as Masefield read a number of his poems in concluding. Among these was the well-known and beloved "I must Go Down to the Sea, Again."

of their seemingly quaint picture-writing.

In their picture writing, a white man was always drawn with his feet turned straight out towards the side while the Indian was drawn slightly pigeon toed or with his feet pointing straight in front of his body.

While most of the pictures the Indians made were of ordinary size one has been discovered that is on such a large scale that to get an idea of its character it must be viewed from the air. A very good aerial picture of this was shown.

Cushman Returns from Research Work Conducted at N. Y. U.

As a result of several years of experimenting in the field of ultra-short wave therapy machines, Professor L. H. Cushman was sent to New York by the Falconer Co., Ltd., of Los Angeles to do further research work and experimentation. His purpose was to develop an apparatus that will give the tubes longer life and to make its construction commercially practicable.

During his stay of almost two and one-half weeks, Professor Cushman worked under Dr. A. Senauke, the consulting engineer of the Amerex Electrical Corporation, who is also the Professor of Electrical Engineering at the University of New York. Many new ideas which can be used in school work were obtained from his research. Professor Cushman stated that Eastern Universities are not better equipped than Western universities, but because the East is more of a manufacturing center it was necessary for him to do his work there, in order that apparatus which was needed could be constructed nearby and more readily.

Work was completed as far as possible in New York, and it will be continued here. Professor Cushman plans to use Robert Cossentine and Roger Neideigh, members of his radio class, to assist him in his further research.

While in New York, he visited several places of special interest, such as the Natural History Museum, the Zoological Gardens, Bedloe's Island, the Battery Aquarium, and the Metropolitan Museum of Art. Professor Cushman also visited some old forts and statues for their historical interest. He also attended the Seventh-day Adventist Temple Church while there.

On his return trip, he visited Niagara Falls, and made a short stop in Chicago where he visited the Field Museum and the Aquarium.

Opportunity and equipment for research work in the East was enjoyed very much by him, but he still prefers California for a home.

DR. RILEY RUSSELL SPEAKS IN CHURCH

Incidents experienced while pioneering the medical missionary work in Korea were related by Dr. Riley Russell, of Glendale, during the church hour Sabbath, January 18. Dr. Russell was one of the first medical missionaries to be sent to Korea.

"Although the Koreans believe firmly in ancestor worship and have much to give up before they can become Christians, they are much easier to reach than any other Orientals," Dr. Russell stated. Once converted they make strong Christians and remain true in spite of severe opposition.

It was due to the work of Dr. Russell that Soo Nan Hospital was founded. The hospital was built from a thirteenth Sabbath offering. Dr. Russell, together with his helpers made the bricks for the hospital and did everything possible to make the money reach farther. Their efforts were rewarded when the hospital was finally completed and the people began to flock in for medical treatment. Ever since, this hospital has been growing and has proved a great blessing to the workers as well as the patients.

Here is a little bit of philosophy that will always hold good: To Keep Out of Jail — don't take things seriously.

SMITH EXTENDS KEY TO SUCCESS

Giving as his key to success, "Common work done uncommonly well" E. E. Smith, Superintendent of Riverside County Schools, spoke to the student body Wednesday during the chapel period. Mr. Smith spends much of his time traveling, having under his supervision 20,000 students and 700 teachers.

"This time is a challenge to the youth of today," he said, for, quoting from a prominent educator, "An age of speedy changes is a time of unparalleled opportunity." Too much has been said against the youth of today and not enough for them. They have been given the idea that there is no place for them in this rapidly changing world, he stated.

Quoting from a list of essentials to success given by the educator mentioned above, the desire and courage to work and work hard are given as absolute essentials in the struggle for success. Next he gave the ability to write legibly, honesty, and a sense of humor. A good sense of humor has often changed the darkest scene to one of less forbidding appearance. To close the list he gave persistence and respect. The youth of today are not as respectful as they should be.

He left with us as his closing thought that the greatest success is always obtained through service to others.

DO PEOPLE TAKE SHOWERS?

It was interesting to be a mere onlooker not long ago when the M. B. K. Griper's Club had an extemporaneous session out in the lobby. It seems that the boiler that keeps the water partially warmed up for the showers had broken down.

A day after this calamity had taken place two or three were heard to comment on the matter. Day by day this small commenting group grew. Finally after four days, when the above mentioned session occurred, one of our distinguished citizens of the home was seen to be very much surprised to hear that there had been no hot water, and that some of the fellows had taken cold showers for a period of four days. It just made me wonder?

HOW'S YOUR EGO?

What is it that causes a person to have such a degree of self-esteem that will make him convey this fact to other in his own inimitable way? Some people call it ego. Still there are certain degrees of this peculiar malady, and at times some individuals may be misunderstood and accused of being just plain "cocky."

How often have you heard some fellow remark that he has to use a certain brand of razor blades because his whiskers are tougher than the average? You may have also heard some young lady say that she had to wear an overcoat when she went out in the evening because she was very susceptible to colds — more so than anyone else she had ever known. Numerous are the remarks that we hear from day to day, and often we think nothing of them. However, how often have you made just such a remark without thinking of its concealed meaning and the effect it might have on one who did not know you very well?

Not long ago a man came into the shop where a number of fellows were working, and in a few minutes, he was engaged in telling of the masterpiece he had just completed in his particular line of work. As he rambled along, most of the fellows had to chuckle. It's generally men of this type who are good, or think they are, who seldom go to the trouble of demonstrating their ability.

At times it may be necessary for one to possess a bit of conceit in order to preserve the necessary self-respect; but often than not, this is overdone. It may be good to remember that a person's opinion of himself really has little or no bearing on others' welfare. Still others' opinion of us may have some bearing on our own welfare.

To Hazel Walde

By M. Tarello

In the course of life's great cycle, there's an ode for every feat;
There are moments of great sorrow,
there are moments, oh, sweet!

There's a balm for every sorrow,
and psalm for every grief;
And 'tis Faith and Understanding make our darkest hours seem brief.

'Tis a song that lights the vision,
'tis a song that clears the way.

Tho' the heart may now be weary,
yet the soul to thee may say,
"Vain regrets are not they portion, but sweet mem'ries of the past . . ."

Let thine eyes be upward lifted, thou hast reached thy haven at last

Tho, the heart be wrapt in sadness, yet the soul must not be grieved,

For our blessings far outnumber all the ills we have received.
Tho' our steps may lead us farther from the ones we do adore,

And content to flight be taken, still our way lies just before.

Hazel, as you leave our portals, may you e'er recall our name.

And our A Capella Chorus, will remain no more the same.

For we lose a faithful worker, and we feel the loss at heart . . .

Tho' we seek for consolation we shall find it hard to part.

Tho' ambition blurs in dimness, tho' your purpose thwarted lies,

Tho' your heartsrings may be broken,
you are precious in His eyes.

For He knows the clouds that gather, "clouds that come our lives between,"

May your life, like one sweet blossom, its perpetual beauty show,

And the Great Physician though you, as from this our midst you go.

— And remember us your song-mates,
and remember us for aye,

When we sang and worked together, and were happy all the day.

The boy pauses in front of the entrance to the Administration Building. As he hastily glances over his shoulder, he heaves a long sigh that speaks volumes. The sight he beholds makes his heart sink; there seems to be no end to that string of females which he sees advancing slowly up the steps. If he must stand wearily by and hold the door open for them why couldn't they just accelerate their motion only a trifle? The chorus of sweet, feminine "thank you's" which greets his impatient ears does not seem quite a just recompense for the extra five minutes he might have used to take a "last glance" over those chemistry formulas which Professor Morrison is sure to ask on the test. Why don't those girls walk in groups a little closer together? By the time he has acted as doorman for at least twenty girls, his store of patience becomes exhausted, and noticing that the next group of girls is yet a few feet away, he hurriedly enters with a just spirit of martyrdom within his heart. The door slams behind him and the next unfortunate boy has his turn.

Of course, common, everyday courtesy in small things is pleasant, both to the eye and to the feelings. It helps to make us more thoughtful and considerate of the feelings of others; it gives the correct impression of our school to a person who may be visiting Southern California Junior College for the first time. To perform small kindnesses for girls is a proper and natural act of the boy; to expect such deeds is natural for the girl, but she should remember two things concerning this: first, to be appreciative always, and to express her appreciation in most instances; second, never to take advantage of the fact that the boy is expected to fulfill his duty.

I may be mistaken in my interpretation of the thoughts which race through a boy's mind when he has to wait for a never-ending line of girls to drink before he can quench his thirst. After all, I am only judging his sentiments by what I know mine would be, were I placed in a similar circumstance. However, I do wish to extend my sympathy to the boys and to address the following solemn appeal to those of my own sex — "Give them a break occasionally, girls!"

ARE EDITORIALS WORTH WRITING?

During the last couple of years when I have had to write an editorial, I've wondered if it really paid to put out what little effort there may be connected with the writing of one. Sometimes it takes quite a bit of time and thought. You know, some people think that the intellectual accomplishments of most school paper editorial staff members is limited to looking at form charts and pictures; therefore they don't waste their time with editorials. However, it is still customary to write editorials, and the CRITERION has a definite space for them, hence the reason for the editorials even though we are quite convinced that few ever read them.

BUSINESS MEETING HELD Y. A. S. B.

With Waldo Nelson, vice president, officiating in the absence of the president, Jerry Smith, the Associated Student Body held a business meeting in Chapel, Friday, January 17.

Jack Cales, treasurer, gave the financial report following the opening song and the prayer offered by Olaf Locke. He reported that the organization had on hand $81.73, part of which was netted during the first semester by the showing of the talking picture "Baboona."

In his report, Donald Smith, business manager of the Criterion, announced the cash on hand at $509.08. To date $76 has been received from advertising. The students were urged to patronize the advertisers as they were co-operating so willingly in making our paper a success.

Mr. Nelson then brought up the subject of revising the constitution and pointed out the several sections that needed amendment. A committee consisting of Donald Smith, chairman, Alyce Van Tassel, Blaine McDermott, Frank Judson, and Professor Reynolds, was appointed to study the situation and to make the necessary recommendations.

NEED FOR VITAL CHRISTIANS URGED

Prof. K. J. Reynolds, head of the history department of Southern California Junior College, occupied the vesper service of Friday evening, January 17. He emphasized the need of the youth today being alive, vital Christians.

As an example of utter deadness, Professor Reynolds used the Biblical illustration of "dry bones." In contrast to the parched, lifeless bone, is the live bone, covered with warm, active human flesh.

The spiritual condition of so-called Christians can be compared to the different types of bones. In their constant activity lies the power of a modern Christian.

The evening's service was concluded by the students' personal expression of their determination and desire to become vital organs in the work of presenting God's saving message to the world.

Revealing of friendship friends occupied the worship period Thursday evening, January 16, which was in charge of the Girls' Forum. Imitations given by each girl of her friendship friend was the novel method employed in revealing. Most of the imitations proved to be highly amusing. Pet phrases or words, characteristic walks, and special work duties were some of the things imitated.

At the close of the meeting the girls were instructed to go to their rooms and look above the closet doors where small slips of paper with the name of their new friendship friend would be found.

GUESS WHO?

By Marguerite Tarello and Ruth Cossentine

1.
He's tall, and he's fat, and he's stout,
This lad that we're talking about
And he has a big broom
That he swings 'round the room,
So whenever you're near him, look out!
2.
There's that about a fellow
That gives us great delight;
His voice is often mellow,
And he's really very bright.
3.
A friend to all, both great and small,
A conscientious worker,
His spirit never takes a fall,
And he is not a shirker.
4.
He's tall and blonde and handsome,
And his smile is his ransom.
He takes his life with ease,
And withal he's quite a tease.
5.
There is a boy in M. B. K.
Who drives the milk to town.
He's full of pep, he smiles all day,
You seldom see him frown.

He tries to tease the girls in vain,
His name is Percy Miles.

Philosophy & Wit

It seems some folks don't even believe what they read. A short time ago in this column there appeared that it is better to do your sleeping at night instead of in a classroom in the daytime.

A word of advice to Bill Smith (another Smith). Before leaning your chair against the wall so you might take a nap in a classroom it is best to be sure that the floor hasn't been oiled the night before. Need we say anymore Mr. Smith? Bill's last words were, "I sure took the count that time!"

NACIMIENTO ENACTED IN SPANISH FASHION

The nacimiento, the Spanish celebration of the birth of Christ, was celebrated by members of the Spanish Club at the home of Miss Sorenson, Tuesday evening, January 14. Each member was to bring something to signify the birth of Christ, and it was then enacted in the regular Spanish custom.

Following this, peñatas, which were dolls filled with candy, were broken by Louise Bunch and Jack Cales who were blind folded. The result was a grand scramble for the candy.

Miss Sorenson then served a lunch which consisted of sombrero salad, tamales, chili beans, hot rolls and butter, and Postum. For dessert small Spanish cakes were served.

At the close, the "reja" scene was enacted by Helen Kintner, as the young señorita and Bill Smith as the serenading señor.

Mr. Abel was terribly shocked and said, "Why Grace!"

Gracie replied, "Don't worry, Mr. Abel, I didn't use the new one. I strained it through the real old fly swatter."

A Student's Nightmare

By W. William C. Crider

Last night as I poured o'er my physics book,
A memorable fact indeed,
(Yet to hear the learned Professor talk,
'Twas no more than I need).
I fell asleep while pondering there,
And dreamed a dream indeed.

Our Prof., it seems, was ten feet tall,
In a 'Lab.' all painted green.
Two tables stretched from end to end,
With a retort in between.
A caldron boiled and bubbled there,
Emitting purple steam.

The Prof. leaned back in his chromium chair
And smiled a sinister simle,
His voice was low and soft and sweet,
And rasped like a rusty file.
"Compute, without a second's thought
The meters in a mile."

My mind was filled with panic then
My sight grew blurred and dim,
I choked my Adam's apple down,
And, pleadingly looked at him;
The door was locked, the windows barred,
My chance for escape looked slim,

His temperature rose to the vapor point;
No mercy was in his eye,
He looked me up; he looked me down,
And I prepared to die.
I gave a leap, my book fell down,
I awoke with a gusty sigh.

COLLEGIATE HI-LIGHTS

The journalism students of Santa Ana J. C. recently made a report on what they considered to be the biggest news stories of 1935. Final decisions as published in "El Don" disclose that a majority of the students were of the opinion that the death of Will Rogers and Wiley Post should be given first place in the current news poll. The Italian-Ethiopian was adjudged second in news value, while the conviction of Hauptman came third. Establishment of air-mail service across the Pacific and the assassination of Huey Long followed in that order.

According to news made public in the "Campus Chronicle" George W. Greer, music director of Pacific Union College, is to be Musical director at the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists to be held in San Francisco this year.

Long Beach J. C. takes the lead in new type of headlines recently displayed in "The Viking." Each line of the heading is set flush with the left of the column thus illuminating word spacing and letter counting.

Allow me to pass on to you a short article found in the Exchange Column of the "Modesto Collegian." "A Forham university instructor in zoology announced that on the following day all his students would be tested to determine whether microbes were transmitted by kissing. On the appointed date, the attendance was perfect — however, he fooled them. Each person was given a piece of sterile cotton, told to kiss it and the cotton was examined under a microscope."

PICTURESQUE ART REVEALED TO A.S.B.

The program "The Potter and the Clay" presented by Mr. J. Smith Damron, Saturday evening, January 25, was unique in many ways. Two important points were set forth that are necessary for a successful vessel in the potter's art. The first, that the true center of the wheel must be found and the vessel molded gradually. The clay used must of a necessity be good grade in order that, when finished, the vessel will have the needed strength to be of use. The second point propounded was that the vessel would have to be level at the top or else it would give a lopsided appearance and its strength would be diminished.

Comparing the preparation of a potter's chief concern with life and character, one draws the conclusion that one should find his place in life and gradually build up character of good material, in order that it will withstand the tribulations that come. Mr Damron also brought out the point that oftentimes one defect in a vessel will prove to be disastrous in the finish. (Continued on Page 2)

CAP-PINNING HELD IN LOMA LINDA

January 19, 1936. To you that is probably only a date. It might be your birthday, but I doubt it. If you have never seen a cap-pinning exercise at the close of a student nurse's probationary period, you will find it difficult to visualize the impressiveness of this service. At Loma Linda on January 19 a number of our alumni were receivers of caps in such an exercise. Aural Mattiesen, Velma Matthiesen, Velma Wilcox, Valerie Jones, Frances Rutan, Beatrice Hinkle, Evangeline Voth, and Irene Strock were members of the class who took their pre-nursing at our school. Congratulations, girls on the successful completion of the first section in your chosen line of work. You deserve it.

"As is a tale, so is life; not how long it is, but how good it is, is what matters."

"Some folks are like rocking chairs, — full of motion without progress."

Field Missionary Secretary Speaks in Chapel

Expressing the importance of the colporteur work in these last days, J. D. Leslie, Field Missionary Secretary, interested the student body in chapel January 20. A harvest will be reaped wherever the seed is sown.

"Peace will not always remain," was the prediction of the speaker; "therefore Satan is using all his power to prevent the spreading of the gospel." He is "as a roaring lion, seeking whom he may devour."

Rapid changes are taking place. Already Germany has prohibited all religious publications for one year.

"Be diligent and use every opportunity," was the advice of the speaker, and we are to reconsecrate our lives so the Lord can use us."

"Bible Readings for the Home Circle," and the "Great Controversy between Christ and Satan," seem to be the best sellers and bring the best results.

Students Entertained At Teacher's Home

According to her custom and congenial disposition, Miss Hopkins had several students in her home for lunch Sabbath. They wanted to help; so after she had let them set the table she brought the cake in for them to cut and place on the cake plate. When she came in she found them admiring the knots on the wrong side of the tablecloth. When she came in the next time, the cake was very nicely arranged on the bottom of the cake plate. Her helpers explained that they thought the legs were there to hold the cake on! Tsk! Tsk!

BIG PINES SKATING ENJOYED BY 160

Skating, sliding, slithering, and sitting were indulged in by the A. S. B. members on the skating party at Big Pines. Both afternoon and evening skating was made possible by the dismissal of school at 11:30 Wednesday morning. Many ambitious students climbed the surrounding mountains during the afternoon. Others found an icy mountain side which proved to be a very hard landing field.

Before the evening skating, a very filling delicious supper-lunch was served before a huge fire place in a community ranger house. The menu was S. C. J. C.'s favorite — the famous potato-salad, beans, sandwiches, and hot chocolate. Did it taste good! A peppy bunch of boys, headed by "the old philosopher" Waldo Nelson, enjoyed making the music go round and round, around Professor Fentzling. Erwin Rosa kindly assisted the hard working singers by passing the hat.

The recreation hall was the next place of gathering. A good old fashioned "sing" was entered into by everyone. The A Cappella Choir, led by Professor Abel, led in singing selections. A special treat by the choir was the rendition of "Fierce was he Wild Billow." Jerry Smith, Olaf Locke, Conrad Hay and Earl Shearn slumped in a corner of the hall and moaned a few cowboy songs. Reynolds was heard saying, "They get worse every minute." Lee Zinn gave two recitations entitled, "The Newsboy's Prayer," and "The Mortgage Held over Her Head." The latter was the height of amusement and may we suggest that the next time he might get a few more hats into it.

The evening session of skating lasted from 8 until 10:30. To most it was two and a half hours too short. Oh, for a movie camera when Bill Smith emerged upon the ice. The same goes for Evelyn Palmquist and Evelyn Adams. All honors for bravery goes to President and Mrs. Cossentine for their success after many years off the ice. It's hard to take the saying, "Life is just a bunch of hard knocks." Highest honors for good skating go to Frances Powers and Professor Abel. Frances was heard saying that she wanted to teach Eddie Potts to skate. More power to her—she'll need it.

Most of the crowd returned to school early, or did they? By the way, did you notice Conrad Hay saying "good morning" Thursday afternoon at 3:30? It was a grand trip and everybody is ready to go again soon.

MRS. CLAUDE STEEN SPEAKS TO GIRLS

Presenting as a keynote to her talk several ways for a girl to better herself, Mrs. Claude Steen spoke to the girls during the Sunday evening worship period.

"Social poise and grace are acts that have to be studied," she stated. These two qualities are ones that every normal girl desires and rightly should possess. Several of the prime essentials to be observed in our endeavor to gain these desired qualities are neatness, happiness, friendliness, a sympathetic interest in those with whom we come in contact. We should give careful attention to the cultivation of our speech and voice," she said. A well modulated voice is always a definite asset not only in our social life, but at all times. Next to be considered is the improvement of our conversational ability and closely associated with this is the enlargement of our vocabulary. To be able to converse intelligently on almost any current topic is an accomplishment we should strive to attain. Unselfishness and truthfulness are two qualities that every one should have.

ENGLISH CLUB GIVES MASEFIELD PROGRAM

Following the opportunity that recently came to see and hear Masefield in person at Pomona College, the English Club devoted the program to the poet-laureate's life and works, Saturday evening, January 25.

Miss Betty Riley read a paper on John Masefield as a poet, which dwelt upon his love for the sea and ships and his rare ability to paint the sea in words; his love for animals and his understanding of them; and his sympathy for the common people.

Highlights of the poet's life were given by Lester Willess; and Miss Geraldine Gatten gave a brief review of Masefield's program at Pomona for the benefit of those who were unable to attend.

"I must Go Down to the Sea Again," set to music was sung by Allan Cossentine. Concluding the program, Professor J. P. Fentzling read a selection from "Dauber," depicting the wild tempestuousness

WHAT WE THINK

Is responsibility dying out from our student body or does the average individual still realize that to "enter the hill of the Lord" he must have such integrity that he "swareth to his own hurt and changeth not." No, we do not mean to promise falsely, yet how easy it is after having pledged our word to give, talk, play an accompaniment, or carry out some assigned task, to slip out from under the load because we want to go for a walk, take a ride or entertain a friend, and leave one to whom we have given our word "high and dry" to substitute for our remissness. What are you going to do about this matter?

Since so few of us are perfect, it seems to me that we only show our ignorance more plainly when we are so ill-bred as to laugh at the mistakes of others.

When I was asked what I thought, I wondered if our worthy editors for this issue were merely trying to humor me along; but when it was stated that my thoughts should be written up in thirty-five words I was sure of the fact. However, I am convinced there is no justice even among "gripers" when individuals complain even though their grade cards contain only the first two letters of the alphabet, throughout.—C.N.

Some say we are going backward instead of forward. Human beings first used edged rocks as cutting instruments over 5000 years ago, which shows how all but women who sharpen pencils with razors have progressed. It seems to me we must be going forward. L. Z.

It seems to me that young men who jump up to help a girl with her tray at another table are breaking a rule of etiquette to perform a service that is not required in any social circle.

When we think? When we do think at all, it is most often about some problem or step that we are confronting. The reason we think at all is that we have to do one or two or three or a dozen things and what we attempt to do is make the wisest choice. Truly — we do think occasionally.

Life is worth living, it is important, it is interesting. Too much study destroys the balance. Too much work is equally undesirable. Enough recreation is essential. The proportions are not the same for each person. Just a student's viewpoint. E. M.

W. C. FLAIZ TALKS TO STUDENT BODY

Because the Bible instructor of nurses at Loma Linda, Professor W. C. Flaiz, did not finish his former talk while here, he continued on the theme of "Personality," in chapel Friday, January 24.

Courtesy is the prerequisite of personality and is built up around self-discipline and the right kind of pride. A fine personality is not inherited, nor is it a gift.

Common sense, intellectual power and spiritual power, are the foundation stones which all great leaders have possessed.

Interesting incidents were given to explain some of his qualifications for a good personality.

Working without a boss, expertness in at least one thing, meeting everyone on a level, ability to improvise, living within your means and others are essentials of a fine personality.

STUDENTS TAKE PART IN VESPERS

Only those students who had once been in the Mission field took part in the M. V. meeting Friday evening. Gladys Barto, Lauretta Brines, Conrad Hay, and Ralph Munson participated with Frank Judson in charge.

Hints to prospective missionaries were given by Lauretta Brines. Girls should be able to cook and sew and it is advantageous for boys to do carpenter work.

Lawrence Nelson, Olaf Locke, Jerry Smith and Paul Toppenburg entertained the students with music during the meeting.

Ralph Munson explained the good that missions can do for people.

Did You Know?

That Miss Sorenson needs only a few hours toward her Ph. D., which she expects to get before very long.

That Professor Fentzling was the dean of men at S. C. J. C. the summer before last.

That fifteen student's fathers are doctors and eleven have fathers who are ministers.

That Lester Willes eats milk-toast with a fork.

That we have six musical organizations, and seven clubs to which more than three fourths of the student body belong.

That Blaine McDermott has lost sixty pounds since a year ago when he worked in the kitchen of the Bureau of Light and Power Camp.

That Arthwel Hayton, while watching the milk being bottled, asked, "When do you put the cream on top? They are filled already."

That Evelyn Palmquist had a good time in the mountains last Wednesday in spite of having a bad cold.

That Evelyn Adams enjoyed the ice so much at Big Pines, that she sat on it most of the day, with a different person accompanying her every time. They only tried once. Ask Professor Abel.

"FLIES THE SNOW"

After the trip to "Big Pines," I am sure those who went are rather enthusiastic about winter sports. California mountains cannot always guarantee all the ice and snow that everyone would like as was realized on this trip. The Canadian Rockies, however, are heavily blanketed with snow during the winter months, and the lakes are thickly coated with ice.

If you were to spend a winter's vacation in Canada, you could revel in the snow to your heart's delight. There is tobogganing. You climb on at the top and go zipping down to the bottom before you can catch your breath. Perhaps you like to skate or ski. You may don a pair of skis and go dashing over the frozen snow at breathless speed. Or if you do not care to participate yourself, you may go to Toronto where a snow carnival is held each winter. Here you can see the champion snow sportsmen of the North American continent do their best to win the prize. The article of Canadian winter sports, "Flies the Snow," in the Review of Reviews fairly makes us wish that we might board an airplane and spend a few days in Canada.

PICTURESQUE ART REVEALED TO A.S.B.

ish, which corresponding to life, would show us that many times one defect will ruin the work of years.

Mixing humor with philosophy, Mr. Damron, while shaping the clay, said he imagined that that would bring back to one's memory many experiences of childhood days.

"NORMAL" OBSERVATIONS

The second semester has now begun, a new time in which to prove one's ability to serve. At least, this is true of the group of first year normal students, who are now launching out into their first experience in real teaching.

During the past week the group of girls, eight in number, has been observing a class in "Oral Bible and Nature" for the first and second grades. The two young men of the class have been learning how opening exercises should be conducted in the seventh and eighth grades.

Friday, January 24, when the entire group met for a conference with Miss Jensen, they all seemed to be delighted with the prospects of their work as a whole. But even though the "grind" is hard and dense, the one outstanding, redeeming feature to which they look forward is the supervision of the noon hour play period, which is soon to be their lot.

Let us hope at each new experience will only serve to heap coals of fire on their now flaming zeal.

INSIGNIFICANCE OF EARTHLY RICHES TOLD

Having as his main theme, "covetousness," Prof. W. C. Flaiz, instructor of Bible at Loma Linda, spoke Sabbath morning, January 25, during the regular church hour.

"Take heed and beware of covetousness; for a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of things which he possesseth" found in Luke 12:5, was the main text used. Elder Flaiz cited an example regarding this, saying that while in a foreign port, he had seen many wealthy people on cruises and noticed on most of them dissatisfied expressions showing that "mans life consisteth not in the abundance of things which he possesseth."

Elder Flaiz then read the parable found in Luke 12:16-20 and emphasized the fact that earthly riches will all be in vain if our souls are not prepared for the coming of Christ.

"If some people lived up to their ideals, they would be stooping."

Death of the King

By James E. Andrews

Shadows . . . shadows,
Circling, dancing shadows,
Hungry, cruel . . . waiting, Beckoning . . .

I come,
The king comes,
With a blare of trumpets and drums, banners and marching men, the king—

Why do they fail me now,
So weak, I scarce can hear them
O monstrous shadows . . . !
Begone . . . begone!!
The king commands . . .

Then take me, I yield . . .
To time I yield . . .
Mine hour is come, the sceptre up
I yield,

Yet let me face these dancing spectral shades that close me in . . .

I die . . .
The king dies . . .
The king dies unafraid . . .
Take me . . .

Bells . . .
Tolling bells . . .
Slowly mourning bells . . .
O grief, O grief, behold . . .
The king lies dead.
Dead . . . dead.
The mighty, gracious king . . .
Mourn, people; toll bells; the king,
the king—
The king is dead, long live the king!

The Outlook

It's something in the air. You don't know exactly what it is; you can't get it definitely in hand; can't find anyone else (any girls at least) who knows — but still, there it is, that undefinable feeling that something is about to happen.

The evidence — M. B. K. doesn't usually meet more than once a week; when it does meet, it's ordinary session is not an hour and a quarter long; and, every meeting does not end in a free for all discussion in the lobby (we guess).

Looking back in the annuals of the past, we search for the records of events that have taken place before at this time of year. Last year, the men of M. B. K. were engaged in lengthy semi-secret proceedings, two years ago arrangement were being made for one of the outstanding social undertakings of the year. Does this aid in solving the current mystery?

Squelch your curiosity, girls, soon we will know all — only a few weeks now, one, two, three...., and with increasing time our expectations rise.

COLLEGIATE HI-LIGHTS

By Jim Norton

Recent articles in "The Collegian" disclose the fact that Walla Walla students do not at the present time, have democratic elections to Student Body offices. The election ballot contains one name for each office which is either accepted or rejected by the students. The office holders are, in reality, appointed by a nominating committee. It seems, however, that the present student body has awakened to the situation and is demanding the right of a democratic government for its organization. The editors of "The Collegian" are taking a firm stand for the change to a more collegiate form of student government.

Following in the steps of several fraternity houses in the East, the Sigma Chi of Washington State recently abolished what is known as "Hell Week." Nearly all fraternal organizations in our American Colleges practice this policy of "hazing" pledges for one week previous to formal initiation into the fraternity. "Probation week" will replace "hell week," it was announced by Alexander Hutchinson, group president. Pledges will be required to observe strict silence, and spend intensive study on student work and fraternity history. While the announcement met with much criticism from other houses, the President of Washington State gave his hearty approval. "I am delighted to learn that a number of fraternities are considering the abolition of 'hell week,'" the president declared. "In my opinion the nation wide movement to do away with this type of barbarism shows progress in the thinking of college students."

"When a man is wrapped up in himself, he makes a small parcel."

The NEWSETTE Column

When Carl Holland saw some narcissus, he wanted them greatly. But the girls all wanted them, too; so Carl wore dandelions to the meeting of the Sunshine Band.

Eugene (Chappie) Chapman went ice-skating with a crowd of S.C.J.C. students. The falls he encountered evidently impressed his "mind" because he tried skating again in his sleep — fell, and is afraid he broke his hip. We know all of our readers wish "Chappie" a speedy recovery.

By way of suggestion to those who will be comprising the "Golden Opportunity" class in Math. Analysis, recently proposed by Professor Cushman, there are fifteen "Number Primers" on the 50 per cent off-shelf in the College Book Store.

Congratulations! and hats off to Betty Riley. Your reporter hasn't met anyone else around these parts who can truthfully boast of having received twelve personal letters during the last week. And Betty says "They're all good, too!"

Judging from the broad smiles to be seen on the face of A. R. Smith, he greatly enjoyed his trip to Big Pines on Saturday evening. We understand Mr. Smith has quite extensive experience as an ice-skater in his younger days.

We had more visitors to our jolly good school on this past Sabbath than we have had for several weeks back. Among them were some successful students from neighboring medical institutions. We're always glad to see them come, and enjoy their stay while they are here. There's just something irresistible about the home base — it's the place of beginnings.

Ardyce Lundquist of Lodi, California, visited Millicent Grant Sunday afternoon.

Former business manager of S. C.J.C., W. C. Raley was one of our distinguished week-end visitors.

Professor Abel has promised a "nice long" trip to the A Cappella Choir if they "do well." Time alone can tell.

"All of these together are the composite of a Christian character," she said, "and after all, that is what we strive for. If we have a beautiful Christian character, social poise and grace will naturally be ours. The whole idea can be summed up by paraphrasing a well-known Bible text. 'Seek ye first a beautiful character and all these things shall be added unto you.'"

Walt Ehrler has established a milk route in and around the city of Fullerton.

When we contemplated telling you how A. R. Smith's secretary appeared when she was trying to use the "new" Ediphone, she said, "You can't tell them — you need a picture!" Incidentally, when on the campus some day, drop into the business office and see for yourself.

We are sorry to have Gwendolyn Ginn depart, and we hope she will be able to return soon.

Miss Ragan is entertaining her cousin and family from Idaho.

Verna Belding, a former office girl here, visited friends at S. C. J. C. last week-end.

We are sorry to temporarily lose Murl Quick because of ill health. Don't forget us, Murl, and get well so you can return soon.

Lurline Edge of Los Angeles spent the week-end with Laurine Heath.

Barbara Steen attended a lecture given by Admiral Byrd at the Fullerton High School, Saturday night.

Frances Paul underwent an operation for appendicitis at the White Memorial Hospital.

Lillian and Gladys Holmes, Carl Willers, Arthur Dockham, Wilma Spears, Vincent Craven, Millicent Grant, and Alyce Van Tassel were seen at the White Memorial, Sabbath.

We were happy to have Mr. Steele of Hollywood as a visitor Sabbath, and enjoyed the special song he sang for us during Sabbath school.

There were one hundred and sixty Associated Student Body members who participated in the joyful trip to Big Pines last Wednesday. Mr. Stearns was chaperon on one of the trucks. He says, "How would you figure this. There were just as many on the truck coming home as there were going. There was barely standing room going, while we all sat down coming home!"

"The road to success may be winding, but it is never crooked."

The Lookout

Of course the big noise this week was the Big Pines mountain trip. Speaking for the boys, we not only enjoyed the outing, but are already planning future mountain jaunts.

Ice skating was the main attraction. This was filled with thrills and spills, thrills for those who know how to skate and spills for those who didn't. I'll admit I had anticipated seeing some of our smart set go sprawling ungracefully across the rink, but after I had cracked the ice in several spots, I could experience nothing but sympathetic pain upon seeing some unfortunate, devoid of coordination and equilibrium, land in some most ungainly position and slowly arise with a sheepish grin upon his flushed countenance in an effort to hide embarrassment and pain.

The trip up was also interesting. Each party was anxious to get there and would go buzzing by each other all the way up. Even when they hit the grade and started to battle with old man gravity the competition was not altered. Picture two powerful '29 Chevrolts loaded to capacity roaring along over the winding grade at the terrific pace of 15 M. P. H., piloted by the deft hands of Mrs. Cushman and Professor Reynolds. Everybody was tensely leaning forward, but the boys in the Professor's car must have leaned the hardest. However, it was a close race. I once heard of a horse winning a race by a swollen nose; the boys told me that their car beat the girls by a extra coat of paint. I'll have to hand it to the boys; that is quite an accomplishment now days. Most of the boys attribute their success to the leaning and it's natural that they should, but the Professor says it's that super cracked tetra-ethyl kerosene he burns.

SEMINAR

Those attending Seminar last Sabbath were not disappointed with the most interesting program. Conrad Hay, retiring president, opened the meeting with prayer, followed by the hymn, "Lead, Kindly Light." The following persons, appointed as officers by the nominating committee, were announced: Olaf Locke, President; John McWhinney, Vice-President; Delpha Locke, Pianist; Dwight Herbert, Chorister; Louise Carr, Secretary. Lester Patterson and Darrell Dunham were the speakers for the evening.

"Why Should We Desire Heaven" was vividly portrayed by Mr. Patterson, "I want," he said, "first to go to heaven to escape destruction." He then presented a detailed description of the glories of the new earth in contrast to the uncertainties of the present world. In speaking of Christ's gracious invitation, he urged each one to accept of it fully.

M.B.K. TO HOLD OPEN HOUSE

Announcement was recently made of the men's "Open House," to be held, Sunday evening, February 9. The entertainment is given by the young men with the ladies as guests and is under the direct management of Paul Bunch, president of Mu Beta Kappa.

The dormitory will be thrown open to everyone for inspection, which will probably be followed by a program and refreshments. The entertainment committee, however, has revealed nothing as to the type of program that is to be presented. Mr. Blaine McDermott, who has worked on a number of like affairs in the past, is chairman of the committee and promises an interesting and entertaining evening.

Open House or "receptions" have been an annual affair for a number of years, this being the thirteenth entertainment given by the men for the young ladies of the school.

SECRETARY RETURNS FROM ISLANDS

Bringing greetings from Hawaii and relating some of his experiences during the trip, Elder E. M. Remsen spoke during the church hour Sabbath morning, February 1.

As the Elder is especially interested in the colporteur work, he told how it has progressed in the Hawaiian field in the last year. One colporteur with the help of several students sold and delivered $11,000 worth of books last year. Some of these students gained scholarships and as a result were able to go on with their education.

We as a denomination lead the world in the field of colporteur work. During the last year, the denomination sold $5,000,000 worth of literature, while the largest amount sold by any of the other denominations was only $3,000,000. Elder Remsen read from Sister White's writings that the colporteur field knows no limitation.

Relating several of his experiences while on the ship, he showed us that even during our travels we have many opportunities to lead men to God.

IDIOSYNCRASIES OF A.S.B. PREXY DEPICTED

... His Likes Are Not Confined

Each year for the past four, it has been the custom for members of the Associated Student Body to gather together, and with no little discretion, elect one from the body to act in the noble capacity of president.

Last year wise members of the organization nodded with approval when "Iron Chinned" Jerry Smith was elected to the office.

However, last week, certain of Mr. Smith's proteges pointed out and advised that, in view of the fact that his term thus far has been marked with considerable success, it might be a memorable thing to provide modest Smith with a bit of publicity as few know very much about him other than he's drawing Bill Smith's cousin, and is painfully handsome. To this suggestion Criterion editors hasten to make amends and apologize to our readers for such thoughtless neglect.

He was born in College View, Nebraska on May 19, 1915 (figure it out). His mother and father both attended Union College, and lived in various parts of Nebraska until he was ten years old. At this time his father, C. D. Smith, migrated with his family to New York City. This was to be Jerry's home for the next nine years.

Aside from his irresistible personality and captivating smile, Prexy Smith has been generously provided with certain likes and dislikes very characteristic of his nationality: German, English, Irish, Scotch, Dutch. He has a mania for potatoes and parsnips roasted in a bonfire; as a desert, prefers ice cream; likes all classical music, especially Bach, Beethoven, and Mozart; thinks "math" is a delicious subject, which brings to our mind the fact that he was a member of the Arista Club, an organization provided by the Jamaica High School of Queensborough, New York for students who distinguished themselves in particular scholastic field; says Poe's Raven is "tops" in literature; thinks co-education is a grand system, but admits half-heartedly that his likes for the better half of the system are not confined but general.

Last week a fall on the ice at Big Pines, which he exclaimed he enjoyed thoroughly but which is doubtful, slightly injured his prominent chin, but failed to damage the persistence and will power of which it is significant. He still manages to drag himself out of bed at four thirty a.m. and go through certain strenuous exercises which he claims keeps him fit — fitness being quite evident; more of his athletic accomplishments are swimming and track — we might also mention ice skating; blames his excellent health on the Citizens Conservation Corps, of which he was a member and first medical assistant.

Probably one of his more noticeable Waterloo's—sometimes picked up in bits of intimate conversation — is a condition common to those who find it necessary to live so far away from home, gets lonesome for mother, Marie Smith, and father C. D. but most of all for sister Mary Elizabeth, age seven; but having "hitch-hiked" out here in eleven days and on five dollars, consoles himself with the thought that what has been done before can be done again.

ATTORNEY LECTURES ON COURT PROCEDURE

To do the most toward upholding law and order and reducing crime, we as citizens must by precept and example show our respect for law, stated District Attorney Earl Redwine of Riverside County as he spoke to the students, Saturday evening, February 1, on difficulties encountered in law practice and our duty as citizens in preserving law and order.

In speaking of his career, he stated that the most interesting problem confronting him was the human problem and one thing about this is that the nature of the human problem does not ever change. This unchanging human problem applies to his statement that "Man is man's greatest enemy."

EVENTFUL LIFE OF PROFESSOR REVEALED

His Greatest Discovery — A Wife

Professor L. H. Cushman's first interest in science was noted at S.C.J.C. when he attended school here as a junior in high school. It was at this time that he decided to become a science teacher.

Although born in Lincoln, Neb., he spent the early part of his life in Jamaica with his parents who were missionaries.

After returning from Jamaica, he lived in Missouri for a short time and then came to California. His first two years of high school were spent at Paradise Valley and his last two years at S.C.J.C., from which he was graduated. It was while here at S.C.J.C. that he decided to make the field of science his life's work.

Pacific Union College was the college he chose in which to continue his work. Here he majored in science. During his junior year, he was made laboratory assistant in physics and he filled this position for two years. Upon graduating he accepted the position as science teacher here at S.C.J.C.

After one year of teaching here, he took more science work at the University of Southern California and obtained the degree of Master of Science.

The following year he married Miss Pauline Hemphill and returned to his teaching here. When asked if he made any great discoveries, he said, "Yes, one, I discovered a great wife."

His recent work on the short wave therapy machine has received considerable attention. For the past two summers he has worked with Mr. Falconer of the Falconer Co. Ltd., of Los Angeles, and this year because of a new development which makes tubes last longer, he was sent to New York to do more experimentation. He plans to continue with this experimentation.

This Issue Edited
by Staff "B"

"We'll See You Later in M. B. K."

Just as this issue goes to press, all of the interest at the College is placed on this coming "Open House." As you ask some of the fellows how they are going to decorate their rooms for the sake of our visitors from the other end of the campus, the usual reply is, "I guess I'll sweep it up for a change; that's about all."

Of course, it goes to prove that at least some preparations are being made besides merely getting someone to accompany them to this social function. Perhaps you young ladies do not realize that for those fellows who have to work their entire way and sometimes from early in the morning till class time and then all afternoon, the keeping of a room is somewhat of a problem; therefore when something like this comes up, it is quite difficult to get things under control.

Nevertheless, we hope that you won't be disappointed with what we have to show you at M.B.K. We also hope that all of you without exception will appear that evening. No matter how good looking or timid you think you are, the fellows are all making preparations for your appearance at their home. Try your best to forget your studies for that evening, to take time to be sociable.—C.N.

Youth's Congress

It's coming soon—next month in fact. We've looked forward with anticipation to March 19-22, when the young people of the Southwest will gather for a season of spiritual and social intercourse.

Southern California Junior College is highly honored, being chosen as the location for this convention. It has been selected as a result of its strategic location, its ample facilities for accommodation, and—we are assured, for its spirit of typical Western hospitality.

Upon the students and faculty of S.C.J.C. is dependent, to a large degree, the success of the approaching assembly. Regardless of what is said and done in the meetings that will be conducted, the delegates' true appreciation of the event will be in proportion to the impressions received from our collegiate atmosphere.

Will that atmosphere be one of cold indifference, of "stand-off-ishness," or one of welcome, of cordiality? J.M.P.

JOURNALISM VISITS DAILY PRESS

To see the practical application of the mechanical side of newspaper work, the Journalism class spent a portion of the afternoon in Riverside at the plant of the "Daily Press," Thursday, January 30.

With Mr. L. A. Copeland, assistant business manager of the paper as guide, the class was shown through the editorial, composing, and press rooms. Explanation of each step made the entire process clear.

In the editorial department very early editions of the paper showed the old style of journalism. The Riverside "Daily Press" was first published in 1886. Just outside the proof-reading room stands the teletype machines, electrically operated by an Associated Press employee in Los Angeles who controls in various surrounding cities about ninety machines, which are automatically typed by a single operation news gathered outside of the city and from foreign countries by the Associated Press, an organization of some 80,000 individuals.

Linotypes, the machines for making "mats," and "autoplate," and finally, the presses, with an explanation of each, next occupied attention. The early afternoon edition was on the press at the time of the visit. Each day about 4,000 copies are printed.

Included in the field trip was a personally conducted tour through the famous hostelry, the Mission Inn. Among its many interesting collections are over 700 bells and 300 crosses from every part of the globe.

Concluding the trip was a short visit to Lowe Park, where bronze plates indicate that such famous individuals as Edwin Markham, General Allenby, Joseph Lincoln, Zona Gale, and other notables have planted trees.

Those who made the field trip were, Alyce VanTassel, Elvin Hoag, Millicent Grant, Harriett Simmons, Jean Feuersinger, and their instructor, Professor J. P. Fentzling.

Commercial Club

English is the short wave with which we send messages, Professor J. P. Fentzling brought out in an informal talk to the members of the Commercial Club at the annual club meeting, Wednesday evening, January 29.

Accuracy is essential for a stenographer since nothing is more disconcerting than to have an amanuensis who cannot be depended upon to send out correct letters. He also called to the attention the fact that "God does not endorse inaccuracy."

Professor Fentzling amused the students by reading several examples of faulty spelling, such as "Two clauses separated by a coma," "the prima dona was a little horse," "the boy dressed like Santa Claus and scared the children and later went on a slaying party."

This 'n' That

By Millicent Grant

Seems like L.A. was a refuge for members of both homes this week-end. . . . Did you notice McDermott, Nicolas, and Scott didn't stop at the village, and why? . . . Waldo Nelson is not as arrogant as usual. . . . Did you see the carload Normon Hopman brought back from the city, also Johnny Hopkins, and the group that went to Long Beach? . . . The week-end was too much for Denmark, the heat wasn't on as early as usual Sunday night. . . . A faithful reporter asking a bright young thing the initials of Dist. Att'y Redwine was told to look under Wines in the telephone directory; it must be the younger generation. . . . We wonder if it was really the rain that kept people from the lecture. . . . Some other bright young thing thought Miss Wallace had 3 day measles because she stayed in bed three days. . . . Sunday morning "Chappie" attempted to drain the puddle at the back door of the Girls' Dormitory but it looked as if he had tried to dig up the dorm instead. . . . Helen Kintey received a telephone call Saturday night just before the program which got her out of bed and apparently was from the other end of the campus as she went to the program. . . . Seems as if Pat Clement's week-end was too much for her also as she came back with a bad cold. . . . Bill Smith and Conrad Hay spent quite a bit of time at the girls' dorm Saturday evening (we couldn't find out why). . . . Did you notice the crop of top coats that the rain brought out. Too bad it doesn't rain often, and then maybe we could tell who the well dressed young men are. . . . Those who sit at the tables in the back of the dining room almost needed pontoons on their chairs due to the rain Sunday. . . . There doesn't seem to be very much excitement over the boy's open house next week-end; here's hoping this lack of enthusiasm doesn't last too long. . . . To Lauretta Brines go the honors for eating the most pie Sunday, she reports having eaten three pieces. . . . And then there is the medical student that decided to set up his practice in San Francisco as foggy weather made his hair curly.

ATTORNEY LECTURES

There are two main classes of crime Mr. Redwine asserted; these were proofs of the principle "In nature there are no duplications." are the smaller crimes or misdemeanors, and the major or felonies, the latter resulting in a term at a state prison. Any person accused is given a trial and the purpose of this trial is to determine the real truth of a given situation in an orderly way.

Conflicting instructions given the jury before retiring by the opposing sides is one of the most difficult situations encountered in court procedure, he said. This almost always happens to a certain extent. If this is the case the judge must go over the instructions and correct them to the way the court sees fit.

PROF. FLAIZ OF LOMA LINDA SPEAKS

Those who do not worship God as the Creator and give adoration to Him, throw their souls out of the scheme of the universe, Professor W. C. Flaiz, Bible Instructor at Loma Linda, brought to the attention of the students in vespers Friday evening, January 31.

Those who stand in the presence of God in heaven never cease to sing "Holy, Holy, Lord God of Hosts." Jesus says, "Whoso offereth praise, glorifieth me."

"If thou shalt confess with thine mouth the Lord Jesus. . . thou shalt be saved." There is something in confessing whatever faith we have that makes us strong Professor Flaiz explained. We do not comprehend that the universe was created for the glory of God.

Many students gave their testimonies of praise to the Lord as Professor Flaiz concluded his sermon.

Mu Beta Kappa to Be Scene of OPEN HOUSE

Under a dimmed light that might have been a prairie moon but wasn't, five boys from the Men's Home entertained the girls' Forum, Wednesday night, January 29, with cowboy songs and other old favorites. Olaf Locke, with his guitar; Lawrence Nelson, and his harmonica, Charles Gallion and Carl Rose, with their violins, and Conrad Hay, with what appeared to be something new, cowboy castanets, made up the group. Besides playing Olaf Locke, Lawrence Nelson, and Conrad Hay sang. Olaf Locke also yodeled. The clothes of the boys added a realistic touch to the scene, for they looked as if they had arrived in what they termed the "old buckboard."

Several snappy instrumental numbers were played, during which Lawrence Nelson and Conrad Hay played their instruments with a great show of zeal. Old cowboy songs were sung by the group and when Olaf Locke yodeled one could almost see the aforementioned prairie moon with a lonely cowboy riding along and a coyote wailing in the distance.

OPEN HOUSE

which will probably come later in the school year.

Precedent has made these entertainments two of the most important events of the school year. A crowd of nearly three hundred is expected. Village as well as dormitory students are invited.

The big problem with most of the boys around the campus is to find a young lady who has not been dated for the evening. Only girls who are in regular attendance at school are invited and boys who are slow in asking are likely to find themselves going "stag" unless leap year comes to the rescue.

The deadline for the purchase of tickets was announced to be Tuesday, February 3. If is absolutely impossible for any of the fellows to get tickets by this time, special arrangements may be made with Frank Judson, but Thursday is the final deadline unless some boys have to wait until Friday. Even though emergencies may permit some to get their tickets Sunday morning, none will be sold Sunday afternoon except by special arrangement with the committee.

STUDENTS TAKE PART IN SABBATH SCHOOL

Many of the S. C. J. C. students are taking an active part in the Sabbath school where they are obtaining practical experience for work in later years. Student teachers are found in most of the divisions.

Harold Peck is the assistant superintendent in the Senior division with Ruth Fillback, Harry Scarrillo, and Barbara Steen as other assistants. Olaf Locke, who teaches the orchestra class, is the only student teacher in the division.

Three students are working in the Junior division: Paul Bryson as assistant superintendent with John McWhinney and Victor Anderson as teachers.

DEAN CRANDALL SPEAKS IN CHAPEL

Stick-to-it-iveness is needed by a large number of individuals of today, according to Dean W. Crandall, who spoke in chapel, Monday, January 27. The students were greatly interested by the striking illustrations he presented.

"Many today are just driftwood with no aim in life. Apply yourself to the thing at hand, and stick with it until your opportunity comes," he advised.

Examples from the Bible of those who were occupied with the thing at hand included Gideon, Miriam, Aaron, David, and others. These individuals were prepared when their opportunity came to them.

That a bachelor's tax on "open-house" tickets would serve to relieve a strained situation as most members of that great fraternity would rather do a little asking than to pay the tax — I hope!

Little Nill Becker: There seems to be a national campaign in favor of requiring periodic inspection of brakes on automobiles.

True Blue Conner: That should help a lot, for instead of drivers running over a man; they will probably be able to stop right on top of him.

Waldo Nelson: Paul, a sad thing is happening; I am afraid that I am losing my hearing.

Paul Bunch: That's all right, pal, you've heard everything any way.

Eugene Chapman was invited out to dinner Sabbath afternoon; he must have had an "elegant" time as it was noticed that he forgot to limp on his way home.

Habit is a cable; we weave a thread of it every day, and at last we cannot break it.

Sometimes when a man boasts that he "runs things in his own house," he is merely referring to the washing machine and the vacuum cleaner.

He is the happiest, be he king or peasant, who finds peace in his home. — Goethe.

WOMAN EXPERT GIVES ADVICE ON SHAVING TO MEN

Boston: A woman expert thinks the technique that men use in shaving is all wrong.

Mrs. Beatice Blake, speaking before a beauty counselors' meeting said most men do not know how to shave. They just scrape until the face is cleaned of hair.

She suggests the following operations:

1. Application of cold cream, spreading it over the roughened cheeks.
2. Shaving soap applied in the usual way.
3. With razor, carefully go over the skin. Don't tug the stubble off. A shave that is too close will probably cause skin irritation and redness.
4. Astringents should be applied only by those who have an oily skin. Powder should be used instead of astringents by those men who haven't oily skins.

Alumni

Members of the class of '34 will all remember their chaplain. He was very active in all our activities, particularly so of a religious character. Richard Delafield, was reported by Elder E. M. Remsen as being very active in Hawaii. It is interesting to hear that he is winning many souls in that place with his wife at the present time. He and his wife send greetings by Elder Remsen to their friends in America. Greetings were also sent from Helen Fernandez, a student, who attended here last year.

COLLEGIATE HI-LIGHTS

By Jim Norton

I have always wondered where the idea of ladies proposing on leap year started. The answer came in "The Clock Tower," student publication of Union College, Lincoln, Nebraska.

That leap year was a time for the maid to propose marriage was actually made law in the year 1288. The idea was one of Good Margaret's—Good Margaret of Norway, who was queen of Scotland in the thirteenth century.

"Margaret decreed that 'During the reign of her Majesty, blisssit mageste' every 'maiden ladye of both highe and lowe estate' should have the privilege each leap year to 'bespeak ye man she likes.'"

The good queen even included man's punishment for refusal. If the man "refuses to take her to be his lawful wyfe, he shall be mulcted in ye sum of one pound or less, as is estate may be."

Man's only chance for escape was his ability to prove that he already was "betrothed to one ither woman."

"To be trusted is a greater compliment than to be loved."

SENIOR CLASS OF '36 MEETS TO ORGANIZE

At the first meeting of the year, the senior class of 1936 chose as its president, Mr. Frank Judson is well known at S. C. J. C. having been prominent in school activities. He was the president of the Junior class last year, is a past president of Mu Beta Kappa, and has served on many committees, as well as taking an active part in all student body activities. Other officers elected were: Vice-president, Jean Marie Petrik; Secretary, Barbara Walters; Treasurer, Louise Carr; Chaplain, Don Smith; Parliamentarian, Ivan Martin; Sergeant-at-arms, Willard Bridwell. The faculty advisor selected was Professor Reynolds. This is his eleventh consecutive year of being the faculty advisor to the senior class. Miss Sorenson was selected to act as a second faculty advisor.

Prior to the election, President Cossentine spoke to the seniors on their responsibilities and privileges as members of the class. He urged each member of the class to use his life as a power the remaining school period.

Committees were chosen for the class colors, the picnic, the class night program, the flower, motto, and aim and to choose the speakers for Commencement, Baccalaureate and Consecration.

FACULTY ENJOYS SOCIAL LUNCHEON

Some of the students may have wondered why, from time to time a corner of the cafeteria has been screened off, the tables have been arranged in a convivial group, and the Faculty has gathered there as the students have finished their suppers and have left for worship. The arrangement certainly has not been indicative of a solid Faculty meeting for hard work. Nor has this been the purpose of the gathering. But the members of this body have felt a desire for an occasional meeting on other than a professional basis. Hence last year, under the initiative sponsorship of Professor A. R. Smith, this friendly gathering, begun last year has continued periodically through this year. And to strengthen the incentive to mingle for social friendliness, Mrs. C. M. Sorenson, has prepared and attractively served some of her very special dishes. The result of these informal luncheons has aided in breaking down that wall of partition that so often arises when each buries himself in his work.

WOODSHOP RUSHES LARGEST ORDER

The race against time is on! The woodwork shop has just received an order for two hundred and ninety-six "Packaway" chairs from Palm Springs. The order has to be filled by February 17. Can it be done?

Last summer about the 24th of June, the shop got an order from the Hollywood Bowl for two hundred "Packaways" to be delivered by the third of July. Was it done? You go to the Bowl sometime and see if it was.

This last order is the largest single order yet received by the shop since it was started two years ago. It certainly gives promise of being the start of a successful season.

As the grind for the summer started on the first of June, last year the shop had indeed a difficult situation at hand. All the experienced help had gone with the close of school, and three new fellows were starting to work who never in their lives had seen a

AGRICULTURAL RE- SEARCH STRESSED

Working constantly with the aim to make the farm run on a paying basis and with the desire to have more agricultural work in order that more students can attend S. C. J. C., Prof. Sydney Smith, farm manager, informed the students in chapel Monday, February 3, of the need for research work.

"Mathematics are the same everywhere, but agriculture is different," he explained. "Even a slight difference in climate often-times makes a great difference in

DEAN WALLACE GIVES ILLUSTRATED READINGS

A background, by means of a chalk talk, was provided for several thoughts from well known nature poems, by Dean Wallace in chapel Friday morning, as she drew with colored chalk a forest and sunset behind a small bridge crossing a dark chasm.

Some of the excerpts which Miss Wallace read were as follows:

"Dear friend, I am building a bridge for him," said the old man of the poem who built the bridge for a youth to passover who would come there in the eventide of his life.

"To very man there openeth a highway and a low and every man decideth the way his soul will go."

"Out of the woods my master went and he was well content, Out of the woods my master came content with death and shame."

A. S. B. PRACTICES PARLIAMENTARY LAW

That the women of S. C. J. C. do not wish to wear long hair was definitely decided in the A. S. B. meeting Wednesday, when the students were given an opportunity to practice parliamentary law.

Aubrey Wyatt put the motion before the house that "All women attending S. C. J. C. should have long hair" when Mr. D. Herbert,

PAINTINGS PRESENTED TO HOME BY MRS. MILLER

The women of Southern California Junior College were the honored guests of the men of Mu Beta Kappa on Sunday evening, February 9. In addition to the traditional inspection of the meticulously cleaned, polished and scrubbed Mens' Home, the evening's program included an excellent musical interlude, and the unveiling of a number of paintings which have recently been given to the school by Mrs. Miller of the village.

... new M. B. K. president was inaugurated.

Paul Bunch, out-going president of M. B. K. had general charge of the whole evening's proceedings, with James Norton acting as master of ceremonies. Following the presentation of Mrs. Miller's pictures, and the home inspection, the musical program ensued. Dr. Donald E. Bliss, of Riverside, accompanied by his wife, sang a group of selections including the familiar "Hills of Home" and "Sylvia." "Fuzzy-Wuzzy" and "Three for Jack" were amusing vocal sketches. Antionette Busr-Starke, violin soloist from the Mission Inn, accompanied by Mrs. Abel, played a group of Fritz Kreisler numbers, including a medley of folk tunes, "La Gitana," the negro spiritual, "Nobody knows the Trouble I See," and Caprice Vienoise." Lee Zinn gave the reading, "There's Gold in Them Thar Hills."

Blaine Mc Dermott was officially inaugurated as the new president of M. B. K., after the serving of refreshments in the dining room

Good Publications

Among school publications received at this office we are particularly pleased with the appearance of the CRITERION published out at the Southern California Junior College in La Sierra Heights.

The paper is printed in the magazine style used by small school publications, contains well-selected matter, and is well directed and handled by the students. From the standpoint of news, layout and the proper arrangement of advertising, it is a creditable publication.

The student editor, Miss Jean Marie Petrik, and her staff are to be congratulated, and credit given Prof. J. P. Fentzling for his direction of the literary matter from the faculty standpoint. The business side, also very important for they have the paper printed outside the campus at present, is in competent hands with Don Smith taking part of the advertising and Conrad Hay the circulation. Another Smith, Prof. A. R. Smith of the faculty, is helping Don and Conrad do a good job.

And while we are mentioning student publications, it is fitting to note that the Sherman Bulletin, issued and printed at Sherman Institute by vocational printing students, has made great strides in printed appearance recently. It is now a high class piece of newspaper printing — which speaks well for J. M. Bradley, printing instructor, and his group of boys. — THE ARLINGTON TIMES

CRITERION STAFF PLANS RECREATION

Plans for a trip to be taken soon by the Criterion staff were discussed in a staff meeting held Thursday noon. After much discussion the destination was limited to either the mountains or Los Angeles and the latter was finally chosen. The trip will occupy one entire day and will include various points of interest in Los Angeles in addition to a tour of inspection of the Times building. A committee headed by Ivan Martin and consisting of Millicent Grant and Alyce Van Tassel were selected to decide upon the various places to be visited. Don Smith was chosen to make the arrangements for the "eats."

This trip is to serve as a reward to the members of the Criterion staff who often labor and long and hard with little or no recognition by the student body as a whole.

Winter

By Eleanor Rothgeb

Laughing voices and colors gay,
A swinging rhythm and charming way,
It's winter time, and skating time
The very time I love.

Flashing runners on glistening ice,
Leaning figures and cheery cries,
It's a merry time and a fairy time
With a starry sky above.

Rosy cheeks and sparkling eyes,
A steaming supper, a leaping blaze;
It's a thrilling time and a filling-ing time

When the night wind howls amain.

Tired faces and happy hearts,
A jolly group for home departs;
For a quiet time and a thoughtful time

With the merciful God again.

LIBRARY RECEIVES NEW DICTIONARY

Most students have probably noticed the Webster's New International Dictionary in the library. The need of this dictionary was, no doubt, felt because the increasing knowledge of the age demands new words and new meanings of old words.

The first edition printed was Noah Webster's American Dictionary of the English Language. It was published in 1828 and contained 70,000 words. In 1843, at the death of Noah Webster, G. and C. Merriam acquired all rights in the publication of Webster's Dictionaries.

Now, the greatest and latest Merriam-Webster publication, Webster's New International Dictionary has been published, with 600,000 entries. It is said that this new Merriam-Webster is twenty years newer than any comparable dictionary. The completeness and scope make it an invaluable source of up-to-date information on every subject known to mankind.

In this dictionary one can find the spelling, restore pronunciation, and meanings of words, old and new, humorous, slang, technical, colloquial and reputable. An important help to the understanding of the meanings of entries is the 12,000 pictorial illustrations.

A pronouncing Gazetteer of 35,000 subjects offers up-to-date geographical information covering the entire world. The pronouncing Biographical section gives information on 13,000 noteworthy persons from classical times to the present. Foreign words and phrases are translated and pronounced. Important Mythological, Biblical and Fiction names are identified. Useful information can be readily gained from the thousands of encyclopedic articles found in this publication, in fact, every subject of human or cultural interest.

Every individual ambitious to increase his own education must form the "dictionary habit." First one must learn what the book contains then use it whenever he has a need for it.

Did You Know?

That Genevieve Howell recognized "some one's" whistle when he started coming down the mountain Sunday night?

The pictures donated last night were worth $600?

Paul Bunch did a splendid job of managing the "open house"?

That a certain young man due to too indefinite arrangements on his part found out at almost the last minute that he wasn't taking anyone to the aforementioned "open house"?

That there was a pretty good showing of fur coats at the "open house" — guess the school's going elite?

That certain rooms were so changed by the cleaning preparatory to the event that some of the boys could hardly recognize their own rooms?

That the dean was almost prevailed upon to leave the lights on all night because the poor boys wouldn't know the way around in their rooms after the lights were out?

That an unusually large number of girls were absent from dinner and supper Sunday — perhaps finger wave etc. were responsible.

That the suggested tax on bachelor tickets must not have been imposed as a large number of "stags" were present?

That those who enjoyed "open house" most were the lucky ones that got to eat twice?

That as I am writing this, I see Don Smith and Harold Conner with arms full of lamps and other furnishings going up to Mrs. Clark's?

That a large number of boys stayed home from the Saturday-night program to clean "house" and also spent most of Sunday doing the same thing?

That the attendance at morning worship in the girl's home was rather small — these late hours seem to be rather hard on the girls.

That many unusual methods such as ice and alcohol rubs were used by girls to give their cheeks that "rosy glow"?

That most of the boys had pictures of the "certain girl friends," and it seems that Paul Bunches was the "tops."

Alumni

Members of the class of '34 will all remember (now, please don't make the mistake of blaming either the printer or the editor for the repetition of an alumni article because it isn't the same, even if it does start with the same clause) their treasurer, Ray Barker. Their excellent judgment is demonstrated by the choice of him by another group as their president. Just in case you don't know, Ray Barker was elected president of the senior class at P. U. C. The valedictorian of the class of '34, Clementina Nicolas, is also at P. U. C. Both her name and that of Austin Morgan are found on the editorial staff of the "Campus Chronicle."

Friendship Friends' Futures Foretold

Each girl gazed in the crystal ball far into the future and told what she thought her friendship friend would be doing several years hence. In this unique manner the girls of Gladwyn Hall revealed their friendship friends Thursday evening. The prophecies ranged all the way from doctors, nurses, housewives, and missionaries to opera singers and concert pianists. These revelations proved very interesting as well as humorous.

In keeping with this idea, Evelyn Adams played the part of a gypsy fortune teller. Seated before a boiling caldron, she read a warning in the brew and softly sang "The Gypsy's Warning." It was a very realistic scene as she was in gypsy costume and a large kettle rested on the glowing embers of a campfire.

The girls then filled by and from the gypsy's caldron were each given a Chinese fortune cookie in which was found their fortune and the name of future friendship friend.

the growing of certain plants."

The Lord desires his people to work in the fields. Seventh-Day Adventist schools should follow the instructions given.

Believing ever teacher should be able to do everything he teaches, Mr. Smith lives up to this standard by working in the fields as the students do.

If the laws of the Lord are obeyed, "The Lord will make you the head," as found in Deuteronomy 28:13, and you will prosper.

R. H. Wentland Relates Mission Experiences

Using Matt. 28:20 "... lo, I am with you alway even unto the end of the world," as his text, Elder R. H. Wentland, from French Indo China, spoke during the church hour Sabbath. This text, he told us, was of special help to the Missionaries who had to travel to foreign parts of the earth carrying this message of salvation.

Thousands of poor benighted souls in the Mission fields are heeding the invitation given in that beautiful verse, "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest," he said.

Elder Wentland was the first Adventist missionary ever sent to French Indo China. He and his family were truly pioneers. The first Sabbath School ever held in that country was conducted by him, as was the first "Big Week" and other of our prominent campaigns. Starting from the very beginning was the task that comforted him, for he had to translate all their literature and rewrite the gospel hymns before he could even begin his work.

NOTICE

It appears to be the accepted policy around our news office for everyone to tear open and distribute to all parts of the building, the college papers that come to the editor's desk. We don't mind a great deal, just so your exchange editor gets to see them now and then. He likes to look at the pictures.

chairman of the occasion, asked if there was any business to be brought before the house.

Conrad Hay moved that the motion be laid on the table indefinitely but this was voted down. Then Norman Hopman suggested two points which he thought were in favor of long hair: (1) long hair increases the appearance of age of women, (2) long hair gives more womanly beauty.

As a representative of the La Sierra Barber's Union, Robert Wood explained that this would be a great detriment to their trade.

Mr. Chester Alcorn explained that in the piano solo he played the music went round and round and came out everywhere.

Woodshop Order

"Packaway" or a "Rockerless Rocker." Soon in came a fourteen year old boy to help along with the assembly. Mr. Craig went to work with his fellows, and the beginning of the school brought to a close a quite successful season.

As the jointer, the shaper, the three saws, drills, and the morticer are whirling around at a high speed just now, everyone at the shop is confident that the order will be filled on time. Those who do not know the work of this crew are a bit dubious. Barring the unexpected, the order will go through.

... they had never in their lives seen a "Packaway."

While Mr. Craig insists that particular standards must be rigidly held in the making of the products, and the boys know they must "deliver the goods" when working at the shop, they all gladly admit that he's a "regular fellow," and that they enjoy their work.

If work that is on order is not finished by daylight, sometimes evening time is put in until the order is filled. With this diligence, is it any wonder that the Lord is blessing this young industry as He is?

FORMER STUDENTS UNITED IN WEDLOCK

Miss Beatrice Strearns, daughter of the farm manager, became the bride of Mr. Phillip Reichard Thursday evening at a pretty ceremony solemnized at the home of the bride's parents.

Elder S. T. Borg of Arizona, an uncle of the bride, read the service in the presence of forty-two relatives and friends of the couple. The bride and groom stood before an arbor of ferns and roses to exchange their vows. A large silver wedding bell hung over their heads.

Mr. and Mrs. Reichard were attended by Miss Vera MacKinnon and Mr. George Rutan. For her wedding gown the bride wore white satin with a long veil crowned with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of sweet peas, hyacinth, and maiden hair fern. The maid of honor carried pink and orchid sweet peas. Refreshments were served after the ceremony.

Some of our "pleasingly plump" girls are on a diet of bananas and milk.

In journalism class recently when asked what a style sheet was, Miss Harriet Simmons replied, "The page devoted to fashions."

Freshmen don't know, but they don't know what they don't know. Sophomores don't know, but they know they don't know.

Juniors know, but they don't know what they know.

But seniors know, and they know that they know.

Betty Riley went to her home in Long Beach for the week end.

Harry Hickman, prominent student at S. C. J. C for several years, visited Blaine McDermott and other friends Friday.

Dorothy Nephew, Normal graduate of "35," visited Professor Reynolds and his family Sabbath.

Several of the students enjoyed ice-skating at Big Pines Wednesday and Saturday evenings.

Bill Smith decided Sabbath that he had a magnetic personality because a stray dog wanted to follow him.

Ruth Filbach's family visited her Sunday.

MISSIONARY SHOWS MOTION PICTURES

Three reels of motion pictures which he had taken in the Indo China region were shown by Elder W. H. Wentland, Saturday night in the college chapel.

By means of these pictures each one could go with Elder Wentland to this field and really see the life the people lead in this region. In some of the larger cities a European air prevailed due to the French influence, but in the small native villages one saw the natives exactly as they live day by day. The filth and their unsanitary ways of living almost cause one to wonder how any of them survive beyond childhood, but many of them do and cities are crowded with people. One of the hardest things to get used to is the constant crowd of people to be found anywhere and at anytime, he said.

The land is one of variety; in places swamps about but not far off can be found high mountain ranges. Everywhere it is very damp and warm. Things mildew very quickly and it is hard for Europeans to become accustomed to life in such a place. Due to the swampy condition, malaria and such diseases are prevalent.

Mrs. R. H. Wentland spoke to the girls during the worship period Sabbath evening on the life of a missionary's wife.

Francis Paul, who recently underwent an appendectomy at the White Memorial Hospital, returned to the campus in time for the Men's Open House.

Elder Sorenson spoke at the Colton church last Sabbath. Professor Abel, Bob Woods, Paul MacIntosh sang three male quartet numbers.

GIRLS' IMPRESSION OF OPEN HOUSE

By Millicent Grant

Voicing the sentiments of the girls after the open house, it seems that they all enjoyed it immensely. Perhaps the most humorous mention made of it was by Evelyn Adams, when she was heard to say that it was a "pondiferous success."

The work of Paul Bunch and Blaine McDermott in preparing the program is to be commended. Expressions heard when asking a group of girls of their feelings regarding it were superb, magnificent, magnanimous and the like.

Going through the rooms was probably the most memorable part of the evening. All the rooms looked very nice but some appealed to the feminine nature more than others. The vote for the most original room passably goes to Bill Smith, with his jungle atmosphere. We take our hats off to Ronald Scott and Carlos Nicolas for having the neatest and cleanest appearing room, as well as being very good looking. Jerry Smith and Conrad Hay's unique ideas, such as their curtains and the auto-graphed skulls were enjoyed. Gurli Paulson investigated something that was supposed to be rocks, but she found out to be very good candy. Marvin Larsen and Earl Shearn seem to have gone primitive, having an old fashioned lantern hanging from the ceiling with a green light in it. "Dennie" and "Eddie" seemed to have the home like atmosphere in their room—at least so it looked by the group that was making themselves at home there. Many occupants of the rooms were guessed, because of the "tattle-tale" photographs.

Miss Wallace is probably a more reliable source for the true feelings of the girls than anyone else. When asked what her impressions were, she said, "One should think a long time before saying anything that is going into print. I enjoyed the musical program very (stressed) much—also the unveiling ceremony as well as going through the rooms of the residents of Mu Beta Kappa." What more can we say?

Philosophy and Wit

By Lee Zinn

Isn't it a shame that "Open House" doesn't come more often? It is one time when every corner is swept out. Never saw so much house cleaning done by boys in my life, and were the girls surprised what good housekeepers the boys are! Sure looks like times are changing.

"I don't want any callers this afternoon," said the business man to the new office boy. "If they say their business is important, just tell them, 'That's what they all say.'"

Soon thereafter a lady called and insisted on seeing the boy's employer.

"I'm his wife!" she exclaimed. "Yeah," said the boy, "that's what they all say!"

OPPORTUNITY OFTEN COMES in overalls and most folks don't penetrate the disguise.

After spending sometime taking Gracie Clement's temperature and making different tests to see if she had the measles Miss Paulson said, "The only thing I can find wrong is that you have on a little too much make-up."

YOU'LL NEVER GET INDIGESTION from swallowing your pride occasionally.

Dean Crandall: "How come you write so slowly, Jack?"

Jack Cales: "I gotta. My girl can't read very fast."

A NOTED NEW YORK lung specialist says that a man who sings at the top of his voice for an hour upon arising will not be troubled by chest complaints in his old age. The chances are he won't even be troubled by old age. (This written especially for some boys in the men's home.)

A chapel speaker, booked to address S. C. J. C., was unable to reach his destination because a flood had washed away a portion of the railroad. He sent this telegram:

"Cannot come. Washout on line."

Soon came this reply:

"Borrow a shirt and come anyhow."

OUR IDEA OF PERFECT cooperation is when all the freckles on a girl's face come together and make a beautiful tan.

PATH OF LIFE DEPICTED BY ELDER MacGUIRE

Speaking on the path which Christian young people should follow, and their duties to the world if this path is followed, Elder Meade MacGuire, Associate Secretary of the Ministerial Association, spoke during the church hour, Sabbath February 15.

By the use of Psalms 16:11 and similar texts Elder MacGuire pointed out that the right path is the path of life which will assure one of joy and pleasures for evermore. In this way can true happiness be obtained. The gratification of selfish carnal desires does not bring true happiness, he said.

This path with all its genuine happiness also involves the follower with certain definite responsibilities. All young people should have as their definite mission in life the salvation of souls. In Revelations 18:1-4 is to be found the message to be given to the world in these last days. But before such a message can be given one must know what is implied by the term Babylon, he stated. Under the name Babylon is included all the idolatry and paganism of the world. Conditions in the world today are rapidly approaching those which led to the down-fall of Babylon and Rome, and in order to be sure of salvation one must separate from Babylon and give the call to others.

SUNSHINE BAND BECOMES ACTIVE

Missionary work in the form of a Sunshine Band has been recently organized by Anna Becker in which visits are greatly appreciated by the persons visited as well as enjoyed by the participants.

Dividing the band into three groups under the leaderships of Betty Riley, Delpha Rocke, and Eleanor Rothgeb, each group visits two homes every Sabbath afternoon.

Sunshine is spread by means of songs as well as the flowers which have been so readily donated by Elder C. M. Sorenson. Invalids and shut-ins feel very grateful for the thoughtfulness shown them.

Eighteen or twenty students go each week to do this missionary work, and the blessings of God are showered upon all who are concerned. All who desire to have a part in this kind of Sabbath afternoon diversion, please see Miss Anna Becker. She will be more than pleased to put you in one of the groups.

POWER OF ADVENT MESSAGE TOLD

"But this one thing I do, . . . I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." Phillipians 3: 14-15, Elder Meade MacGuire, Associated Secretary of the Ministerial Association used as the text in an inspirational talk to the students Friday evening.

If the apostle Paul had to keep just one thing in mind to be successful, Elder MacGuire emphasized how much more that should be true with the present generations.

There is power in the advent message. Elder MacGuire was required to pay 250 pesos to enter Mexico to preach. When he left Mexico his 250 pesos were returned for the officials had been impressed with his message.

There is a place for every student in the work. Elder MacGuire impressed the students that this should be their aim in life for in this world there is no aim.

YOUTH'S CONGRESS

For the purpose of bringing together the young people of the Southeastern California-Arizona Conference to discuss present day problems under the direction of experienced leaders, a Youth's Congress will be held at S. C. J. C. March 19-22. As this is the first Youth's Congress to be held in the

ELDER G. A. ROBERTS SPEAKS IN CHAPEL

God has called the youth to the high and exalted position of being shepherds to the unshepherded flock in the world today that do not know this message, Elder G. A. Roberts, Chairman of the Board of Directors, brought to the attention of the students, Friday morning.

As all young people are called to be Christians, they should show this in their faces and action. Elder Roberts further illustrated this by explaining that one's thoughts make lines on his face just as a pen makes lines on paper.

Leaders are needed in every walk of life, and with this thought in mind Elder G. A. Roberts urged the students to prepare for a life of leadership. He explained that this is not necessarily executive leadership, but as leadership because of a knowledge of the message of God. First, all must be leaders of self before being leaders of anyone else.

STUDENTS IMPRESSED WITH VALUE OF HONOR

Bringing out from Elbert Hubbard's "A Message to Garcia," the importance and value in keeping one's word regardless of the hardships it might bestow upon the individual, Professor J. P. Fentzling interested the students in his chapel talk Monday, February 10.

Responsibility comes in many ways. One may be called upon to give his word of honor. This word, promise, means "something sent forth."

One's word of honor should not be treated lightly. It is better not to promise and then fulfill it, than to vow and then break the promise.

Nowadays the "survival of the fittest" is prevalent. In all business houses as well as other places, a weeding out of the less important workers is going on. Only those who can carry "a message to Garcia" will be the ones who keep their word and their positions.

Pacific Union Conference, the leaders are very anxious to make it a success.

Timely messages will be brought to the attention of the young people by Elders Alonzo Baker, D. A. Ochs, Meade MacGuire, and J. G. Ashbaugh.

SENIORS PREPARE FOR YEAR'S ACTIVITIES

Seniors of '36 are already hard at work preparing for the various activities to be sponsored during the remainder of the school year.

Royal Blue and Cream were the colors that were selected by the class in a recent meeting held during the physical education period. Harry Seiarillo, Jean Marie Petrik, and James Keeton were the committee elected by the class to bring in a group of colors from which these were chosen.

Various other committees have been selected, such as the committee for the senior picnic, class night, aim, motto, flower, and a committee to choose the speakers for Consecration, Baccalaureate, and Commencement. These committees are all hard at work and the results of their labor will soon be seen.

S. C. J. C.-ites NOTED AT P. U. C.

In looking over the recent editions of the Campus Chronicle one notes that there are quite a group at P. U. C. that are former S. C. J. C.-ites.

At the top, probably comes the newly elected president of the senior class, Raymond Barker a pre-medical graduate from this school. Ruth Olsen, sister of Marie Olsen, was elected as vice-president of this same senior class. Other members of the class (from here) are: Virginia Garrett, Muriel Harlow, Milton Lee, and Clementina Nicholas.

James Lee, former student is now editor-in-chief of the Campus Chronicle with Austin Morgan, Clementina Nicolas, Marguerite Siglinger, Muriel Harlow, and Lowell Ford as members of the staff. Miss Siglinger will be remembered as a former assistant dean of women here.

Former S. C. J. C. women students are prominent in the affairs of Graf Hall, as was shown in a recent Girls' Hour election in which Virginia Garrett was elected president and Clementina Nicolas elected vice-president.

By this, it seems that S. C. J. C. is very able to give the training necessary for leadership, (as most of the leaders seem to have "hailed" from here.)

Other S. C. J. C.-ites are Lucille Palmer, one of the leaders of the recent Campus Chronicle campaign, Fern Unger, Eunice Remsen, Lolo Olmstead, Bernice Prout, Robert Garrett, Stanley Folkenberg and Cecil Olmstead.

TWO YEAR COLLEGES

CALIFORNIA LEADS THE NATION

By Herbert Johnson

California again leads the nation in the race for the largest attendance and number of junior colleges, according to a recent survey completed by Doak S. Campbell, secretary of the American Association of Junior Colleges. The largest junior college in number of students is to be found in California at the Los Angeles Junior college, with 4988 students, while Mount Carmel Normal school in New Orleans, La., with 10 freshmen and 2 sophomores, is the smallest junior college.

The state of Texas had the second largest number of junior colleges and the second largest number of students in attendance.

Probably the oldest junior college in the number of years is Concordia college, a two-year institution located at Fort Wayne, Ind., which was established in 1839. Concordia has no full time instructors and only nine part time instructors to teach its 51 students, 27 of whom are sophomore and 24 freshmen.

Los Angeles Junior college, besides having the largest number of students in attendance, also has the largest number of full time instructors, 178; many of the junior colleges do not have any full time instructors, but only part time teachers.

There are 4970 full time instructors employed by junior colleges throughout the nation, but only 3996 part time instructors.

There were only 19 junior colleges prior to the turn of the 20th century. Of these only two were in existence prior to 1850. Within the past 35 years 500 junior colleges have been created and within the last year four new junior colleges have been erected. One is the new San Francisco Junior college, while the other three are located in Alabama, Kansas, and New York.

Proof that there is need for the junior college is shown by the fact that 500 junior colleges have been created within the past 35 years.

Have You Heard This?

A few days ago it was decided by the staff to write a little about the folk of whom the CRITERION seldom writes. A number of informal interviews followed.

Perhaps the most interesting individual who was interviewed was Mildred Wissenhutter. She reads for a pastime and says that narrative poetry such as Longfellow's "Evangeline" or Sir Walter Scott's "Lady of the Lake" suit her liking. Mildred likes both classical and popular music, but not jazz. She readily admitted that she was only eighteen years old; and therefore too young to enter medical school even though she's a second year college student.

Dwight Herbert is a married ministerial student, father of two children, who is working his way through school by running a milk route. He says that although he likes sleeping very much, preaching is by far his favorite pastime. "Herby," as he is known to the fellows, likes popular music, but hates jazz. He wears a necktie because it is conventional, not because he likes to.

Mr. Stearns has a fourteen year old son who is a freshman in the academy. Erman wants to be an engineer when he gets through with school. He likes to read, work algebra problems, eat ice cream, and listen to cowboy music. Blue is his favorite color, and "Is that so?" is his favorite saying.

One of the academic seniors, Dorothy Raley, likes ice skating for a pastime. She prefers brunettes, and hasn't quite decided what she'll pick as her life's career. She has traveled in China, Japan, Korea, Hawaii, and quite extensively through the United States.

Mae Smith says that she much prefers to be out of doors, and that is why she likes to go horseback riding better than anything else. Strawberry short cake is her favorite dessert. She is taking a pre-nursing course. She thinks that blondes, brunettes, and redheads are all the same.

Carl Willers thinks that sleep is precious inasmuch as he has to work at night. Pie-a-la-mode is his favorite dessert. He says that not wearing a necktie is his pet aversion. He likes blondes. He knows that he should like classical but prefers popular music just the same.

Louise Bunch thinks that sewing is her favorite pastime. She isn't sure though. She doesn't know what she will do when she "grows up" although she has an idea she'll be a nurse like most girls nowadays. She likes all of Edgar Guest's poetry. She thinks that chocolate ice cream is the ideal dessert.

Horace Kelly reads while he listens to the radio. Kipling's "Recessional" suits his literary taste. He was one of the few interviewed who had a hobby—photography being his. He is a second year pre-med. Unlike most fellows, he likes to wear a necktie.

 PARK BENCH HERMIT By Jack Waller *****

He could not fit his dreams into the mold

Of ultra-modern neon nights:
Nor catch the note of music in the horns

Which, mingled with the news-boy's chant,

Composed the background of his little world.

He could not feel the drama of the race

That surged around the plaza where he sat,

The struggle for the gain of gold
To ward against a grim uncertainty

That wiser men called life.

He lived and paid the rent upon his room

With windows looking down upon an alley.

He ate a humble fare around the table

That the lady of the boarding house provided,

And shared his pension with the down-and-out

With whom he had encounters in the park.

The traffic jostled past in endless file

Of trollies, large machines, and small —

His eyes were on a cabin in a clearing,

On husky boys at work with saw and ax,

A blue-eyed vision in a homespun gown,

Elusive, never quite within his grasp

And lost at last like other dreams
Within the strange confusion of the traffic.

And so each day he sat, and those who passed

On daily missions in their quest for life,

All came to know him well and smiled

To see him in his customary place.

And those who chanced to pass but once,

And saw him staring at the skies
Above the tallest structures of the city

Just passed him by without a glance,

Or simply called him "bum."

Since John Libby has been married, he has learned to like a necktie. Hiking in the hills is his favorite pastime along with eating any kind of pie. He likes all of Edgar Guest's poetry, but he dislikes popular music. Setting tile is his vocation.

John Hopkins says he likes blondes better than brunettes. He isn't quite sure as to what "classical music" includes. He doesn't care for literature any too well. He is twenty years old now, and he says that he will probably join the navy when he's twenty-one. His favorite saying is "Hello, Arch!" When asked what his favorite pastime was he said that he liked to "monkey around with cars."

Edna Markley eats oat meal cookies for a pastime. She thinks that coeducation is very educa-

SENIOR CLASS OFFICERS YOU SHOULD KNOW

Frank Emerson Judson, the tall forceful Senior Class President who comes to us from Escondido. He was born at the Glendale Sanitarium November 17, 1914. He has spent the first 21 years of his life in the San Pasqual Valley and attended school there until his Senior year of high school when he attended the San Diego Academy, where he was head of the Associated Student Body. Last year was his first year here. He was president of Mu Beta Kappa and president of the Junior class. Plans for the future are to major in science and then get a job as a farm manager or government inspector. His hobby is riding horse back. As to musical talents, he plays the piano — but says he only sings to himself.

Jean Marie Petrik, the attractive brunette vice-president of the Senior class and editor of the paper. She was born in Lincoln Nebraska, April 22, 1916, but spent most of the first six years of her life at Havre, Montan. Her high school work was taken at Glendale Union Academy where she was an assistant editor of the paper. The following year at Glendale Junior College she was the chemistry lab. assistant and a member of Tau Alpha Delta science club. This year she is completing the pre-medical course and plans to enter Loma Linda.

Rosella Louise Carr the brunette pre-nursing student who is the treasurer of the Senior class. Although born at Washington D. C., May 9, 1917, she lived in Shanghai, China until she was six. She attended grammar school at Glendale and spent her first year of high school at Glendale Union Academy. She took piano from Prof. Irving A. Stienel and played with the orchestra of the Sidney F. Meyers School of Music in Glendale. Finishing pre-nursing this year, she plans to enter nurses training at the Glendale Sanitarium.

You Should Know — Barbara Katheryn Walters, the vivacious secretary of the senior class was born in Perris, California. The first part of her life was spent in Elsinore, where she completed her grammar grades and first year of high school. Her last years of high school were spent at S. C. J. C. from which she was graduated.

Later she was also graduated from S. C. J. C.'s Normal course and has been teaching for three years in the Riverside church school. Her main hobby seems to be that of losing compacts, having lost eight (or thereabouts) this year.

Ivan E. Martin, the parliamentarian and a pre-medical graduate. He was born in Escondido, June 7, 1915 and attended grades 1 to 8 at the Paradise Valley Sanitarium church school, and attended the Los Angeles Academy for his freshman and sophomore years in high school. His junior year in high school he came to S.C.J.C. and has been here ever since. He is a past president, vice-president, secretary, and treasurer of Mu Beta Kappa. Finishing pre-med this year, he plans to enter Loma Linda.

Donald Louis Smith from Hartford City, Indiana, who was (according to his own statement) born so many years ago he can't remember. He attended Grammar school in Hartford City and then went to Cicero, Indiana where he attended the Indiana Academy. After attending Broadview College for one year he came to S. C. J. C. He was president of his senior class at Indiana Academy and president of the junior class at Broadview College. This year he is the Business Manager and Advertising Manager of the Criterion and a monitor in addition to his new office — chaplin of the senior class. Being a pre-medical student he plans to be a doctor and hopes to enter Loma Linda next year.

Philosophy and Wit

Again the six weeks test have come and gone. Students have burned the midnight oil. I hope that when the grades come out that the chagrined look on so many of the students faces will pass away.

PESSIMISM pays no dividends.

REMEMBER IT WAS Washington who said: "Think before you speak."

Some of the girls from Gladwyn Hall went to the farm to hire a horse.

Mr. Stearns asked them, "How long will you want it?"

One of the girls replied, "The longest one you have — there are eight of us to ride him."

COLLEGE-BRED DOESN'T always mean well-bred.

ALL YOU NEED TO TAME A LION is a buggy whip — and a generous portion of common sense.

Voice on the phone: "Helen Herzer is sick and can't come to class. She asked me to notify you."

Miss Scott: "All right. Who is this speaking?"

Voice: "This is my roommate."

THERE IS A SAYING: Your sins will find you out.

STUDENTS SPEAK IN SEMINAR GROUP

Having as its speaker two students, Miss Eloise Callendar and Mr. Ernest Broadbent, the seminar held its usual meeting following the vesper services, Friday evening.

Choosing as the subject for his talk "The Second Coming of Christ," Mr. Broadbent spoke, showing the nearness of the soon coming of Christ, and forcibly impressed his listeners with the necessity for immediate preparation for this event which will be the climax of all earthly events.

"Will Power" was the subject which Miss Callendar chose to speak on. What one can do through the proper use of will power and by the help of God was brought out in her talk.

Special music was furnished by Mary Sidmore and Marie Gillespie who sang "My Only Hope," accompanied by Roselyn Trummer.

Elder Sorensen, as is the custom, offered constructive criticism at the close of the program.

Dear Mr. Fentzling:

Please do not censure this letter too severely, for I am going to combine a business and friendly letter in one.

First, I would like to say that I miss dear, old Southern California Junior College, and faculty members, and friends.

It is hard to understand why we must have hard experiences in life. I have reference to the tearful time I had in Introductory English. I thought that intransitive and transitive verbs, direct and indirect objects, active and passive voices would hound me the remainder of my days.

It cost me exactly ten dollars to get my coveted grade of ninety-two in that class, besides the endless afternoons, and should I add the time you so courageously helped me? I thank you for being so patient with me.

And if it may be a word of encouragement to those who are still taking the class and having a hard time, tell them I am glad now that I had to take two semesters of it. As you know, in the type of work I am doing, a preceptress has to be an Information Bureau after a fashion. You might ask Miss Wallace. I have a heart filled with understanding for her.

It has been my privilege to help freshmen, sophomores, juniors, and dignified seniors with English grammar. I know that I know what intransitive verbs are. I have to help with geometry and algebra lessons too. I find my work very interesting.

I might add that I am going to tutor a girl in grammar this summer. So after all, I feel that everything was for the best. I am not sorry one bit that you insisted that I take the class twice.

The CRITERION is much appreciated over our way. It is like receiving news from home.

Give my best regards to the students who were there last year. Thank you.

May God bless you in your work and heavy responsibilities. Give my kindest regards to the other faculty members.

Sincerely a friend,
Helene Osborn

The OLD OBSERVER

You may have noticed the be-raggled-looking bathrobe that our new M. B. K. president wears. The Old Observer finally got enough courage to ask him where he got such a piece of "Wearing apparel."

It seems there was once a little rule in the army making it compulsory for the men to wash their robes once a week. Finally the rule was lifted. An officer who belonged to the 177th Pursuit Squadron at the Pridio decided to find out how long he could go without washing his robe.

However, this marathon was cut at four years when the man became the victim of an airplane crash. At this time the robe became the property of Blaine's father who is also an officer in the army. He used it four more years without having it laundered. Three years ago Blaine got it from his dad, and he hasn't broken the tradition yet. It can plainly be seen that the robe can't possibly last eleven more years.

Have you noticed that Mae Smith is learning how to play tennis? With such an able teacher it shouldn't take her very long to learn the fine art of racket wielding. However, this pastime isn't as appealing to Florence Costley as going down to the dairy to help with the milking and feeding of the calves. The Old Observer wonders sometimes about the various pastime of certain individuals?

After going through some of the rooms during "Open House" the Old Observer also wondered how some of the fellows managed to retire without getting lost in their rooms after the lights went out; nevertheless it's a challenge to the young ladies. Although the lawn games and postum were enjoyed following the CRITERION campaign, a chance to compare homes would be greatly appreciated by most of the M. B. K-ites.

An orchid and a pat on the back to A. Lee, alias Leopold, Zinn, the philosopher and humorist, for his neat bit of pinch-hitting at the "Open House" program. Toddleoo until four weeks from now!

If you should happen to run out of thread to mend your socks, you can probably secure some from Charles Gallion; for he has what appears to be a section of the Atlantic cable. However, on close examination it is only a piece of choice jute rope that he uses for the purpose.

Anyway, the Old Observer bids you "Toodleooo" until four weeks from now.

A group of nine girls in Gladwyn Hall entertained themselves at a party before study period, Saturday night.

Mary Thompson is moving out of the dormitory to live with Prof. and Mrs. J. P. Fentzling.

June Nelson, Thedora Boyd and Lorayne Swartout are new residents of Gladwyn Hall.

James Keeton and Ronald Perry are getting practical nurses' training in looking after the "flu" patients of M. B. K.

At the Woodcraft Home, last Sabbath afternoon, Olaf Locke spoke on the "Manner and Purpose of Christ's Second Comng." Delpha Locke played a trombone solo, and Annella Carr played a piano solo. Conrad Hay had general charge of the meeting and Waldo Brown gave the Scripture reading.

Florence Costley had as visitors over the week-end her mother and small brother.

The A Capella Choir made its first appearance of the season on Sunday morning at the Southeastern California-Arizona Conference constituency meeting in Loma Linda.

Edith Rice visited school Tuesday morning and renewed old acquaintances.

Walter Freeman's Austin was found sitting half way on the curb, after school recently. Someone must have enjoyed himself.

Dorothy Raley spent Saturday evening visiting friends in Loma Linda.

Harriet Simmons' father visited her Sabbath afternoon and took her to see her sister in Loma Linda.

club the whole time was turned over to the boys. Among the selections played, two of the favorites were, the ever popular numbers "The Old Refrain" by Kreisler and "In a Persian Market." The other numbers, although not as well known, were equally enjoyed. That specific touch which is necessary to make an artist out of a musician was manifest by Mr. Gallion throughout the program, in addition to the usual technical skill. To Jerry Smith should also go some commendation for his excellent accompaniment. It was evident by the applause which followed that the girls enjoyed the program very much.

CHAPEL PROGRAM DEDICATED TO GEO. WASHINGTON

With chapel, February 21, dedicated to George Washington, Prof. K. J. Reynolds both interested and amused the students by reading from "Famous First Facts" things George Washington never heard, saw, or had.

George Washington's mother never had to say: "Now Georgie, eat your spinach, you need your vitamin D, for vitamins had never been heard of."

Photographs were not invented until 40 years after his death. The pictures seen of him are from paintings.

In front of his farm there was no mail box, for there was no mailman, because there were no letters for him to deliver as there were no postage stamps.

Washington never heard an orchestra, for he died ten years before the first orchestra was organized in America, nor did he ever know the "Star Spangled Banner," or "America," but he probably did know and sing "Yankee Doodle."

Because radio had not yet been invented, he never had to listen to the "Music Goes 'Round and 'Round."

VALUE OF CHRISTIAN COURTESY SHOWN BY Y. P. M. V.

Courtesy in the home, on the campus, in church, and in public was emphasized as a part of Christianity by the Misses Markley and Brines and Messrs. Aitchison and Neidigh in the M. V. meeting Friday evening.

"If your christianity does not teach you to be courteous at all times there is something the matter with it." Miss Edna Markley explained as she showed that courtesy is a real attribute to personality.

Mr. Jim Aitchison while suggesting several rules of etiquette for the campus mentioned that character is made up of small acts. Everyone should be courteous whether he wants to or not for it makes others happy as it will him in time.

"All frivolity should be laid aside when we enter the church," Miss Lauretta Brines stressed as she spoke of prayer being the time when individuals speak with God.

Mr. Roger Neidigh recalled the fact that times have changed but that "fundamental principles of Christian courtesy are exactly the same." A little act of kindness is what helps make the world bright and cheery.

W. J. Hole Interviewed on Recent South Sea Cruise

Three turtles, each weighing over 400 pounds, were brought back from the Galapagos Islands by Mr. W. J. Hole on returning from his annual fishing trip in the South Pacific this year, as reported in a recent interview. Mr. Hole is a prominent resident of La Sierra Heights who has done much toward helping the College.

Besides these turtles a queer fish resembling a chinese dragon was found and named for Mr. Hole. When asked about this fish he replied, "I was going to say I invented it, but it looks so much like the devil I would hate to think I invented it." In the Exposition Park Museum in Los Angeles this fish and many others have been mounted in a special room for his collections.

Mr. Hole stopped at Ecuador to get permission to visit the Galapagos Islands. It seems that so many things have been carried away from the islands that all visitors must get permission from the government to visit. While anchored at Manta, Ecuador, every kind of Panama hat was brought to them, as this is the home of Panama hats, Mr. Hole remarked.

The Galapagos Islands are located on the equator, 600 miles off the coast of Ecuador in the Pacific Ocean and are sparsely inhabited by human beings. However about 36 different species of animals are found there.

While stopping at La Union, Salvador, he and his guests visited a fair to which the natives brought every loose object they had, including livestock, to trade with each other. Among the great assortment Mr. Hole was interested in the Mexican swords that have long blades. The natives become experts in using these and can even mow lawns with them.

He explained that he makes a trip similar to this one every year, sometimes going along the south coast of Mexico in the Gulf of Lower California or through the Panama Canal to the Caribbean Sea and the Atlantic Ocean. Several years ago he made an interesting trip 1000 miles up the Amazon River.

The yacht he makes these trips in is called "Samona." It is powered by Diesel engines, and is approximately 125 feet long. "Samona" was coined by Mr. Hole from "Samuel" and "Ramona," the names of two of his grandchildren.

Elder M. P. Robison Tells of Difficulties Encountered

Portraying the difficulties encountered in traveling through different political divisions in South Africa, Elder M. P. Robison, educational secretary of that division, forcibly brought home to the student body in chapel, Monday, February 17, the need for large thirteenth Sabbath offerings, which bring about a faster spreading of the gospel to all the world.

That the gold fields recently discovered in the Orange River country, produce a vast amount of this product was stated by the speaker. In Johannesburg, gold mines are over a mile in depth. More than one-half of all the gold in the world is being produced there.

The government takes care of the large amount of diamonds that are discovered in this region. Each uncut diamond must be registered. The IDB, illicit diamond buying, project manages this very well, he said.

With reference to transportation difficulties, procrastination is characteristic of the officials in issuing either a passport or credentials. Numerous photographs may be required, as well as signatures while traveling from one district to another. In addition to the trouble thus caused, a charge is made for each item.

Gasoline varies in price from twenty-two cents to seventy-five a gallon, this former teacher and president of Hildeberg College said.

The South African Government requires each foreigners to sign in and out from the original locality, through junctions, to final place of destination. Another charge is made if these places are not met on schedule.

ASSISTANT LEADER CONDUCTS SEMINAR

A large group attended seminar Friday evening after M. V. meeting. The program was conducted by John McWhinney, the assistant leader. The special music was furnished by Lawrence Nelson as he sang "God's Way Is the Best Way."

The first speaker was Betty Riley. Her topic was "Health," "Preparation for Christ's coming," she said, "should be physical as well as mental and spiritual."

The second topic was "Christainity." It was presented by Waldo Brown. He stated that Christianity originated at Antioch. "Christianity is power, it gives us a new foundation."

WEEK OF PRAYER

Recently over the radio an announcement was made by a minister of some other denomination to the effect that the annual "All prayer day" of that denomination was soon to be held. The minister spoke earnestly of the added need of prayer at this time and urged that all take part.

Surely, if the rest of the world feels the need of a special day set aside for prayer, how much more we, Seventh-day Adventists, who realize what is coming and what must be faced in the very near future should appreciate the necessity for a deeper Christian experience and prayer life. Next week we commence our Spring Week of Prayer. We should begin our heart preparation now in order to derive the utmost benefit from this week. Don't let us put off this heart searching until the last minute, and, upon entering the week of prayer find that we are totally unready to receive the blessings which may be poured out upon those who are "hungering and thirsting after righteousness." Through constant surrender of our hearts and minds, and through earnest endeavor to overcome the little faults which we may have, let us prepare ourselves now that we may begin the early part of the week to gain new blessings.

It is a great privilege to be able to come to the Lord in prayer. Especially should we be thankful for our opportunities to commune with a gracious and all-powerful Maker at this time when our need for strength, courage, forbearance, and a deeper, fuller Christian experience is so evident.

Those who make the most of the important work of this week will derive a definite benefit not only spiritually, but mentally, and physically as well.

During the coming week "it is our privilege to drink largely at the fountain of boundless love."

Let us each purpose in our hearts to go all the way.

Note: (Because of such an unusual assortment of school names, I've endeavored to write a little story with last names. The capitalized words are students' names. Of course, not every one's name could be used, and a few of the students whose names are used have dropped school.)

Once upon a time the sons of PAUL, ALBERT, AITCHI, ANDER, BEN, SWAN, DAW, BRY, DONALD, JUD, MUN, NEL, PATTER, ED, THOMP, decided to come to America. These YOUNG sons, quite ANKIN, observed by the CALLENDAR that the day was CLOSE at hand when their good FORTUNE should carry them over the MILES of the Atlantic.

They thought their CHANCE wouldn't be so COSTELY if they came in a BUNCH.

So they boarded a ship from HOLLAND. On this ship were travelers from DENMARK and also who had come part way in a GALLION from SPAIN.

With their AMES high and their CHINNS up they felt very GAY, for soon each would be a FREEMAN. Though they felt good, they PARR-took not of the GINN and TRAUTWEIN at the ship's BAR-to. In the evening they HURDA SCIARRILLO FUERSINGER, which was very beautiful.

At night the POWERS of the GALE surely did ROCKE the boat so they would LAY on their PELLOWS and dream of the new HOLMES they would build in the New World.

Finally the trip was over and they landed. With keen appetites they devoured their first American meal which consisted of HERRON kept fresh in BRINES of LESLIE salt, plenty of KNUDSEN'S buttermilk and cheese, POTTS of LIBBY'S canned goods, with MCINTOSH apple pie for dessert.

After dinner they took a QUICK ride in their first CARR. It surely was a WHEELER.

Then they set to work to locate and build in various burgs.

Some choose to live in ELLENBURG in the DALE where a GROVE of BIRCH trees swayed and MARTINS sang.

Some chose TOPPENBURG near HEMPHILL where there was plenty of WOOD and COLE to burn.

The rest chose KANNENBURG where the view was SEAWORD. Here it would not FREESE.

On each GRANT of land BROWN and WHITE houses with STEELE LOCKES appeared. When they were DUNN they were furnished. Some could even afford DAVENPORTS.

ROSES and HEATH blommed in the yards. They did not raise ALCORN but also HAY and their GARNERS were full of wheat. They made a scare-KROMAN for each garden to keep away the birds.

They had animals, too. Pigs were WALLER-ing in the mud

PHYSICS DEMONSTRATES STRANGE PHENOMENA

Lighting up an electric bulb without actual connection with the current, and popping corn by use of a high tension wire were among the interesting trings done by Prof. L. H. Cushman in a demonstration during chapel hour Wednesday, February 19.

Professor Cushman explained that the light bulb is lighted by current jumping from one heavily-charged plate to another. The bulb was placed between the two plates.

A neon tube was also lighted when it was placed across two high tension wires, and it was demonstrated that these wires could be shorted without affecting the light. The students were also shown two radio tubes, one about the size of a large acorn, the other approximately 18 inches high. The small tubes are used in pocket-size portable receiving and transmitting sets, and the large type tubes are used in sets of very high power.

HYPOCRISY IS THEME OF TALK BY L. E. BIGGS

Having as his subject "Hypocrites, real and imaginary," Elder L. E. Biggs, a representative of the Pacific Press, spoke during the church hour, Sabbath morning, February 22.

Imaginary hypocrites are worse than real hypocrites. Elder Biggs said that he could not remember of having ever seen a real hypocrite.

Satan's favorite device is to bring upon one the acquisition of hypocrisy to fling at some one else. Elder Biggs also stated that Satan's greatest helpers in this were those people who made it their business to find fault with those with whom they do not agree. However, if Jesus Christ is in one's life there will be no hypocrisy.

Elder Biggs appealed to the youth by saying they should not be guided or turned aside by hypocrites, real or imaginary, but determine instead not to be one.

and chicken PECK-ing in the yard.

When things were going fine they took up trades. They had a BAKER, MASON, BARBER, SCHUMANN, SMITH, TAYLOR, COUNCILMAN, HUNTER, and even a BREWER.

The Hunter must rise at the COX's crow in order to bring in his BUCK. His SCOTT-ish terrier proved no good for hunting but his NIEDIGH was HANDY for prowlers. He could HOWELL too.

The town flourished well. An EMDE (M. D.) kept them from being SCHMITT-en with disease and few GRAVES appeared.

Pastor COSSENTINE who had WHITELOCKS, met his PARRISH each week in the old RITTENHOUSE.

Even Christmas was not forgotten. Each year St. NICOLAS made his visit bringing joy and gladness.

Each citizen felt like a NEUMAN and enjoyed living in this "Fair Land."

SERVIETTE FINNESE

My name isn't Emily Post. This material is not a lecture; nor has it a moral. I am merely a humble observer with very mediocre table manners, passing on to you a few of my humble observations of serviette technique.

The approach is very interesting. Some take up the napkin the first thing upon sitting down to the table. Others will first sip their water. The timid souls wait until the other persons place their napkins on their laps. Then there is the ravenous individual who is so intent upon the real object of the gathering that all such minor details escape his mind. The realization of this oversight is usually brought forth by a misplaced drop of gravy. Then this minor detail becomes an embarrassing problem. The trick is to get the napkin down from the table into the lap without being noticed, and then nonchalantly wipe off the gravy. There are many ways by which this may be accomplished. To list them would be almost impossible and perhaps a bit foolish, especially when I can give you a method that is practically infallible. The move from the table to the lap is the most difficult, for it must not be seen. Therefore it is necessary to get everybody's eyes off you for an instant. First look over the table and discover something that is missing. Then ask for it in a loud voice so that everybody can hear. (At this point I must insert a few precautions.) Do not speak so loud as to cause suspicion. And do not under any circumstances ask if there is any of the missing substance in the house. Merely say, "Please pass the horseradish." Immediately somebody starts looking for the horseradish. He asks his neighbor and the person at the other end of the table if they see it. Soon you have turmoil and confusion. Then at this psychological moment you slip your napkin off the table to your lap. You have made the first move successfully. It is like finishing an underwater swimming contest for distance. You can't stand it another second; you burst to the surface, gasp a breath, and another; then with pounding heart you turn to discover you have won. What exaltation; you feel unconquerable. With this same invincible confidence you easily cast aside any perplexing questions about the horseradish, while you casually take your serviette from your lap and remove the gravy from your necktie.

"Everybody makes mistakes — that's why the rubber is on the pencil."

ALUMNI

Among the alumni of S. C. J. C. who attended the recent South-eastern California-Arizona Conference Constituency meeting at Loma Linda, were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rutherford, Mr. and Mrs. Lyon Lindbeck, Mr. Donald Clark, and Miss Marion Leitch, and Audrey and Mildred Tillman.

Morgan Adams, class of '34, now a medical student at Loma Linda, visited his mother and Betty on Sabbath.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Brewer are often seen working at Applegate's store on Sundays. The Brewers teach in church school at Inglewood.

SCHOOL YEAR PASSES FOURTH TEST WEEK

Examinations have again come and gone, but are not forgotten. There has probably been more "midnight oil" burning for these exams than any before, unless it could have been the semester exams. The reason for this is probably the "let-down" in study since the close of the semester.

There is one joy derived from these six weeks occurrences — that is for the teachers. I really think they enjoy giving them, at least one is led to believe that.

If S. C. J. C. were in the Arctic, or Antarctic regions, there might be some real enjoyment in staying inside and studying, but there is much more enjoyment in the great out-of-doors around S. C. J. C. than in a room studying. Maybe it's the coming of spring that causes the let-down in grades.

RECREATIONAL EVENING FOLLOWS EXAM WEEK

Games, and marching at the College Hall constituted the program for the students Saturday night, February 22.

Volley-ball and basket-ball were played the greater part of the evening. Some fancy marching followed this. Then again — volley-ball and basket-ball. Those who were fortunate to have rubber or fiber wheeled skates, had the privilege of skating.

The "surprise" that was planned failed to materialize; but by the enthusiasm shown by the group, it was evident that the evening was an enjoyable one.

Believing variety to be the spice of life, Velda Close, Gwendolyn Brodby, Mary Moreno, Gladys Barto, Esther Irvine, Ruth White-lock, and Evelyn Adams slept in the hall of the girls' dormitory Wednesday evening until the dean thought it best to return them to their respective rooms.

Prayer bands were organized under new leadership in the girls' home Wednesday evening for the second semester session.

Mrs. McWhinney and her daughter, Ruth, were here to visit John, Thursday.

ACADEMIC STUDENTS YOU SHOULD KNOW

Percy Miles who was born in Billings, Montana, November 22, 1916. His hobby seems to be skating and horse-back riding. Claims to have no musical accomplishments, in fact, he says he doesn't even sing. His favorite dessert is chocolate pudding, and other than this his favorite food is corn tamales. Green is his favorite color—the reason, he says, is because green things grow. Physics is his favorite class, maybe because he plans to be a mechanical engineer. When asked his most embarrassing moment, he said it was when he dropped a tray full of food at Lodi Academy (because the chair went one way and the tray went the other.)

Grace Clement who was born in Washington, D. C., October 22, 1921. As to musical accomplishments, she sings, plays the violin and piano. Her favorite dish is macaroni and favorite dessert is strawberry short-cake. Green is her favorite color also. Plans are indefinite. Claims her most embarrassing moment was when a certain faculty member found her talking to James Keeton outside the library.

John Parrish, who was born in Grand Rapids, Michigan, April 19, 1916. His hobby is radio. Claims no musical accomplishment (but we know better,) likes all food but roast, prefers ice cream as a dessert, thinks blue is the best color. He likes German the best of all his classes. To be a doctor is his plan for the future. His most embarrassing moment was when he went to Riverside and didn't sign out, and met the dean in the ten-cent store.

Carol Margaret Remsen who was born at Washburn, Wisconsin, December 27, 1918. Her hobby is pencil sketches. Likes macaroni and cheese and prefers caramel nut sundae as a dessert. Her favorite color is blue and her favorite class is chemistry. She plans to be a nurse. Says her most embarrassing moment was the time she went up to a man she saw looking into a store and patted him on the back, thinking it was her father, but it was a stranger.

Claude Earl Steen who was born in Long Beach, California, February 7, 1920. His hobby is photography and nature work. As to musical accomplishment, he plays a cello and radio (he said.) Likes avacadoes and as a dessert likes ice cream. His favorite color is white. When asked what his favorite class is, he said he likes them all, but chemistry the best. He plans to be a doctor or a naturalist. Says his most embarrassing moment was being interviewed for this article.

A news note in the Junior Col- legion discloses the fact that men can enter into fields usually oc- cupied by women only, when the where-with-all for an education is necessary. David Mocine, a student of L. A. J. C. is offering his services as kitchen helper in exchange for board and room. For more years than he can remem- ber, Mocine admits pattering around the family kitchen. Ele- mentary and advanced sewing, an eight-course dinner, spring clean- ing of a house, myriads of other duties which are incomprehensible to most masculine eyes, are second nature to David. Dear, dear, I'll bet he has a beautiful complexion too!

Recently displayed in the library exhibit case of the San Diego State College was the "Connecti- cut Courier" for Monday, Decem- ber 30, 1799, which contained the account of the death of George Washington. The paper, which is so old that even the black borders of mourning have yellowed, is the property of one of the students of the college.

M. B. K. AND GIRLS' FORUM ENJOY IMPROMPU PROGRAM

Last Thursday evening while nearly all of the fellows were at supper, Harry Sciarrillo and Blaine McDermott went to several of the rooms and removed quite a num- ber of articles. The things they were most interested in were safely "ditched" in the Student Body Office opposite the chapel.

Joint worship was announced at supper and at 6:15 everyone had gather in the chapel, waiting, wait- ing for something, but no one knew just what. Soon Blaine Mc- Dermott came in and announced that Lorayne Swartout would play a piano solo. That was the first she had heard of it, but when Harry appeared with some music, she played the solo — cheerfully? Another piano solo was played by Lee Zinn, who had quite a time getting started, but the results were good.

Bob Garner played a saxophone solo, Bill Smith and Carl Rose played a violin duet. There were other numbers and some un- answered requests, but the final number was by no means the least. Eddie Potts sang a solo — and it really was good too. A surprise which involved quite a few of the boys came when the entire Boys' Glee Club was asked to sing. All of the numbers were as much of a surprise to those who gave them as they were to those who listened.

Mac GUIRE DISCUSSES SPIRIT OF PROPHECY

Speaking on "The Spirit of Prophecy," Elder Meade MacGuire had charge of the church hour, in the second of the series of Week of Prayer meetings he is conducting here at the college.

God's "remnant church" has two distinguishing characteristics which must be kept in mind in judging religions; they keep the Commandments of God and have the testimony of Jesus Christ. "No other religious body ever claims both of these," he stated. Some keep the commandments but do not have the testimony of Jesus Christ and some claim to have the testimony but do not keep the commandments.

By relating several experiences Elder MacGuire showed that it was indeed dangerous to ignore the works of Sister White. Those who do, eventually leave the denomination. He also related some of his experiences to show how his belief in the testimonies of Mrs. White have kept him in the truth.

"Faith depends upon the condition in one's heart and no amount of outward evidence can produce genuine faith," he stated. Those who do not have this faith in the spirit of prophecy cannot even claim to belong to this denomination for this is one of its outstanding characteristics.

Reading from "Messages to Young People," Elder MacGuire showed that young people of today must come to the place where sin will reveal his true righteous character to us. If the heart has been changed so it is right then the acts will be right for they will be in accordance with the will of the heart.

Musical Group Gives Concert

Under the direction of Prof. Elsworth Whitney the Loma Linda Academy Double Quartet presented a musical program Saturday night, in the College Chapel.

Two piano solos were played by Prof. Whitney, who is in charge of the musical department of the Loma Linda Academy. A ladies trio composed of Esther Westermeyer, Margaret Mall, and Mary Wallack sang several numbers after which the quartet also sang. The Quartet was made up of the trio members and Glee Anderson.

Accompanied by the trio, Mr. Glenn Martin sang "The Gypsie Love Song." Mr. Wallace Netherry accompanied the mixed ensemble in several numbers on his violin. The members of the trio, quartet and Eugene Cave, John Rohr and Glenn Martin composed the ensemble.

Two readings, one of a satirical nature which dealt with a musician who was playing one of his own compositions in the correct manner, were given by Mr. Netherry.

Ediphone Demonstrated Before Commercial Club

Members of the Commercial Club operated the Ediphone for the first time Wednesday evening when Mr. A. R. Smith, business manager, demonstrated its use to the club.

Impromptu letters, addresses, names, letters from Gregg, and sayings, such as "the moon is made of green cheese" were dictated to the Ediphone as each student experimented with the machine.

Mr. Smith explained that the Ediphone was a great improvement over dictating to the secretary as it better enabled the employer to keep his mind on his letters instead of on the pretty secretary across the desk.

Instead of meeting at Miss Hopkin's home the club met in her classroom where supper was served to approximately twenty members, Mr. and Mrs. Smith and Miss Scott.

The newspaper-covered desks did not seem to abate the students' appetites, for all ate heartily of the good food prepared by Miss Hopkins.

WALLA WALLA PRES. PAYS VISIT TO S.C.J.C.

President W. M. Landeen of Walla Walla brought greetings from the students of a sister college, February 26, when he occupied the chapel hour. By a rising vote, the students of S. C. J. C. showed their desire to return the greeting.

Telling of a visit to Hitler headquarters in Germany, Prof. Landeen drew attention to the worship and adoration often paid to the earthly men.

"If a group of girls and boys can do this for a mere man, why is it that Adventist boys and girls can not be more devoted to their King," the speaker asked, and then cited examples of devotion to the Christian cause wherein young people have given their lives.

About the second century after Christ to admit profession of Christianity meant death, and during this time many gave their lives for Christ.

Prof. Landeen stated that he was confident that the young people of today would also be ready to give their lives should the need arise, because "we know in whom we have believed."

BARNES TALKS OF COLPORTEUR WORK

That a book in the hand is the birth mark of Seventh-day Adventists, Elder A. E. Barnes, Field Missionary Secretary for the Southern California Conference revealed to the students in chapel Friday Morning.

Rev. 10:1-2 pictures a mighty angel who had a little book in his hand. In connection with this Elder Barnes explained that no one hears the voices of the angels for they are a symbol.

"I thank God for that birthmark; the desire to publish and see literature go far and wide throughout the world," said Elder Barnes, "for S. D. A's. were born with a book in their hands.

As Elder Barnes is a leader in the colporteur work he could authoritatively say that no other agency can influence the public as the press does.

From Ps. 45:1 he read that "My heart is intending a good matter. I speak of the things which I have made touching the king; my tongue is the pen of a ready writer.

From the President to You

KNOW THYSELF

The average young person has three thousand hours of time every year outside his regular routine of sleeping, eating and going to school.

What do you do with all that time? Do you know? If not, find out! Many a firm and business has been bankrupt because of the leaks here and there. How will it be with you?

These hours, their use or abuse, may mean your success or failure. A young man in college disliked English and was failing. He talked with his teacher who advised him to spend just fifteen minutes each day reading the book of Psalms, and five minutes with the dictionary. Today he is the editor of a large paper.

A few years ago a young lady seventeen years of age came to school. She had never been to school before, though she had done some studying, because her family lived so far away from any school privileges. But she had cultivated the habit of reading good literature, and many times I have seen her assiduously studying the dictionary, and carrying it with her everywhere, that she might study it every possible moment. Today she fills a very important position in the work of God.

You say you are too busy. Catch up the wasted moments that lie around you, for within them you will find your pearl of great price.

Meriting and Demeriting

As I wax mentally dexterous once again, my memory recalls the fact that during one era of the American Government, they maintained what was commonly characterized as the merit system. This system stipulated for the rewarding of faithful party members. Today, not in our national government, but very nearly, meriting has reverted into demeriting on a large scope. While cogitating at the moment I am convinced that demeriting will inevitably outlive its much more desired predecessor. Since demeriting implicates a great deal of time, in more than one way, it behooves me that there must be some other method of rewarding those who are particularly susceptible to the neglecting of their alma mater's maxims of conduct. J. K.

Gossiping

In an early publication of the CRITERION an editorial was written on "griping." I would like to expound a few lines concerning the twin sister, gossip. Gossip is per-miscous colloquy that invariably proves detrimental and obnoxious whenever it is unfortunate enough to be utilized. Literally speaking it is one of the most abused nouns of the English language. It has been employed many times to subvert characters that were of good repute. Perhaps the day may never appear when this cynosure of disturbance annouance, and sorrow will become archaic to our tongues and in our minds, but it seems to me that a few of us, self included, could amply discipline, to some extent, the unruly evil of our moral beings. STUDENTS OCCUPIED BY TIME IN LABS

Imagine spending thirty-five hours on one experiment! Seems rather hard to believe but that very thing has happened on the campus. The Organic lab students are attempting to make urea crystals and encountering plenty of difficulty. Seven hours are required to do the experiment and according to reports several students have performed this experiment five times. Is it any wonder then that tears almost flow down their faces after they have placed the small beaker into the ice, as the final step, and no crystals result?

Results seem to be obtained a little bit easier in General Chemistry lab for Wednesday afternoon the class prepared sulphur dioxide, tested it for various reactions and were all through by 3:30. Outside of the door no difficulty was experienced.

In the Embryology lab the students have been engaged in drawing pictures of the hard-boiled egg and also of cell division. One division of the class began work on cats last time but only succeeded in getting them skinned and ready for dissection. Most all of them smell like formaldehyde.

Lab technique is one of the principal things being stressed in Bacteriology lab. Cultures have been prepared by each of the students from the micro-organisma on their teeth. Some of these have proved to be very interesting.

Organic compounds are being worked with by the prenursing chemistry lab. These are put through various tests to determine just what they are and their make-up. Last time they met several students nearly fell asleep because of the ether which was being used in the experiment.

NECESSITY OF MIND TRANSFORMATION SHOWN

"Be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind" Romans 12:2 was the plea of Elder Meade MacGuire as he spoke to the students at the opening meeting of the Week of Prayer Friday evening.

God made man in the beginning in his image therefore man had a perfect mind although the fall of man came in his mind we have the promise that man can be perfectly restored to the image of God in the mind now.

Elder MacGuire likened the mind to a caterpillar and a butterfly. The mind before transformation is the caterpillar crawling in the dust while the butterfly is the transformed mind. There are many people in the church today who have not been transformed and like the caterpillar still crawl in the dust of the world.

In order to be saved one must be heavenly minded. He further explained that to be heavenly minded is a growth and does not come just when one dies or when Jesus comes.

THIS KITCHEN OF OURS

Did You Know —

That it takes something like 150 potatoes to serve mashed potatoes for 1 meal?

That from 5 to 10 gallons of milk are used daily in the cooking, and about 9 cases are used on the counters?

That 5 quarts of mush, 8 quarts of cocoa, and from 8 to 10 quarts of hot milk are sold at breakfast?

That 40 pounds of gluten flour is required to make gluten roast?

That about 16 loaves of bread are used every day?

That 18 quarts of tomato juice and 10 quarts of orange juice are used for the three meals?

That a batch of cookies (about 456) sometimes lasts for only one meal?

That last Sunday out of the 46 pies that were baked 40 were eaten for dinner and the remaining 6 for supper?

That your humble reporter could have gone on like this indefinitely but she started counting the dishes used for a noonday meal, and when she got to 1,000 they looked so much like sheep that she fell asleep on the job?

CONFERENCE OFFICIAL INTERVIEWED

Few of the students realize that one of the tall members of the Board of Directors of this college has previously spent several years in the foreign field, not only in one field but in three, Jamaica, China, and Korea.

Elder F. H. Raley was quietly reminiscing in front of a glowing fire on a chilly evening when he was interrupted by a reporter who wished to interview him. He kindly disclosed a very interesting story.

Just a few months after Elder Raley made known his desire to be a foreign missionary, he was called to Jamaica where he served as auditor for the conference, pastor of the church, and editor of their local paper, besides handling many other duties.

It was while he was in Jamaica that he married Mrs. Raley. It is interesting to note that he was married in an English ceremony, one requirement of which was to post his intentions to wed on the door of the church for eight preceding days. Mr. Raley remarked that he stayed away from church for two weeks, the weeks that the intentions were on the door.

Poor health called Elder Raley back home but he did not stay there long, as he was soon asked to work in the Far East. As a result he was auditor of this division for three and a half years.

Returning to the U. S. again he accepted an invitation to be auditor at the College of Medical Evangelists. After faithfully filling this position for eight years, Mr. Raley became Secretary and Treasurer of the Southeastern California-Arizona Conference, which position he still holds.

WHEN THEY WERE OUR AGE

Professor Abel started his career of choir director while at Emmanuel Missionary College. He was quite in demand as he was also the choir director at the Kalamazoo, Michigan, S. D. A. church on Friday night and Sabbath. The church was a distance of fifty or sixty miles from the school and each week-end he went to Kalamazoo with expenses paid. He also directed the choir at the Congregational church in a town about twelve miles from the college. Now to the lighter side of his life. His father was a contractor and on one of these days when Professor Able was supposed to be in school he was helping his "padre" on a building — but (this is the sad part) he fell off (about twenty feet) and broke his ankle. Moral — don't help your father when you're supposed to be in school.

Miss Jensen, in her early 'teens, went away to boarding school at Bethel Academy where she worked in the laundry washing clothes. After graduating from here she started teaching — her first school looking like Professor Reynolds garage, but she enjoyed it. She "left the United States and went to Minnesota" where she took more work and graduated from the Hutchison Theological Seminary. From here she went to Union College took more work, after which she was the supervisor in the Normal Department. In 1925 she came to California and S. C. J. C. and likes it!

With Our Missionary Band

Under the leadership of Helen Kinter, the Woodcraft Band held its usual meeting Saturday afternoon. A song service under the supervision of Conrad Hay with Virginia Chapman at the piano, opened the meeting. Special music was furnished by Olive Simpkin, Mrs. Walters and son, Dick, and Billy Baker. Jim Norton spoke on "The World's Dilemma." The audience is made up mostly of old ladies but a few of the men attend also.

Between the church hour and dinner, Ruth Fillback's Literature Band wraps and addresses around 25 papers each Sabbath. This work is done by whoever volunteers.

There are five divisions of the Sunshine Band under the supervision of Anna Becker. Three of these are sunshine bands that visit two homes each week in the village, give short Bible studies and sing for the sick people. Betty Riley, Delpha Rocke, and Eleanor Rothgeb head these bands. A childrens' hour is conducted under the supervision of Eloise Callendar in the childrens' ward of the County hospital. Last Sabbath Rose Tarello told the story. Another division visited the t. b. ward where they sang and distributed literature. This band was headed by Anna Becker.

Statistics show that there are more cars per student on the campus of the University of California at Los Angeles than at any other university in the world.

NEW TECHNIQUE IN RESEARCH ON SLEEP

How soundly do people sleep at various periods of the night? This question two Univeresity of Chicago research workers, Norman R. Cooperman and Laurence Palitz, are seeking to answer by a new technique of investigating the physiology of sleep. They are working under the general supervision of Dr. Nathaniel Kleitman, associate professor of Physiology.

"We already know," said Cooperman, "that sleepers change their positions less in the first half of the night than in the last half. They average perhaps a movement every ten minutes for the whole night, consuming by these motions a total of two to six minutes."

Philosophy and Wit

By Leroy P. Zinn

Have you ever been "Snipe Hunting?" Most of you would answer "yes," with a laugh, but it seems two girls, who work in the laundry, had never had the privilege. After finding this out some of the girls said they would give the two ladies the experience which had the usual effect.

SMILE and VOICE: Every girl should culture a pleasing voice and a winning smile. This would be a good thing for the men to do also. Some of you men look as if you had swallowed a quart of vinegar when you smile.

The average person, says a philosopher, turns his first corner in life at 25. After that, we presume, he throws caution to the winds.

Many a woman who can't add can certainly distract.

But all women know enough arithmetic to put two and two together and make a scandal of it.

Among the things that seem to grow by leaps and bounds are the bous' in the upstairs of the men's home.

STANFORD POSSESSES FASTEST MACHINE

Fastest thing on earth! It's a small steel rotor, looking almost like a school boy's top, in Stanford's own chemistry department.

But instead of the string which sends a youngster's plaything spinning, Dr. James W. Bain's ultracentrifuge machine gains terrific motion from air blown under pressure into little vertical grooves. The schoolboy's eyes would buldge if he saw Dr. Bain's "top" in motion. It spins 350,000 revolutions per minute faster than anything else in the world.

Would Fly 5 Miles

If a piece from one of the rotors were to break off, it wouldn't stop until it had whistled 5 miles through the air at bullet speed. Before Mr. McBain and his associates developed the mechanism, used to study molecules and colloids, the world's highest-speed machine cost $80,000, was propelled by complicated motors and turbines.

Frank Taylor, in his fascinating article, "Blazing Chemistry's New Trails," lifts the lid off this and other amazing mysteries of chemical science in the current Illustrated Review.

Turned "farmer" in a small way is the chemistry department's head, Dr. Robert Eckles Swain. Under exact scientifically-controlled conditions he is growing wheat in two great glass cases ablaze with light.

Farmers and industrialists have long squabbled over the injurious effects of sulphur dioxide on wheat crops. To help settle these difficulties Dr. Swain is growing wheat.

Not a ray of sun has ever hit the lush, green plants. For three months the brilliant glare of electric bulbs will glow 16 hours a day. Then the wheat will be ready for harvest.

Among the various devices attached to the bed of the subject is one which flashes a light in another room where the experimenter is located when the sleeping subject makes the slightest move. The experimenter, who had wakened at 2 a.m., and has waited until 2:15 a.m. for a motion by the subject, then turns on the loudspeaker softly at first then at varying intensity. When the subject awakens, he pushes a buzzer which sounds in the experimenter's room. MacGUIRE CONDUCTS WEEK OF PRAYER

Comparing the sins of today with the idolatry of Babylon of old, Elder Meade MacGuire, associate secretary of the Ministerial Assn., conducted the annual spring "Week of Prayer" for the students of S.C.J.C.

As verily as the children of Israel in the time of Elijah worshiped heathen gods, thousands are now worshipping at Satan's shrine. All who do not earnestly search the Scriptures and all who do not seek God in prayer for the knowledge of His will will surely wander from the right path, Elder MacGuire warned.

He also recalled to the memory of the students the history of Israel during the Judges, how many times in their great misery they would call to God for deliverance. God answered their prayers but they soon went back to their heathenism.

Paganism of old Chaldea after the flood spread throughout the world and will finally take the world to its final doom. From Rom. 1:18-32 Elder MacGuire read the description of the world just before the end.

He further explained that paganism is essentially, salvation by works, because God is not looked to for righteousness by faith. He who is trying to reach heaven by his own works is attempting an impossibility.

Satan is undermining the Bible in the minds of the people as a means to an end in directing their minds toward himself. Elder MacGuire emphasized the fact that those who turn from the Scriptures and God's Holy Spirit are inviting control of demons.

In 1 Cor. 15:31, Paul says, "I am crucified, I die daily." It is only by crucifying ones sins that he can get victory over them.

Choir Displays Beauty of Poetry

Poetry spoken in such a manner as to give it new life, color, and beauty of tone was presented by a verse speaking choir of five young women under the direction of Mrs. Sarah Taft Teschke of Los Angeles.

Although poetry and the training of the voice to correctly and beautifully interpret it have been considered as classical pursuits since the time of the ancient Greeks, the speaking of poetry by a group is a comparatively new art, having originated in Scotland in 1922. Only in such a group can the full beauty of the tone and rhythm of poetry be expressed, Mrs. Teschke stated in her introduction.

Well known works of famous old poets and equally noted modern poets such as Frost, Masefield, Millay, Teasdale, and Monroe were presented by the choir. These numbers were perfected to such a degree that the effect was that of one voice but with richer intonations and a greater feeling of rhythm than could be produced by one voice.

SENIORS OF 1936

The wisest counsel that has ever come to young people is to make their student life as perfect as possible, and to this end Southern California Junior College has been planned and built. Its location, faculty, equipment, industries, etc., have all been planned with this in view. If you wish to accomplish the most in your life in developing it along successful lines, then all the resources of Southern California Junior College and Southern California are at your command.

Southern California Junior College offers you opportunities for leadership, scholarship, association, and self-expression. It offers a challenge to the best of your ability with a full and complete curriculum, a well prepared faculty, well equipped laboratories and class rooms, and contact with an enthusiastic student body.

We, the faculty and students of this College, are happy to welcome the Senior of '36 as our guests. Your graduation marks the completion of the foundation of your education on which must be built the preparation for a definite life work. Today, we want you to become acquainted with the various courses offered and your teachers, that you may decide the future wisely. We are personally interested in each of you, and are ready in every possible way to help you make your plans. Again we say, WELCOME TO YOUR COLLEGE. — E. E. Cossentine.

Campus Open to Visitors

For several weeks plans have been in progress for the annual Academy Senior Day to be held Wednesday, March 11. The teachers and students of the J. C. are to be hosts to six academies coming from all parts of Southern California and one from Arizona. Those represented by their senior class are Arizona, San Diego, Los Angeles, Loma Linda, Long Beach, and Glendale academies.

The entire day has been set apart for entertainment which includes campus tours, led by student guides and visiting all points of interest. A special assembly, dinner in the college dining hall, and the usual ball game will be part of the day's activities.

This year, for the first time, Arizona is represented by its senior class. In years past, although they have been invited, the trip has been felt too long for just one day. The college this year is extending a special welcome to the most distant academy visiting on senior day.

In the tour of the campus points of special interest are always found in the two homes, Gladwyn Hall and Mu Beta Kappa. Most academy students are eager to observe how students live in dormitories since all are from nonboarding institutions with the exception of Arizona.

The special assembly, attended by all visitors, faculty members and J. C. students, is one of the high points of the day. The school orchestra, glee clubs and other organizations furnishing entertainment for the visitors, who are attired in a versatile array of school sweaters, makes the affair most colorful. Several addresses by students are also on the program.

A new feature, tried for the first time this year, is the division of the visitors into groups according to the courses they plan to pursue in college. Pre-medical, pre-nurses, liberal arts, etc., will form special parties and be taken through departments which will interest them most.

During the course of the day the farm and dairy are to be visited with Prof. S. A. Smith and G. E. Stearns, farm managers, acting as general guides and pointing out points of interest in the school's Opportunities

By the time one attains college age the word, "opportunity" has become regarded as a hackneyed term. From early school days this expression has appealed to us through all the senses until, for some, its triteness is repulsive. But for lack of a more denoting and implying word its use continues.

Are there opportunities in college? This is our fundamental concern. The answer is dependent upon individual responses to external stimuli and situations. We should be driving ourselves into every channel of activity, attacking with zeal every task whether servile or executive. Let not your musings come only to the periphery of your gray matter and then sink back into dormancy. Be tolerant, however; permit not the prejudiced opinions of individuals to so intimidate your own thoughts that you hesitate to act according to your own well-founded judgment.

Be a man; be a woman; be individualistic; you are not obligated to give external evidence of amusement whenever an instructor exhibits unusual powers of wit. Do not display taciturnity; however, you are not to be a swash-buckler.

Many feel that their personalities have predestined them into nooks of social reclusion. This world is one of cause and effect; therefore, it is self-evident that if you and I do not make of ourselves casual factors, the effect of our existence will be inconsequential.—W.N.

largest industrial plant. The farm and dairy furnish more employment than any other department in the school.

The annual Academy-College baseball game will probably conclude the activities for the day. The academy team is composed of players picked from the visiting schools. Last year's game was won by the college.

An estimated crowd of 150 is expected, including teachers and students from the various schools.

Elder Alonzo Baker, the editor of "Signs of the Times," will address the group Sunday evening, March 22. His topic will be "World Conditions and Their Challenge to Adventist Youth." Preceding his address, Mayor E. B. Criddle of Riverside will give the "Greeting."

ELDER MacGUIRE GIVES INTERVIEW

Although he never attended any of our schools, Elder Meade MacGuire was "in the work" at nineteen, and was preaching when he was twenty-eight.

During the Week of Prayer here, Elder MacGuire said in an interview that although formal education is of great value, the highest requirement of a worker for Christ is consecration. Especially will this be true as we near the end, he said. Any young person of talent who is really consecrated and who has a burden for souls will find a ready opportunity.

In his work, Elder MacGuire has been in 60 different countries, including that most out-of-the-way country, Tibet, where our work has recently been started.

"I suggest that you adopt a motto, one which expresses your personal aspirations and resolutions," said Elder MacGuire when he was asked if he had anything special to say for the CRITERION. "I have promised God that whatever comes, I will live on the mountain top, above worry, repining and resentment. This is a worthy ideal and it is possible to live there with the help of God.

"There are many mottos in the Spirit of Prophecy, such as the one found in Steps to Christ, which is also a promise:

"We may keep so near to God that in every unexpected trial, our hearts will turn to Him as naturally as the flower to the sun.' This is worth repeating every day.

"There is also one in Proverbs 26:20, a very simple and homely, yet absolutely fundamental, truth: 'Where no wood is, there the fire goeth out.' No man in the world, or angel from heaven, could start a revival in your hearts that will keep on burning after he is gone unless you put on more wood.

"That is a daily duty, and you may keep a dim, glimmering light, or a warm, radiant flame that will attract all who come in contact with you. It is a question of how much wood you put on your fire."

A CAPELLA CHOIR BEGINS ANNUAL TOUR

The Southern California Junior College A Capella Choir, consisting of thirty-two members and under the direction of Prof. Harlyn Abel, made the first appearances of its annual tour last week end.

At the eleven o'clock Sabbath service the choir sang at the San Bernardino D. Street S. D. A. church. In addition to the regular concert, the male quartet, Harry Sciarrillo, Bob Woods, Paul MacIntosh, and Harlyn Abel, sang, and Barbara and Claude Steen played an offertory.

Sabbath afternoon at 4:30, the group sang over KFXM of San Bernardino. The program included "Blessings of Peace," "Day-spring," "Prayer," "O Holy Light," "Fierce Was the Wild Billow," "Still, Still With Thee," "Praise the Lord," and "The Lord Bless You and Keep You."

Sunday evening the A Capella Choir sang in the Arlington Methodist church.

A YEAR HAS PASSED

By J. H. Norton

A year ago they were here as seniors on academy day. Since then they have completed nearly two semesters of school in S. C. J. C., and I was asked to interview them; what they thought of the school then and how they like it now. Did they like the academy day? What interested them most — if anything??

I found Ed Potts sweeping the upstairs hall in his own industrious way. (Who's that laughing in the back row?)

"We-el," drawled the large pre-med. from Long Beach Academy. "I guess the eats impressed me more than anything on Academy Day last year." Yes, yes, no doubt you are telling the truth, Eddie.

Well I'll say he enjoyed senior day especially the ball game and he's plenty glad he came to school here. Just ask him!

She was "sorta on the fence" about where to attend school till senior day. That was when Enid Proctor decided that S. C. J. C. was where she was going to school. The location especially impressed her. Why? Because she can go home so often! No pun — that just shows you she's a home-loving girl. The last time she had visited the school was so long ago they didn't even have a lawn. She thinks the teachers and classes are "swell."

The first time I caught Bob Garner without his sax, he was deeply absorbed in cutting up a cat in lab.

"And now, Mr. Garner, what did you like about senior day last year?"

"Well," he replied as he deftly removed some foreign object from the feline. (at least it had a foreign name), "I enjoyed the splendid dinner we had." What an appetizing setting.

He enjoyed the trip out here and back very much. Beautiful scenery, don't you know. He believes the courses offered here are above average and has never regretted a moment his choice of a school for his college work.

Virginia Chapman, of Glendale, didn't get out here till nearly noon last senior day. Their car had a flat tire. Yes, I said a flat tire! But she had a great time and was

We are happy to report current birthdays — Betty Riley, Salley Tobey, Professor Reynolds, Elder Meade MacGuire, Mildred Weisenhutter, Roselyn Trummer and Max Ling. . . . especially impressed with the beautiful view over the valley as seen from the front of the school. Since she came here, she has become just as impressed with our school and enjoys her work very much. She is a liberal arts student. It's always refreshing to find a girl who isn't either a pre-nursing or Normal student.

"May I interview you, Mr. Chapman?"

"Why sure thing kid; if I know anything that you don't, it's about time you found out." You have just been informally introduced, dear reader, to Eugene Chapman, former L. A. Academy student. He was especially impressed by the friendliness of the students and the teachers. He had never visited S. C. J. C. before and when he visited on senior day, he decided to attend this year, and says he's pull-enty glad he did. Thinks everything is O. K. about our "Jaysee" and classes are "tops."

At this point your somnolent columnist is worn out as I suppose are my patient readers.

COLLEGE INVESTS IN NEW PRESS

Making it possible to do their own printing, a Whitlock cylinder press is being installed in the college print shop to take the place of the old Campbell press.

This cylinder press was purchased from Harry W. Brintnall Co., in Los Angeles. It will take a form 24 x 36 inches and can turn out 2600 impressions an hour.

In 10 days the press will be in working order. It is planned to print both the "Criterion" and the college catalogue. Previously this material has been printed in a Riverside press.

This press will prove economical to the school as well as beneficial to the students for it will require more student labor.

Annual Student Peace Strike Called For April —

Over 350,000 students will walk out of classes on April 22 of this year to participate in the third annual student strike against war, Joseph P. Lash, executive secretary for the American Student Union announced recently. Mr. Lash said that a special appeal will be issued this year to every college president urging assistance to the peace demonstration, and emphasizing that the strike is not against the administration but represents the student's way of expressing insistence upon peace. —Wash. State Evergreen

Quartet Performs at Troy —

The Abas string quartet, which visited our fair campus a short time ago, gave a concert, March 2, at the University of Southern California. We understand that they have made rearrangements in personnel and this is their first appearance since the change. — U. S. C. Trojan

Study Pays —

Mollsap college in Mississippi bases its tuition charges on the scholastic records made by the students. "A" students pay only $75 with the price rising as the grades go down.

From the University of California at Berkeley we learn that students who receive "A's" in all their subjects are given a refund of $5 on their tuition fees. Now we know it pays to study. — Brown Daily Herald

Walla Walla Pedagogues Entertain —

The students go "round and round" was the order of the Faculty Open House, given at Walla Walla College, February 29, Dr. P. W. Christian, chairman of the social committee, was in charge of the program. Ten-minute programs by 11 different groups of faculty members were given in the various classrooms.

Words Never Heard —

"When I told my folks I flunked biology, Dad said, 'Oh well, here's the $10 anyway.'"

"And then the sailor got up and gave me his seat in the bus."

"That's all right brother, your credit's good around here." — Long Beach Viking

Now You Should Appreciate —

"Short columns are oftentimes four times the work of long ones. Maybe eight times." — E. V. Durling. He must mean to the readers.

Actually there never was a columnist who didn't wish he was a man of acting and could turn over to the editorial desk a brief squib like this: "I came, I saw, I conquered," and have it speak volumes. Brevity may be the soul of wit, but it is much harder to stretch an idea out like I'm trying to do this one.

Had a hard-boiled city editor received that immortal message from Cezar, he probably would have wired back: "Did you get pictures?" — L.A.J.C. Collegian.

The NEWSETTE Column

Mrs. Adams entertained a group of young people at her home in a birthday party for her daughter, Betty. Those present were Harold Conner, "Walt" Ehler, Dorothy Raley, Carol Remsen, Virginia Smith, Carl Holland, Eugene Chapman, Evelyn Adams, Genevieve Howell, and Morgan Adams.

Elder and Mrs. Remsen, Carol Remsen, Carl Holland, Percy Miles and Betty Adams spent a pleasant day at Palm Springs last Sunday.

A group of pre-nursing girls had their picture taken in their "blimps" Tuesday afternoon. Afterward Gurli Paulson demonstrated to several on lookers how accomplished she is in turning summersaults. Never mind Gurli, you're only young once.

The sweaters for the Girls' Glee Club have arrived. From all reports they are quite attractive.

It seems that one of our up-and-coming premeds, Marven Larsen, spent last week at home convalescing from his recent illness. We missed you, Marvin, and are glad to see you back.

With the coming of spring a new interest has been cultivated around the tennis courts. Upon observation you will find quite a group of interested players. — I wonder if it is tennis?

The Normal students are looking forward to next Monday when their teaching will start again. Dorothy Dilbeck will teach grades 1, 2, 3; Maxine Kochenderfer, grades 4, 5, and 6; and Marie Olson, grades 7 and 8. This will include complete charge of these grades.

Jim Norton has a special breakfast every morning of fried potatoes and eggs fixed by Grace Scott.

The cows are all being renamed, for some unknown reason, down at the farm.

Erwin Rosa attended Townsend meeting, Monday evening. For what reason we have not yet found out.

Sabbath Visitors

Dinah Skinner, class of '34, visited friends at the college.

Miss Seppala, former school nurse, visited.

Clyde Groomer, a former student, spent the week-end here.

Sarita Nydell, Normal graduate of '35, attended services here.

Dick Walters, former premedical student, sang for Sabbath school.

Mary Blakely and Verna Belding, both former students, visited at the college Tuesday.

Frances Rutan, class of '35, visited classes Thursday.

Mildred Alexander, a former student, was married in El Centro recently. Kathleen McKinnon, Gwendolyn Ginn, Elizabeth Sciarrillo, Marie Christianson, all former students, were bridesmaids.

Ronald Scott was called to San Francisco for several days last week because of the death of his uncle.

Dorothy Raley and Louise Bunch spent the week-end at Louise's home in Glendale.

Mildred Wiesenhutter spent the week-end at her home in Long Beach. She asserts she had to go home, for her birthday was on Saturday. One way she has of remembering when her birthday comes is by knowing that Prof. Reynolds' birthday comes at the same time.

The College farm recently sold $1,100 worth of horses. A purchase of a $600 stallion will be made very soon.

Since the recent rains the cattle have had plenty of green feed. In the last week there has been an increase of about fifty gallons of milk a day as compared to that given previous.

For the last three days we have noticed four Senior fellows leaving and returning to the school at all hours. We wonder what they are doing during that time. Maybe the Juniors can tell us all about it.

Philosophy and Wit

By Leroy P. Zinn

Two mice, Minnie and Mammie, who reside between the floors of the parlor in Gladwyn Hall, were overheard making some remark about all the commotion which takes place directly over their home when the lights blink every night. Could it be that they are not in favor of Miss Wallace directing those dear young "pleasingly plump" souls who are ever in search of a suitable method to retain their girlish figures?

There comes a time in everyone's life when he is thankful for his many friends. If you don't choose to believe us, ask Waldo Nelson.

HAPPY IS THE MOSQUITO that can pass the screen test.

An aspiring young singer had asked a very fine pianist to accompany her for a solo which she was soon to sing. At the first rehearsal she flatted every note. Finally the pianist waved her to silence and said, "It's no use. I've played on the white keys and I've played on the black keys, but you always sing in the cracks." (Not to mention any names.)

THE TROUBLE WITH THE PUBLIC OPINION is that so many people only express it privately.

Three blood transfusions were necessary to save a lady patient's life at the hospital. A brawnie young Scotchman offered his blood. The patient gave him $50 for the first pint, $25 for the second pint, but the third time she had so much Scotch blood in her she only thanked him.

College-bred refers to something which requires a fearful amount of dough, is seldom self-raising, and usually proves to be nothing more or less than a four-year loaf. — H. C. Witwer.

We know Mr. Witwer never was a student of S. C. J. C.!

CONCERT TOURS TO BEGIN SOON

Choir and Glee Clubs Will Visit Many of Southlands Cities

After several months of preparation, under the direction of Prof. Harlyn Abel, the music organizations have begun their annual concert tours. The A Capella choir, with thirty-two voices has presented several programs in the near vicinity of the college. The Men's and Women's glee clubs have also given their first concert, appearing in Loma Linda, Saturday evening, March 15.

The A Capella choir, starting its fifth concert season is planning the longest tour ever taken by the organization. The itinerary includes San Diego and Phoenix, Ariz., besides most of the large churches around Los Angeles and vicinity. The trip to Arizona is the longest

Prominent Speakers Conduct Meeting

Requesting the youth to answer the three-fold call of God; salvation, service and sacrifice, Elder D. A. Ochs, associate secretary of the General Conference Missionary Volunteer Department, opened the Congress, Thursday evening. He said that God is calling the young people of today with this heavenly calling and if we heed this call, we will rise to a higher plane of living.

Stating that nothing short of perfection will enter heaven, Elder Meade MacGuire conducted the vesper hour Friday evening. In order to obtain this perfection, we must learn to resist temptation by the power we will receive from God for the asking. Of ourselves we are able to do nothing but we must be willing to let God rule our lives. He stated that those who are not willing to give themselves completely to God, must be willing to be made willing and God will do the rest.

Elder Glen Calkins, President of the Pacific Union Conference, spoke Sabbath morning on the subject of soul saving. The greatest thing in all the world is to be a Christian and win souls for Christ. Worldly pleasures on this earth cannot afford us the pleasure of winning

SPECIAL MUSIC

Professor Harlyn Abel Directs A Cappella Choir, Glee Clubs and Chorus

The first Youth's Congress ever to be held in the Pacific Union Conference was entertained by Southern California Junior College during March 19-22.

This Congress was brought to a climatic ending when Elder Alonzo Baker, editor of the "Signs of the Times," delivered an arousing lecture concerning world conditions and their challenge to Adventist youth.

Honorable E. B. Criddle, Mayor of Riverside, extended a few words of greeting and welcome prior to Editor Baker's stirring address.

Many helpful as well as informative discussions took place during the Youth's Congress sessions that were held in the morning and the afternoon for two and three hours, respectively.

"Ideals and Standards of Associations," "Sabbath Keeping," "Amusements and Recreation," "Our Music," and "Study and Self-Improvement," were some of the topics presented to the young people. During the sessions the one in charge spoke on his topic for a short time, and then opened the floor for discussion.

Perhaps one of the high lights of the Congress itself was the masterful way in which Professor Harlyn Abel directed the music. He procured outstanding special music, as well as having a standing choir and orchestra.

"Follow on, young people, to know the Lord. Live for the saving of souls," was the motto chosen for the occasion.

Elder Glenn Calkins discussed this motto quite extensively during the eleven o'clock hour on Sabbath.

Elder Meade MacGuire, who recently conducted a Week of Prayer at the College, had charge of the devotional hour daily; and all were thankful to receive the bounteous blessing of the Lord during this hour.

CRITERION STAFF SPENDS ENJOYABLE DAY IN CITY

Having as its high point a trip through the Times building in Los Angeles, the Criterion staff had a field day Monday as a reward for their faithful but often unrecognized labor.

Twenty-five staff members, accompanied by several faculty members left at 7:30 Monday morning for Los Angeles and vicinity. The forenoon was spent at Griffith Park where the various members either played tennis, looked the park over, or visited the zoo, which according to those who visited it, proved well worth the walk over. The tennis enthusiasts were, to put it mildly, highly pleased with the excellent courts and the large number of them available.

Part of the forenoon was also spent in the planetarium located in the park upon a hill which overlooks the entire city.

After a picnic lunch at noon, the group left for the business district, where the Times building was inspected. Here the processes which go on behind the scenes in the production of a major publication such as the Los Angeles Times was viewed. Work here is carried on, on such a large scale that it is hard to fully comprehend the work being done. The whole building is devoted mainly to the publication of the large paper, and departments which in a smaller paper occupy only a corner, here have whole rooms devoted to them.

Dinner at Clifton's cafeteria and several hours spent in the visiting of Olvera Street climaxed the activities of the day.

Book Review To Be New Feature Of Criterion

Beginning in the present issue, the "Criterion" inaugurates a new column which will bring to the attention of its readers interesting books in our own library. It is not the plan to write lengthy paragraphs about each book, but simply one or two sentences, which will summarize the contents briefly and in an interesting way.

Mr. Waldo Nelson, who has been active in school activities for the past two years, has consented to write the "Book Review" column each week, because of his extensive reading and interest in the outstanding books of the day.

The staff of the "College Criterion" is constantly endeavoring to find new attractions which will interest its readers. It is hoped that this addition to the paper will prove interesting and helpful.

Three or four books will be featured each week, giving the number under which they are classified in the library.

SINCERITY

One of the greatest determiners of our fitness to enter heaven is our sincerity. There is a goal to be reached in come near reaching even in our comprehension. The that line that fully ninety-five per cent of us have never yet writer is not bowing himself out either.

The greatest temptation to fail in this respect is that of advantage. Position comes under this heading. One of the common fallacies is that position, will hide the "minor details." Without carrying it too far, it might be said this is getting to be an age of expose. People are even more eager to penetrate disguises and when a person is found who rigidly stands for the right no matter how the slightest deviation from it will further larger ends, there is universal respect. No matter what the "spot," the one who will straightly hew to the line will command always genuine and perhaps apparent admiration. And then there is the matter of the ninth commandment, which is sufficient in itself.

YOUR SUGGESTIONS

It is sometimes difficult to realize that in a school publication such as ours, there are two groups to be considered. First, of course, are the students, who make up and publish the paper. To them the front page is very seldom news. They have attended the chapel periods, gone to the Saturday night entertainments, heard the sermon given on Sabbath morning, and in general find very little that is not already known. To them the "Newsettes" are of special interest because some bit of gossip may be learned about the campus and its happenings.

The second group are the outside readers, many of whom receive all of their knowledge of the school from the paper. To these readers the front page holds many interesting facts, while the back page news notes may often seem a bit inane. Much of the other reading matter may interest some readers more than others.

We should and must interest the entire group who receive our school paper. The ones who make the paper possible by their subscriptions naturally want reading material which will interest them, the same as do the ones here on the campus who furnish the bulk of the news.

It is the endeavor of the staff to publish the paper with this general idea in view. Will you help us with suggestions?

Letters

Dear Editor:

Of course I know how expenses arise in the publication of a paper, but I should like to see this sheet enlarged, with another column, and longer. I believe, especially since the account of the machinery being added to the press appeared in the Criterion, that this could be accomplished. I realize too, as you will recognize, that as I am not in school, I am not in close touch with the situation, but as an interested reader I'm for "more and a greater quantity of news."

Yours suggestively,
A. Reader.

Dear Editor:

I'm wondering if there couldn't be something done for the students who catch the "flu" but won't do anything about it because they are ashamed to admit it.

Getting a cold is like water getting through a dyke—the dyke of our resistance is comparable to that. And the longer one lets it run, the bigger the wash becomes—first, for the "little" cold and then eventually for anything else that can come through the breach of our resistance as it widens.

And they are not the only ones to think of. Coming to gatherings like the classes, for instance, with a known case—even though it be "nothing"—is committing wholesale damage.

The time absolutely to stop "flu" leaks is right now. Wouldn't this phase of the situation be worth some editorial comment?

Sincerely,
A. Student.

Y. C. Meetings

souls and greatest of all, living in the new Earth. Elder Calkins stated that Jesus is about to leave the Heavenly Sanctuary and will pour out His wrath upon those who refuse to receive His mercies. At the close of the meeting, he gave an earnest appeal to the young people to repent of their sins and be prepared for Christ's coming.

Climaxing the series of meetings held during the Youth's Congress, Elder Alonzo Baker, editor of the "Signs of the Times," spoke Sunday evening on the six convictions that Christian young people should have.

Seventh-day Adventists should have a conviction that they should have convictions, and then be ready to live for these convictions. One must feel that he is alive and have a definite purpose in view. "God has me here for some definite place in life," Elder Baker stated of his own experience. As surely as there is a place in Heaven for the redeemed, there is a place on this earth for us now.

Youth of today should be able to distinguish between right and wrong. In this irreligious age, the youth should know that God is interested in them, and it is best to be on God's side. Seventh-day Adventists should sincerely feel that the greatest thing in human life is to advance the interests of the Kingdom of God.

WATCHMAN WILLIE WILLIE TELIT

Probably the first thing which your columnist should scream about is a tradition which has been so neatly broken by ye old class of '36."

In years past it has been the polite custom of the senior class to prolong its picnic until the juniors could organize. This year tradition and etiquette were more or less disregarded, this apparent lack of cooperation was undoubtedly due, at least in part for the decided disadvantage certain juniors found it necessary to experience.

Willie Telit would have given the last dime and two pennies which he now possesses to have been present when Seniors Keeton, Clark, et al were sweetly instructed to pump up three tires, which in a fit of playful ecstasy they saw fit to deflate — humiliation a la carte.

Another item which deserves mentioning is as follows: James Homer Aitchison, and the quite honorable Editor, J. M. Petrik, were seen on a bicycle built for two. This old tradition not a place but just a proposition.

Yours truly wishes to thank Messers. Blank, Blank and Blank for the excellent marksmanship, displayed in the Seniors home coming—and if you will drop around to Room 221 M.B.K., the Admiralty will count it a pleasure to congratulate you on the rendition of such remarkable service.

At this point, however painful, conscience compels us to record certain facts: It seems that M.B.K.'s playboy is again on the loose.

Congratulations, Miss Birch.

I have just been told that Pat Clement has been ill. For this and certain other things I wish to offer my sincere sympathy.

Certain juniors wish to offer their apologies to certain other juniors, and beg to explain that the elaborate water system used in the recent revolution would have been more efficiently executed had interferences too technical to mention herein had been previously taken care of.

An orchid to Sherlock Holmes Scarrillo, and his brawny assistant, Watson Miles, for the beautiful bit of detections done in connection with certain food stuff. For this unfortunate service the admiralty wishes to congratulate you—in fact, the admiralty would gladly decorate you, if they thought they could get away with it.

On Sunday afternoon the young people passed on a number of resolutions pertaining to the type of music, reading and associations which they would abide by from now on with the help of the Lord.

Alonzo Baker
Editor of "Signs" Interviewed

"You are to be congratulated on having the first Youth's Congress in the Pacific Union," stated Alonzo Baker in an interview late today. He reminded us that we are very fortunate to have such a large hall to accommodate the young people of this conference, as in other Congresses he has attended they met in tents.

As to his purpose in running for Congress, he said that in the coming calendar reform a representative of the S.D.A.'s will be of much help.

It may be interesting to know that Mr. Baker and Prof. J. P. Fentzling were in the same public speaking class at P.U.C. Elder Baker informed the reporters, that, at that time it was very hard for him to speak in public.

For the past eighteen years, Elder Baker has made his home in Mountain View, where he is editor of the "Signs of the Times." Although he takes much pride in keeping up the garden around his home, his favorite pastime is playing golf.

Elder Baker, in his address presented six points which he thinks are very essential to the youth of today.

He said that too many of us go round and around, and we come out we know not where.

The young people have voted to have another Youth's Congress next year, and it is hoped that this resolution will be successfully carried out.

PHILOSOPHY AND WIT

By Lee Zinn

Heard at Youth's Congress—where old friends meet and new friends are made: "Say, did you ever (live, go to school, attend church, have a brother who lived) at such and such a place?"

"Why yes, I used to have (etc.) Don't tell me you are so and so! Isn't it surprising how much you have changed?"

At Youth's Congress, was S.C. J.C. "overrun" with boys and girls, or "run over" by boys and girls?

Even the cows did their bit to help make Youth's Congress a success.

If we wish to make a thing a success, we must all pull together.

Teacher: "And now, boys and girls, we see that nothing is impossible."

Voice (from the rear): "It isn't? Well, I'd like to see you stick an umbrella down your throat, and then open it."

Children are natural mimics. They act like their parents in spite of every effort to teach them good manners.

The modern girl adores spinning wheels, but she wants four of them and a spare.

Almost any day now we expect the service boy at the filling station to lean in and pick out our teeth.

Boss: "There's two dollars missing from my desk drawer, and no one but you and I have a key to it."

Office Boy: "Well, let's each put a dollar back and forget it."

If you have "kleptomania," you should take things for it.

A young lawyer, pleading his first case, had been retained by a farmer to prosecute a railway company for killing twenty-four hogs. He wanted to impress the jury with the magnitude of the injury.

"Twenty-four hogs, gentlemen! Twenty-four! Twice the number there are in the jury box."

Concert Tours

Several radio broadcasts have been arranged for, one already having been presented from San Bernardino. On April 18 at 2 o'clock in the afternoon a program will be presented over KFI, Los Angeles and will again be given from the Phoenix, Ariz., station while the group is visiting there.

The Men's Glee Club, and possibly the Ladies' Glee, are scheduled to sing at the Los Angeles and Glendale Academies in the morning and afternoon of April 2. These schools are visited each year by the glee clubs, who are planning an excellent program to be presented on this visit.

The NEWSETTE Column

One very outstanding ex-student to visit over the week-end for the Youth's Congress was Jack Waller. He formerly was connected with the "Criterion" and was one of its most loyal supporters while here. He has been missed by all since he left school at the end of the first semester, and the "Criterion" extends its best wishes for him in his work.

Don Smith is an expert at making chili, but he sincerely wishes someone else would chop the onions.

Miss Sorenson had a ride on a bicycle built for two at the senior picnic. How did you like it, Miss Sorenson?

In Girls' Forum, March 18, friendship-friends were revealed in a unique way. Each girl wore some article of clothing belonging to her friendship-friend. Talitha Neuman was the object of the most laughter when she appeared in Joyce Kibler's dress.

Evelyn Palmquist's sister and brother-in-law from Glendale visited her on Sabbath.

Among our many other guests during Youth's Congress, S.C.J.C. was glad to welcome a number of last year's students who are now taking the nurse's course. They were Jean Detlor, Helen Moore, Vera Meader, Valeria Jones, Aural Mathiesen, Velma Mathiesen, and Alladine Rich.

Did you know that Eloise Calender has a typical Texas cactus garden in her room? Nothing like making yourself at home.

We are glad to welcome our friends back to the campus who have been confined to their rooms with the "flu."

Approximately five hundred and fifty people were served in the dining room Sabbath.

Have you noticed here and there the mighty seniors are revealing to very special friends a glimpse of their "proofs."

Ivan Martin and Roger Neideigh have become very efficient in the operation of the "mikes" during Youth's Congress.

Don't you think Harry Sciarillo is a promising young master of ceremonies? Good work, Saturday night, Harry.

Most of the seniors are still wondering how the juniors got in their car Sunday evening.

Evidently the juniors like verse speaking choirs—they wanted the seniors to form one.

Ada Beryl Mourer stayed with Esther Irvine over Saturday and Sunday.

Several of the seniors are still sore and stiff from their outing on Monday.

COLLEGIATE HI-LIGHTS

By Paul Bunch

Dr. T. Wingate Todd, anatomist at Western Reserve University's school of medicine, during a recent lecture on stomach research discussed the "influence of the stomach on the mind" and speculated on the indebtedness of both literature and science to indigestion.

Dr. Donovan C. Browne, assistant professor of gastro-enterology at the University of Tulane, points out that a "dyspeptic" is irritable, and that when irritability is increased the mind works better and longer. However he contends that necessity is usually the prime factor and not indigestion that spurs a man on to his greatest efforts.

A Cappella Takes Week-end Tour by Pomona Bus

Last week-end marked the beginning of the A Capella Choir spring tour. The Choir left the school at 1:15 in the Pomona bus. The first appointment was at KGER, in Long Beach from 3:30 to 4:00 p.m.

At Elder Richard's Long Beach Tabernacle the next concert was given at 8:00 p.m. Most of the choir members spent the night at Long Beach and then went on to Huntington Park Church for the eleven o'clock service, Sabbath.

After the concert at Fullerton Church in the afternoon, the choir went to the home of Barbara and Claude Steen, where they were entertained for the evening.

This was the first time the choir used a bus—ask the members how they liked it.

EARLY HISTORY OF THIS VICINITY TOLD

To give a better understanding of the vicinity in which we live, members of the Public Speaking class began a series of chapel talks on the early history of this region in chapel, Wednesday, March 25.

How little one realizes the vivid drama of the early history of such a town as San Bernardino impressed the mind as Olaf Locke portrayed the pioneering of the Mormons in this section. After the first party had divided on their way to these valleys, one of which perished in Death Valley and the other locating on the site of what is now the city of San Bernardino, Captain J. Hunt returned to Zion (Salt Lake City) and finding provisions very scarce led a large group back. A large tract of land was purchased and the city started. But when trouble between the Mormons in Salt Lake City and the United States Government seemed imminent, all the "saints" were called back to "Zion," and Mormon history in this region was closed.

Harold Peck gave a resume of the Indians of Southern California. They are erroneously called Digger or Mission Indians, for almost all of these Indians dug roots for part of their food and various different tribes were attached to the early Spanish missions. They were quiet, peace-loving peoples.

By way of introducing the series, Professor J. P. Fentzling, instructor in speech, spoke of Cabrillo's discovery of California in 1542, and of the conjectures as to the source of the name of the state, and briefly of the Spanish and Mexican and grants for ranchos and haciendas.

Vision of Mission Opportunities Shown

"Jesus does not look upon you as you are now but as you will be," Elder J. H. MacEachern, Secretary of the Home Missionary and Publishing Departments in the Far Eastern Division, who is a delegate to the coming General Conference, revealed to the students in chapel Friday morning.

When Jesus picked His disciples he did not see them as they were but visualized what they would be. He visualized John of Thunder writing in exile on the isle of Patmos, and Peter as the great speaker of Pentecost.

There is no limit of opportunities which lie before young men and young women today. Elder MacEachern stated that this work is in the twilight of its mighty beginning and before the end it will be the mightiest thing that Christendom has ever known. He further explained that there will always be a distinct need for leadership from American young people.

In the fields which Elder MacEachern represents there are 141,000,000 people of whom 30,000 have become Adventists. He was proud to report that they have a fine lineup of schools and junior and senior colleges. There are 400 students attending the senior college on the Philippine Islands which is recognized by the university there.

GIRLS' FORUM HOLDS MEETING

Home talent furnished the program for the last Girl's Forum meeting held Wednesday evening under the direction of the vice-president, Millicent Grant. The girls brought pillows and some brought mending and seated themselves informally on the parlor floor.

Alice Clement, Grace Scott, and Evelyn Palmquist, who made up the girls trio, sang two well known numbers in which they harmonized very well. Two piano selections, the second of which was an encore, were played by Lorraine Swartout. A humorous selection from "Pickwick Papers," in which Mr. Pickwick got into the wrong room by mistake was read by Lauretta Brynes. Evelyn Ruth Dale sang a solo accompanied by Barbara Steen on the violin and Geraldine Gatten at the piano.

"A home without books is like a house without windows."
— Henry Ward Beecher

"Choose your words as you would choose your friends — for their character."

Elder J. H. MacEachern Gives Mission Resume

Giving a resume of the work of God in the Far Eastern division, Elder J. H. MacEachern, Secretary of the Home Missionary and Publishing Departments, spoke during the church hour Sabbath morning.

"When God undertakes something you can depend upon it that it will be done," said Elder MacEachern. He chose Romans 9:28, "For he will finish the work and cut it short in righteousness: because a short work will the Lord make upon the earth," to show the power of God in this last great message.

God has power to flood this world with Spiritual light and that is just what he is doing through his people who go out as missionaries and those who stay home and support the message. The heathen are searching for the light and it is our duty to go forward and meet them. Now as never before, the work of God is spreading with marvelous rapidity in the Far Eastern division, he stated.

To substantiate this statement he told several experiences which showed that a supernatural power was helping in the rapid spread of the gospel in this mission field.

M. V. SPEAKERS SAY "BE READY"

Preparation for the coming crisis was emphasized by several students in the Missionary Volunteer Meeting held Friday evening.

God's people are already suffering persecution in some places but more severe persecution will come as the end draws nearer, Mr. Harold Kannenberg pointed out to the students. God's eye will be on His people and they will be protected. If one suffers for Him, he will reign for Him, but if one denies Him He will be denied.

In a short Bible study, Mr. Ronald Scott stated that in order for believers to go through the trials that are before, they will have to do a lot of praying. From Hebrews 11:24-26 was read the experience of Moses in Egypt who chose rather "to suffer affliction with the people of God than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season."

Miss Eloise Callendar reminded the students of the Lord's promise to provide His people with bread and water during their darkest days of trouble. She explained that persecution helps one to acquire a deeper appreciation of God's love. If such persecutions are endured, there is a great reward in heaven.

Music was furnished by the two little Simkin girls in a vocal duet and a saxophone solo by Robert Garner.

Adaptability Is Theme of D. A. Ochs' Talk

With examples to illustrate his points, Elder D. A. Ochs, associate secretary of the Young People's Missionary Volunteer Society, spoke to the students in chapel Monday, March 23, concerning numerous things which may go "haywire." Incidents which occurred while on the farm in his childhood days were cited.

"The greatest lesson we have to learn is the secret of 'fitting in,'" the speaker said, then we can control ourselves so as not to go amiss when unpleasant occurrences arise, nor cause others to do so.

As an example, Elder Ochs told of a certain football game between California and Alabama in which a player became confused after getting the ball and ran the wrong direction.

To show that Christians should consider life as a ball player thinks of a ball game, the speaker gave the following poem about a player who was on his death bed:

"The doc knows what his trained eye sees,
And he says it's the last of the ninth for me
And one more swing while the clouds loom dark
And I must leave this noisy park.

'Twas a glorious game from the opening bell,
Good plays, bad plays, and this pell-mell.
The speed of it burned my years away,
But I thank God that He let me play."

EDITORIAL

WHAT SAY YOU?

It seems unnecessary to write an editorial about spring fever owing to the fact that so much has been written about this particular malady already. However, we get an opportunity to write about it only once a year.

Anyway, this epidemic has hit Southern California Junior College in no uncertain terms. Be it as it may, it would be a capital idea if a campaign of some kind could be promoted so that more arm chairs, like those found on the porches of both houses, could be secured.

Only ten individuals can enjoy their sickness at a time. Something could be done to accommodate our fever-stricken student body as well as to improve the appearance of the porches when all available chairs are taken out on the lawn. What say you? — C. N.

WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO DO ABOUT IT?

When this issue comes off the press, there will only be six weeks left of the school year. For most of the student body, this no doubt is a pleasant thought.

During this last period everyone is going to find it more difficult than ever to apply himself to his studies. Many extra-curricular activities will interfere with the desire to study.

In fact, even this fine Southern California weather will be a determining factor as to what this last semester will mean as far as educational accomplishments are concerned. After all the success of a school year is not determined by the grades you receive, but by what you actually learn, as you have heard your instructors say many a time. However, at this time of the year, much of what you have learned will do you no good unless you get in and work the last six weeks.

Grades may not be as important as knowledge; but nevertheless you must remember that they will follow you the rest of your life — especially is the case if you aspire to get that "white collar" job.

You have the opportunity to make a good showing for yourself at the end of the year if you only will. What are you going to do about it? — C. N.

When They Were Our Age

After pursuing Miss Hopkins for about a block, we reached her just as she arrived on Miss Ragon's front porch. When asked what she did when our age, she said "nothing" (you can't fool us, Miss Hopkins)— nothing exciting or out of the ordinary. Said she went to school when people usually go to school, and the thing of greatest importance just now was that the gophers were in her front yard.

Miss Ragon's first three years of academy were spent at Walla Walla and her last year at P.U.C. from where she was graduated. When she first came to P.U.C. it was the second year after the establishment of the school. The girls lived in an old hotel building and the boys lived in tents. The thing she liked the best about P.U.C. was the beautiful woods. She planned to teach Bible and History, but changed to English. After graduating from P.U.C. she taught for four years in their Normal Department. Miss Ragon has lived in a dormitory for 15 years, which is more than the average person has.

Golden Gate Academy was the school from which Mrs. Cushman graduated from the academy. She attended P.U.C., took Normal for one year, graduated from pre-med, college course and music and is now taking business. Her hobby when she is at home is sewing, but otherwise is taking camping trips. Her longest trip was taken a year after her marriage, when she and her husband made a tour of the Western states and part of Canada, with a distance of 5000 miles covered. They have traveled and camped practically everywhere in California.

S.C.J.C. Organizes Male Quartette

This year the school is proud of a new organization—the S.C.J.C. male quartet.

During the last two months this quartet has been singing in the churches from which the students of the school came.

The quartet is made up of Harry Sciarrillo, first tenor; Robert Wood, second tenor; Paul MacIntosh, baritone; Harlyn Abel, bass.

The selection, "Beautiful Land," by Parks, has proved to be the favorite number in the churches. The quartet sings only straight gospel hymns because they feel that the people in the churches can best appreciate this type of music.

The quartet sings a special number on the program that the A Cappella gives on their tour.

There is a tide in the affairs of men,
Which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune. — Shakespeare.

"The biggest room in the world is the room for improvement."

"Bare hands grip better than kid gloves do." — Chas. Schwab.

Our Biota

By Donald Hemphill

Have you visited our Zoological Garden?

The warm spring days have awakened and brought forth the reptile world. We have several new specimens, recently captured. They are the California Boa and Gopher snakes. One of our black rattlesnakes survived the winter in the zoo successfully. The snakes are well caged so that you may see them at close range.

A most curious and interesting creature is the Horned Toad. With all his horns and prickles he really looks dangerous but instead makes a well-behaved pet. If placed on his back in a certain position, he will remain motionless for some time due to partial paralysis of the nervous system. This type of "hypnotism" has a scientific explanation, when cold the horned toads burrow in the sand and wait for warm weather. Their food is ants, small bugs, and flying insects.

The birds are also welcoming spring. Blackbirds are busy carrying nesting material up to the tall evergreen trees in the front of the school. Flocks of blackbirds walk about the lawns gathering food and all manner of things for their nests.

Surely you have heard the linnets singing about their nests in trees at the Science hall steps. An almost continual song accompanies their work.

One set of eggs has been reported. A small hole hollowed in the earth and a few straws laid down compose the nest of the Morning Dove.

Alumni

Did you realize that a number of singers in the P.U.C. A Capella Choir had their first training at S.C.J.C.? Those who have been here for "a long time" were glad to see these used-to-be S.C.J.C. students when the choir sang here. Lyman Ham, Cecil Olmstead, George Casebeer, Beatrice Ham (Beatrice Casebeer), Lola Olmstead, Bernice Prout, and Ruth Olsen may be considered as products of our own school.

News comes rather indirectly of our "old" students have taken that almost inevitable step — marriage. Joe Geierman and Vincent Craven have both taken the step.

Harriet Smith writes the following to our professor of English:

"I enjoy it here at Walla Walla very much, especially the snow, which we are having an abundance of right now. I always read with interest the activities of the English Club and hope that they are having as good a time as we did last year. I am hoping that you are having a good year and not too many "bonehead" English students."

Mu Beta Kappa Holds Election

Corrupt politics have finally made their way into the ranks of Mu Beta Kappa, the men's club. At least said body is accused of the practice of ballot stuffing in the recent nominations of officers for the coming term of office. A slight misunderstanding in the technical procedure of balloting the votes called for a recount, which was successfully handled with the aid of supervising monitors. And once again there is composure in the usual proceedings of the organization.

Mu Beta Kappa has endeavored to carry out in this year's activities, as well as in the programs of preceding years, the purpose of its origin—that of promoting profitable and friendly relations between the men of Mu Beta Kappa and providing important business to discuss. The club also believes that a more friendly attitude should be fostered toward its sister organization, the Girl's Forum, and included as one of the major functions of the club's calendar of events for the year the open house, held February 8 in honor of the residents of Gladwyn Hall, an event which was favorably received by both the girl's and men's clubs. There have also been varied and educational programs given by professional outside talent.

An interesting schedule is planned for the remaining meetings of this school year, and it is felt that there will be many pleasant activities to follow. The officers for the coming term of office are Lee Zinn, President; Charles Gallion, Vice President; Merl Hoffman, Secretary; Elmer Bryson, Treasurer; Earl Shearn, Sergeant at Arms; Joe Maschmeyer, Chaplain.

Metropolis

Buildings seem to reach the heavens; subways thunder underground.

"L" trains, trolleys, autos, people are forever rushing 'round. Screams and shouts, shrieks and screeches, honks and whistles fill the air.

My Opinion

Have you heard this one on Lee Zinn? He had an appointment to meet three young ladies at the Broadway Department Store at 2:30 p.m. a certain Monday afternoon. When he arrived at 3:00 p.m. he found a note addressed to him placed in a conspicuous place in the entrance. Was he abashed?

A recent visitor on the campus picked Johnny Hopkins as being the most Collegiate looking boy in school. Congratulations, Johnny! Let's not come to blows, girls.

Eloise Callander, who came over and gave you a piece of his birthday cake Saturday night? Tsk, tsk, tsk, Eloise.

ABOUT PEOPLE AND NEWS

THE OTHER day
I WAS talking
WITH ONE of our coeds
HERE ON the Campus,
AND SHE was all excited
BECAUSE SHE thought
THAT I HAD written something
FOR THE SCHOOL paper ABOUT HER.
AND THEN a friend of hers
WOULD FIND out all about it
AND SHE would just die,
SO SHE said.
AND AS we talked
I BEGAN to wonder
JUST HOW anxious she was
TO KEEP her name
OUT OF the paper,
BECAUSE MOST people enjoy
MORE OR less
SOMETHING ABOUT themselves
IN PRINT, and having others
KNOW WHAT they are doing,
IF anything.
AND OF course,
A COLUMNIST, like me,
ALWAYS enjoys a good item
WHICH CAN be passed on TO THE reading public.
AND SO I'M still wondering
WHETHER OR not I should LET YOU in
ON SOME of the news
THAT HAS come my way.

College Poultry Department Burns

Approximately three hundred chickens were burned last Friday about 3 a.m., when the school's chicken house burned to the ground. Evidences are that a number of chickens were stolen before the fire as remains of only part of the chickens can be found.

Attention was first called to the fire by the dairy boys who noticed a glow at both ends of the house. Soon the whole building seemed to go up at once. Mr. Hoyt, who takes care of the chickens, was awakened by the glow and found the whole building ablaze.

Mr. S. A. Smith, farm manager, expressed the opinion that the fire had been set as the few hens that escaped were covered with oil.

A new brooder stove had been installed shortly before the incendiary. At 10 o'clock the Hoyt boys checked it and found it to be operating well. It was stated that the brooder could not have caused fire for the blazes started at both ends of the house and not near the brooder. There was also a half tank of oil that did not explode until after the fire was well started thus dispelling any reasons that it was the cause of the fire.

Joys of Adventism Told In Vespers

"I think the finest thing in the world to be is a Seventh-day Adventist," said Elder R. J. Christian, M. V. secretary of the Central Union in Vespers, Friday.

Elder Christian used Jeremiah 9:23-24 as his text from which he read that people are not to glory in wisdom, or riches, but to glory in the fact that they know the Lord.

One Philadelphia bank that had a run of $32,000,000 in one day previous to the recent bank holiday is an example of where people flee in distress. Elder Christian in contrast explained the Christian's privilege of fleeing to the Lord for help. From Acts 4: 12 he read: "Neither is there salvation in any other."

Seventh-day Adventists as a people, have everything to glory in for they are not at a loss to understand what their message is.

"To know that He is the Lord" is the reason for the establishment of S.D.A. institutions. The Bible does not call for a monkey's religion, but a militant religion that all may march on with Him. Those who take this course go onward for Christ and their hearts are constantly filled with joy.

Bird Contest Winners Named

As a result of the bird contest held for the Academic Biology class during March, the three prize winners will go on a week-end camping trip with Prof. and Mrs. L. H. Cushman. The three winners are Willard Hoag, Donald Garvin, and Annella Carr.

The students reported over ninety different kinds of birds in this contest, all of which were seen during March. The name, date, when seen, place, and what it was doing, were included in each report.

Former Student Weds at Arlington

Marie Christian, class of '32, became the bride of David Toppenburg, brother of Paul, Thursday night in a quiet ceremony at the Seventh-day Adventist church at Arlington. Elder Glenn Calkins, president of the Pacific Union, performed the ceremony.

Paul Toppenburg and Paul Christian, brother of the bride, attended the groom. Dianne Heim was flower girl.

Mrs. Harlyn Abel played the wedding march as the bride, dressed in white satin and carrying a bouquet of white carnations, was escorted by her brother, Elder J. L. Christian, to the steps.

Following a reception in the Y.W.C.A. at Riverside, the couple left for a short honeymoon. Mr. and Mrs. David Toppenburg will be at home in Los Angeles after April 6. The groom is a third-year medical student at the White Memorial Hospital.

Lauretta Brines Receives Award

Lauretta Brines is the happy possessor of a new Royal Portable typewriter which came to her last week as a result of her outstanding work in a campaign sponsored by the Far Eastern Academy, Shanghai, China, to raise funds for a new boys' dormitory. The student body was divided into bands of ten members, each with a goal of $500.00, and the girls competed against the boys. By writing letters and soliciting people, Miss Brines succeeding in collecting $1026.00 (Chinese currency). This amount to approximately $500.00 in United States money. Of the five awards presented, she received first award which was the typewriter.

Schoolmate Dies

Naomi Albertson, 16, who had attended S.C.J.C. practically all her life died of pneumonia at 5 o'clock Friday morning, April 3, 1936, in Loma Linda Hospital. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert L. Albertson of La Sierra Heights.

Naomi was the youngest in a family of three girls and one boy. Those who knew her speak of her as being a sweet, lovable girl.

She first attended S. C. J. C. in the first grade and for the past year had been taking tenth grade work here.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon in Riverside with Elder C. M. Sorenson officiating.

W. F. Van Atta Speaks in Chapel

As an opening to his Wednesday chapel talk, Mr. W. F. Van Atta of the Book and Bible House of this Conference, read a humorous poem which demonstrated the fact that there is a great difference between what most people say and what they do.

It is easy to say things, but it often takes real courage and faith when it comes down to the test to do that thing. In the Christian life faith is an absolute necessity. Many things can't be proven by humans because it is not God's will that they should be, but must be taken by faith. For this last work to succeed, we, the members, must have absolute faith in the plan and organization of God. Although

Women to Hold Open House

Men are Guests

One of the most important social functions of the school year will be held next Sunday evening, April 12, at which time the young ladies of S.C.J.C. will entertain the young men at Open House to be held at Gladwyn Hall.

Entertainment for the evening will consist of the usual tour of rooms, to be followed by a program and refreshments.

This year, the young women will ask the young men by personal invitation, which is somewhat out of the ordinary. This is not done because of Leap Year, but the young men feel that since the young ladies are entertaining they should extend the invitations. However, the entire group of young men are invited to attend, although they do not receive a personal invitation.

The committee planning the affairs of the evening is headed by Barbara Steen, and consists of Millicent Grant, Mae Smith, Delpha Roche, Ruth Phillips, Gladys Christianson, and Joyce Kibler with Dean Velma Wallace as advisor.

Burmese Mission Incidents Cited

Religion in Burma is "kindly received and pleasantly ignored" explained J. L. Christian, superintendent of the Burma Mission in a short history of religion in that country, in Chapel Friday morning.

While doing some Harvest Ingathering among the upper class, Mr. Christian visited a high official, who is similar to a "Rajah" in India. After being asked for a donation he answered that because of the depression he was receiving only about $34,000 a month and found it difficult to live on this amount. However, Mr. Christian received a fine donation from him.

Judson was the first missionary to Burma and today there stands a small church in his memory by the Christian young people of Burma. "In spite of Judson's labors the people still resist religion. Foreigners in the Orient are not loved but the missionaries are respected," commented Mr. Christian.

Showing the importance of religion despite this resistance, he told of the experiences of two Christians who are the only Christians in their province. One is a treasurer, and the other has charge of the only hospital in his province.

A College President's Opinion

A phrase — now thrusting itself into academic use sets the ideal one notch lower than the discredited "gentleman's grade." It is the phrase, "Get by."

I had often heard the phrase from both undergraduates and students in professional schools; but I never felt its full force until I heard its passionate denunciation by a business man with whom I was playing golf. We were talking about a certain young man whom he had recently met, and whom he had asked how he was getting on. "I am hoping to get by," was the reply. "Hoping to get by!" exclaimed my friend, who, by the way, has a passion for perfection, whether it be golf or a bond issue; "hoping to get by!" If I have a case where I am right, but it requires exhaustive knowledge and skillful interpretation to make the judge and jury see it, do you suppose I would employ a man who was 'hoping to get by?'"

The phrase contains as much moral poison as a two-word phrase can hold. It carries the implication that the course of study, or the examination, and time and effort spent in preparation for it, are evils; and that the only good is a vaguely defined state of existence, unrelated to present effort, which the lapse of time will bring us after these evils, with as little effort as possible, have been endured and survived. It is a new form of the weakling's old device of wishing time and the opportunities it brings away.

And young men, if courtesy forbids them to say as much to their fellows, must think, every time they hear the poisonous phrase, that it is the mark of a coward.

— President William DeWitt Hyde, Bowdoin College.

Class Receives Foreign Mail

In response to an assignment in practical, friendly letter-writing, the English Composition class has been having a very interesting time reading letters which come from foreign countries. From Canada, England, India, Spain, China, Hawaii, Denmark, Switzerland, and many other places have come letters which give us a quaint insight into the life in other countries.

Three native Indian girls, not Adventists, who are in nurses' training in South India, write: "We are about twenty-three nurses here and have twelve nurses' rooms; each class lives in separate rooms, class by class. We have a four-year course. . . . There are two big wards in our hospital, called medical and surgical wards. . . . In the surgical ward there are seventeen patients (adults), and twelve little children and in the medical ward there are nine patients."

From Hawaii comes a wonderful description of the tropical island and an invitation to come and visit. They emphasize that our idea of the natives going around in grass skirts is wrong, but that they are as civilized as we who live on the mainland.

A school teacher in Canada tells us of her school which is situated way out in the country. The students have to come on horseback. The weather there is very variable. It may look like a beautiful clear day, but in a few hours a blinding snowstorm may blow up, causing a person who happens to be out in it to become lost. Such was her experience and only her pony's instinct saved her.

From a girl in our only S.D.A. college in England comes the following: "Firstly, I expect you will be wondering how your letter arrived at Newbold College instead of Stonborough Park. About four or five years ago it was discovered that Stanborough College was too small for the ever-increasing number of students that sought their education there; so after some discussion it was decided by buy Newbold Revel, an old country mansion, situated in the leafy vale of Warwickshire." She tells how the students from all over the British Isles come to school there and of their sports. Sometimes when the lake freezes in winter they can skate.

Through these letters many friendly contacts have been made, thus giving a broader effect upon the class.

CHOIR ITINERARY CORRECTION

The choir will not sing at the Glendale Sanitarium or at the Eagle Rock Church on April 17 as previously announced, instead the group will sing at the Glendale Isabelle St. Church at 8 p.m., April 17, and at the Hollywood Church, at 11 a.m., April 18.

Forum Enjoys Evening's Variety

Examinations last week resulted in an extemporaneous program, Wednesday night, when the Girls' Forum met. Everyone had been busy studying and there was no time for preparation, but the program proved to be more humorous and interesting than it would have been otherwise.

When called upon, Edna Markley gave selections from several poems, and Dale Nesbit and Gurlie Paulson gave original poems they had composed for English, that is, Gurlie gave one line of hers and then laughed so much she couldn't finish. Ruth Phillips also presented a very interesting reading concerning an "old maid" and her opinions about the men.

The rest of the program was made up of musical numbers. The previous week-end Lorraine Swartout had played in a violin recital in Los Angeles, so was requested to play the same number for the Forum. Virginia Chapman played a piano solo and Evelyn Adams sang, in spite of the fact that she claimed she was too hoarse to do so.

Elder Avery Speaks on Right Living

Going into detail as to the characteristics of Ephraim, W.L. Avery, educational secretary of the Southeastern California Conference, expressed the importance of right living to the students in chapel, Monday, March 30. The lives of Abraham and Lot were contrasted to show that everything one does, brings results, either good or bad.

With comments on Hosea 7:7,11, 16; the speaker brought out that Ephraim, son of Joseph, was a disappointment to his parents and to God.

As an illustration of this a portrayal of the anticipation of one who has a delicious-looking, golden-brown, pancake set before him was given. Imagine his great disappointment to find that only one-half of the cake was cooked. As Ephraim "was like a cake not turned," he was a disappointment.

Abraham and Lot came to a decisive point in their lives when they chose their piece of land. The previous part of Lot's life was made known when he chose the better land.

"Think of practical things to do," was the instruction the speaker left with his audience, "so that we may choose the right thing when our opportunity comes."

Van Atta Speaks in Chapel

the leaders may sometimes go astray, it is not our place to question the organization which God has set up but rather to place greater faith in it and supply stronger men for its leadership.

Those that may be with God in the earth made new must develop faith here for there will be no place for the faithless ones in the New Jerusalem.

BIRD CONTEST

 As a check on these reports, a final test was given that included seventy-two bird skins to be identified out of the biology collection of 459 birds. This did not include the larger or more easily identified ones.
 A set of fifteen colored 3x6 inch bird pictures was the reward for all those reporting on thirty or more birds. At least thirty birds must be learned during the year.
 Those receiving the highest reports and highest scores:
 Willard Hoag 70 60
 Donald Garvin 60 58

Mr. Morgan Adams, his mother,

The campus seemed quite desert-

It was noticed that three of the

 Some of them are — A school

"Youngest Cable Sender"

"Hello Dad, Arrived at one-thirty p. m. Weigh seven and a half pounds," Signed, John Jr.

John C. Cooper, operator of All-American Cables, Maricaoibo, Venzuela, A. A., received this cable sent from California.

What John C. had to say about it, and how is the story, for he is now at La Sierra, where he has joined his wife, Mrs. Ramona Cooper, and the youngest of cable-senders. — John Jr.

Mrs. Ramona Cooper recently traveled here from Maricaoibo. She and her husband have been in South American for the past six years. Mrs. Cooper was formerly Ramona Steen, a graduate from the Academy of Music in 1928.

John "Jack" Cooper is also a former student and graduate of 1927 from S.C.J.C. He visited the school Thursday, seeing old friends, teachers, and co-workers. He work-

The vociferous little plovers called Kildeers can be heard most any time of the day or night in the irrigated fields. On moonlight nights they fly about and call incessantly.

Their nesting habits are queer also. In but a few small fragments of trash on the ground for a nest, four brownish blotched eggs are laid. The mother bird lies concealed on the nest until intruders come within a few feet of her.
 Then with a mournful scream she flounders from the nest and kneels onto her side a few yards away.
 With most alluring actions and calls she leads you from her nest.
 When you are led far beyond the nest, off she flies with a proud chuckle. Kildeers and their eggs can be hidden so that they are almost impossible to find.

The music of the meadowlark is known to everyone. It cannot be defined as song, because the larks of each community seem to have their own particular melody. The beauty and spirit of their songs are difficult to equal.

Because of its many enemies, the meadowlark constructs a covering over its nest. Sometimes a tunnel of grass is built for several feet leading to the nest. Within are laid four or five white eggs.
 When frightened, the birds usually run through the grass before silently taking wing.

Meadowlarks are invaluable to the farmer because of the large number of cutworms and other insect life which they destroy. Protect your friend and songster.

The spring rains are bringing forth more and brighter flowers.
 The blue-bells and baby-blue-eyes out seeing these beauties?

--:-- JUNIORS ORGANIZE

WOMEN HOLD OPEN HOUSE

To the enjoyment of many and the disappointment of few, most of the ladies from Gladwyn Hall called for their guests from Mu Beta Kappa on the evening of April 12 for the Open House activities which were to follow.

All the rooms were visited with inquisitive eyes, for as Mr. Lee Zinn, president of M. B. K., said following the program, "The fellows often wonder what sort of housekeepers the ladies at Gladwyn Hall are."

Although there was no outstanding room, there were a number of rooms that showed good taste in the planning as well as neatness in the upkeep. As the guests went into the parlor, strawberry shortcake with whipped cream and a bottle of milk were served.

The life of a woman was depicted from the time she is sent to school by her mother, on through the high school and nursing graduation, as a bride, mother, mission worker, and in the twilight of life. The scenes were accompanied by a reader in the background and appropriate music. Miss Velma Wallace, Dean of Women, should be complimented on the success of this occasion inasmuch as she had the overseeing of all arrangements.

Dr. Truman Speaks on Health Reform

That we serve God with our bodies as well as with our minds and that we cannot give Him the best service when we fail to follow the physical laws that govern our being, was the burden of the message brought to the La Sierra church, by Dr. A. W. Truman, Sabbath morning, April 11.

"I am an old-fashioned Adventist," declared the doctor, "for I believe in the spirit of prophecy." And he quoted from that source "To make plain natural law and to urge its obedience is a work that accompanies the third angel's message to prepare a people for the coming of the Lord."

"What will protect us?" he asked, "when a thousand will fall at our side and ten thousand at our right hand?" And he added, "Although we can not eat our way into the kingdom, neither can we 'Sabbath' or tithe our way in."

Showing the tendency of physical habits he contrasted the number of cigarettes smoked in 1914, 14 billion, enough to girdle the globe at the equator 25 times, with the number smoked annually today, 136 billion. He also spoke of a patient he had had who, because of his smoking two packages a day for years had developed blood pressure, heart and a stomach of a man twice his age.

Emphasizing reform in both his introduction and conclusion, he said that he had made it a practice not to use anything that would interfere with the natural functions of the body.

Dean Crandall Urges Perseverance

"No matter how great your handicap, you may be down but if you will you will not be out" proved Dean Crandall in Chapel Friday morning.

Illustrating his point, Dean Crandall reviewed the experience of Helen Keller who at the age of 19 months became blind, deaf, and dumb. In spite of these handicaps she is now able to speak.

Abe Lincoln, who failed in business and was defeated in many campaigns, developed to receive the highest gift that this nation can bestow.

Dean Crandall further emphasized this fact by telling of a boy who, because of his dislike for school, quit to seek thrills in the

Willoughby Tells Customs of India

Along with an exhibition of several articles to show the intricate work of the people of India, Elder H. E. Willoughby, pastor of the Riverside church, explained some of the customs common to those people when he spoke in chapel Monday, April 6.

That Buddhists bathe in butter, that prayers are said to water lilies, and that sacred water is carried in brass containers by priests were a few of the speaker's comments.

A human skull that had actually been used by a native of Burma as a receptacle for asking alms was displayed. Knives used for cutting meat, defense, and sacrifices were shown. When used for the last, the heads must be severed with the first attempt, or a curse will come upon the individual.

Students Give Program

Developing the idea of the Christian life as a journey to the Celestial City, members of the public speaking class assisted by others, gave a program for the Arlington Society, Friday evening, April 10.

That each one comes to the parting of the ways at some time in life and is counseled and allured by good and bad angels was the message presented by Mr. Dwight Herbert. He also dwelt upon the narrowness, ruggedness, and steepness of the way that the Christian must pursue.

Other travelers along the way furnished the topic for Mr. Carl Willer's talk. Citing examples of individuals whom he had met on a climb to the top of Half Dome in Yosemite Valley he showed how those who dallied along the way, who were drawn aside by enticements, who did not prepare properly for the journey, and who tried to save time by taking short cuts that led them nowhere were paralyzed in the Christian pathway.

"One's perseverance in continuing to the end of a journey rests in one's value of the goal to be reached" stressed Miss Millicent Grant. She showed from the life experience of the historian Prescott, who, despite the handicap of almost total blindness, that if we succeed in reaching the Pearly Gateway we must put our whole energy progressing heavenward.

MILTON DENMARK ELECTED PREXY

Jr.-Sr. Picnic Soon

On April 7 about forty Juniors of the class of '36 met in the history room and elected Milton Denmark for their president along with other officers, thus beginning a long-awaited-for organization.

Mr. Denmark drew the nomination and later the election on the first ballot that was cast. He seemed a bit surprised; and when asked to make some remarks for the paper, he had an unusual non-committal attitude. He merely retorted, "I don't have anything to say for your paper, but you might tell the Juniors that if they expect to go on the Junior-Senior picnic, they'll have to be actual members — having paid their full dues."

The other officers elected were: Miss Barbara Steen, vice-president; Mr. Clifford Barber, secretary; Mr. Norman Hopman, treasurer; and Mr. Aubrey Wyatt, sergeant-at-arms. Professor Lester H. Cushman was elected faculty sponsor.

Preceding the election, Professor Reynolds reminded the Juniors that there was a set precedent in the school which would not allow either the Junior or Senior class to put their colors up on the flagpole. He said that "Say it with flowers" was a much better motto

Pomona Men's Glee Club To Present Concert

Music lovers of Southern California Junior College will be delighted by the presentations of the Pomona College Men's Glee Club on Sunday evening, April 19. The concert will include a large and varied repertoire from the choral writings of the great masters. Novelty is added to the program by humorous numbers, and color is effected by college songs.

Professor Ralph H. Lyman has directed the glee club to eleven championships out of twelve contests. Mr. Lyman has been the head of the music department of Pomona College since 1917. Clifford Smith, a senior student, is president of the choral group. He is the possessor of a rich bass solo voice which has proven popular with many audiences.

S. C. J. C. is privileged in being able to secure the entertainment of so fine a group of singers.

Habits

Schools are placed in which folks are trained for character as well as in educational lines. Our habits now will follow us wherever we go after we leave the schools. Habits cannot be overcome; nor formed, in a day. Let's start now while in school to form or overcome habits that eventually give us a character such as is pleasing to God. What do you say? — J.F.

Actions and Success

A sentence of two to fourteen years in the penitentiary and a fine of $1000 has been imposed upon William Nelson of Hammond, Indiana, who was convicted of conspiracy to bomb his own motion picture theatre. We would not attempt anything like this, but how about our everyday life? Might not our own actions and conversation destroy our chances of success? — M.G.

On Borrowing

The old saying "loan a man your money, and you lose his friendship" can aptly be applied to our school life, not only in the loaning of money, but other things as well. Before borrowing, think — "would I like to loan that if it were mine?" — the act accordingly. This may lower the increasing tide of borrowing. — H.S.

Are You Buried?

The story is told of a Chicago boy and his playmate who, in spite of repeated warnings, continued to play on the side of a dangerous pile of sand. One evening they did not return home and after much searching were found buried beneath what seemed to them a harmless pile of sand. We may also be playing too close to a pile, not of sand, but of back school work. Would it not be better to lower this ever-growing pile than too late to come to the sad realization that we are buried in it? — A.V.T.

Prof. S. A. Smith Is Interviewed

"California is a paradise, all right, but only for the rich man, Professor Sidney A. Smith, head of the agricultural department, said in an interview recently made by this reporter. "Strict vigilance is the price of natural beauty in a land where watering is artificial."

Professor Smith then went on to relate the number of lawn planting projects around the buildings back and behind the school. These lawns have had to be banked and terraced up and around these buildings in order to take care of the hill slant. The ones completed so far are the College Hall, laundry, and print shop. The plunge will not only have a lawn about it, but will have climbing vines covering the fence, so as to keep out the dust from the winds. The next in line are the Basketry, Normal building, and President's Home.

A new system of watering is being given study which will provide ample watering facilities for each of these new lawns.

"The winds that we get here at La Sierra are cooling, but they cause a lot of evaporation that should not take place. The only way to solve that problem is to plant more trees. Our only protection from these winds is the planting of large trees. We are planning to give shade also to a number of spots such as the parking lots behind the dormitories, and places around the playgrounds. We are also planning to plant shade trees for the barns and corals to shield the cattle from the blistering heat of the sun. This is something that should have been done a long time ago. We expect to increase the comfort, and, as a result, the efficiency of the cattle in this manner."

Professor Smith's "improvement crew" have found the above program enough to keep them very busy during the whole year. "And there's enough work to keep them busy for another year or two to come," said Professor Smith in closing.

Professor Smith came to take up the agricultural work at S.C. J.C. last year. He comes to us from Berrien Springs, Michigan, the location of Emmanuel Missionary College.

Willoughby Speaks

To show the superstitions of the people regarding their religion, Elder Willoughby showed the students a prayer wheel, originally owned by a priest, which must be spun in one direction while prayers are being said, or a curse will come upon them.

A miniature replica of Taj Mahal, marvel in marble and temple created for Mumtaz Mahal, favorite wife of Shah Jehon was described. To be sure that it would never be excelled in beauty by any other architectural work, the eyes of every man who worked on the building were put out.

DO YOU KNOW THAT---

S.C.J.C. is now 14 years old, having been founded in 1922.

President Cossentine has been president six years, or nearly half of that interval, although four presidents preceded him.

Our College is a continuation, so to speak, of the old and much beloved San Fernando Academy.

It established a Training School for teachers in 1923, and also entered the Junior College field. It became a full-fledged Junior College in 1927, though only 47 students registered for lower division college classes.

In 1933 it was fully accredited with the Northwest Association of Secondary and Higher Schools, with its credits accepted by the College of Medical Evangelists.

In 1933, also, it was made a member of the Junior College Association for Southern California and Arizona.

It was incorporated in 1934, and now operates under its own Board of Directors, and is enabled to receive bequests, gifts, and legacies.

The total enrollment for the current year is 311, not counting the elementary enrollment. There are 194 college matriculants and 117 academy matriculants.

The dining room and kitchen were once in Gladwyn Hall, first floor, south end.

The Administration building was once heated with electric radiators, instead of with gas-steam radiators.

The students have to be called to meals by the blowing of a fire siren.

During a school year we serve approximately 435,000 meals in the cafeteria.

There are 39 student rooms in each dormitory.

Almost without exception each student room has three windows.

Ten mahogany teacher's desks have been made in our shops and put in service this year.

The 3 chemistry laboratory tables in the organic laboratory were made by our students and the shop instructor.

There are 26 instructors, administrators, and department superintendents on our list of faculty.

Eight of our instructors hold Master's degrees, which is three more than required by the Accrediting Board.

Our beautiful campus which grows more beautiful, was once only a watermelon patch on a sandy, sunny hillside.

The College Library contains 6600 volumes, of which 3100 are new books purchased during the past four years; 60 periodicals are subscribed for, and 5 newspapers are available. The average daily circulation of books is 500 or more.

We Appreciate

Are the teachers of S.C.J.C. appreciated as they should be by the students? During examination time when a certain person thinks he should have a better grade, or a number of other things, well, these may be exceptions, but as a whole, the answer is "yes."

With as many fine teachers as are found here, there is bound to be a variety of interesting personalities. That they show extraordinary interest in each student as an individual, as contrasted with public school teachers, is prevalent.

Professor Harlyn Abel is not only a musician, and an outstanding ice-skater, but he is well-liked by all who know him.

The woodwork teacher, Professor M. Craig, deserves credit for his abilities to instruct students to put out such excellent work.

Because of his valuable knowledge along scientific lines, Professor L. H. Cushman is widely acclaimed as one of the foremost men on the Pacific Coast. Mrs. Cushman not only teaches her own science classes, but Professor Cushman's as well when he is absent.

"Fair and Square" seem to be the words best fitting Professor J. P. Fentzling, English teacher, besides his ability to understand the students.

Besides knowing radio and concert playing, Mrs. Friend, piano instructor, is very thorough in her teaching.

Caroline S. Hopkins, commercial teacher, shows her colors especially to new or lonely students by inviting them to her home for dinner.

Confidential talks are quite obvious when any of Miss Jensen's students feel the need for encouragement or help. She aptly conducts the Normal department.

Another excellent ice-skater is Professor C. C. Morrison, chemistry and zoology instructor, in addition to being a good conversationalist.

Miss Sorenson, "A1" language teacher, sponsors a lively Spanish club which guarantees a good time for everyone.

Registered Nurse, Anna Paulson, has a smile for everyone she meets. She is loved by all who know her. "True Blue," the name given by Miss F. Ragon, academic English teacher, is an excellent cook.

Memory gems that are put on the blackboard each day, and wit are associated with the instructor of history, Professor K. J. Reynolds.

C. M. Sorenson is a very busy man for, besides teaching all his Bible classes, he is pastor of the church here, and visits in the village.

Living up to his standard for teachers, Farm Manager Sydney Smith sometimes works with his helpers.

G. E. Stearns, our jovial farm superintendent, is respected by all, and most especially by the farm and dairy boys, for his sportsmanship and genuineness.

Dean Velma Wallace is loved and admired by the girls as their mother in the school home, while Dean Crandall is admired in a similar way by the men.

We can hardly imagine S.C.J.C. without our competent business manager, A. R. Smith. His many beautiful photographs of scenes around our campus are a source of enjoyment to students and teachers alike.

Always pleasant and understanding, our dining room matron has won and holds a big spot in every heart. The good food which we enjoy from day to day speaks well for her ability at managing the cafeteria.

No matter how busy our registrar is, she always has time for a warm smile and pleasant greeting. Miss Scott has given faithful service in this capacity for years. She is noted for her cough drops.

A quiet, unobtrusive, young fellow with a masterful touch on the violin is now instructor on this instrument. Well liked by all and a competent teacher. His students are proof of this.

Last, but not least, is President E. E. Cossentine, whose characteristic qualities need not be mentioned as everyone is familiar with this guiding kindly personality of S.C.J.C.

Junior Class Officers
You Should Know

At the head of the junior class is Milton Denmark who it seems, is a Southern gentleman having been born in Mayo, Florida in 1917. He spent the early part of his life there and in Tennessee and attended the Forest Lake Academy in Florida for a while. Later he attended the Los Angeles Academy for a short time and then the Glendale Academy from which he was graduated. He is a past president of Mu Beta Kappa and was sergeant-at-arms of his high school graduating class. Baseball is his hobby and his musical talents include singing (if you have any doubt ask the girls who live near the boiler room) and playing the guitar. He plans to be a doctor and hopes to take his course at Loma Linda.

Barbara Steen, vice-president, is a native daughter, having been born in Los Angeles in 1917. So far she has spent all her life in Southern California and mostly in Fullerton and Brea. Her education was obtained in Fullerton church school, from a private teacher, and here at S.C.J.C. where she was graduated from the academy. Being an accomplished musician, she plays the violin, piano, accordion, saxophone and pipe organ and also sings. She is president of the Girls' Forum and also president of the Music Club.

Clifford Barber, the secretary of the junior class, is from Wisconsin, having been born in the town of Iron River in 1913. His early education was obtained in the rural school of the Tripp Township. He attended Humbolt Academy and came to S.C.J.C. for his senior year. After graduating he attended the Dr. Worster's School of Physical Therapy and at present is taking pre-med. with the hopes of entering Loma Linda and becoming a doctor. His hobby is nature study and photography. He plays a trumpet and the piano and also sings. While in Humbolt Academy he was president of the Men's Home organization, secretary of the junior class, and circulation manager of the Humbolt Academy paper.

Norman Hopman, the treasurer, is another local product, having been born in Glendale. The former event taking place in March, 1915. He attended Glendale Academy and was graduated from it, being president of his senior class and treasurer of his junior class. He has also been treasurer of the Mu Beta Kappa. (People certainly trust him with their money.) Getting beat at tennis by Edna Markley seems to be his hobby, he stated. He doesn't have any musical accomplishment, he insists, but he does like to go to the Hollywood Bowl. Loma Linda is his aim and he plans, hopes, etc., to be a doctor.

Another southern gentleman is Aubrey Wyatt, the sergeant-at-arms, who was born in Rome, Georgia in 1917 and also lived in several other southern states. He attended high school at the George Poor Lola Rupert — Running around in borrowed shoes because someone took one of her own shoes to the Men's Home one Thursday afternoon.

The pitchers of the senior class are practicing for the Junior-Senior ball game.

Some girls are evidently not used to asking boys to go with them, judging by the looks of some of their faces when they ask them to "Open House."

Mr. Craig has found a new name for waffles, "skid-proof pancakes."

Harriet Simmons went to her home in Orange for the week-end.

Munson High School in Virginia but later came to California and attended Glendale Academy where he completed his academy work. He has changed schools twenty times, quite a record. After graduating from Glendale Academy he attended Pasadena Junior College and then came to S.C.J.C. where he is now taking a pre-med, with the hopes of being a doctor. His hobbies are basketball and boxing. When asked about his musical ability he said he once took piano lessons but didn't let them bother him and as result, all he can play is the jews harp, but he does sing. He was president of the Mohawk Boys' Club of George Munson High School and also vice-president of the German Club.

Realizing now the need of an education he went to school and accomplished five years' work in one year. He later became Speaker of the House and an example to all that though you are down you do not need be out.

Mrs. Cushman, Joyce Kibler, and Charles Davis had to crawl out the window of the typing room when they were accidentally locked in just before assembly, Friday, April 10. Wouldn't we all liked to have seen this?

Miss Sorenson served Millicent Grant, Murl Quick, Helen Kintner, Marian Leitch, Alyce Van Tassel, Paul Bunch, Lee Zinn, and Percy Miles with waffles, Saturday evening.

Louise Bunch had a visit from her mother, Sabbath.

Resorts

Little has been said of the nearness of S.C.J.C. to interesting recreational spots of Southern California.

Glen Ivy is the nearest place to the school that possesses the "wild wood atmosphere." Here there is a little trout stream, bordered for miles by sycamores and alders, while in the lower canyon wild grapevines drop fifty feet from the trees to the earth. There is a hotel and warm sulphur plunge at the entrance of the glen. Here begins the trail to the summit of mile-high Santiago Peak.

Lake Arrowhead, approximately a two-hour drive from the college, has been the scene of a number of class picnics and other affairs. Tall pine trees and the lake itself give an intense charm to this place. In the winter, snow sports are the attraction and the summer sports include boating, swimming, and hiking.

Forest Home is in a typical mountain valley, covered with pines. A creek breaking from the side of the canyon forms Twin Falls. In this valley begins the eight-mile trail to the 11,000 feet summit of Grayback, which a few of the students have reached.

Mount San Jacinto, reaching an altitude of 10,800 feet overlooks the Colorado desert and Salton Sea. The northern side of this mountain has the longest single rise in the world. It is about this mountain that the final scenes of Helen Hunt Jackson's story "Ramona" were laid. The resort Idyllwild is the starting point of the trail to the top, which almost every year is reached by some student.

San Antonio canyon with its tributaries contains some scenery notable for its ruggedness. Mount Baldy, the peak, is 10,000 feet in height and has snow on its summit nine months in the year. The trail to the crest is one of the shortest of the higher mountains of this part of the state.

Fancies

Hazel Lay

In the dim of a fading gray twilight
I can sit and think over the day
And the thoughts that are deep in my heart then
Find expression in the music I play.
As the strains of my organ drift outward,
They will linger as loathe to flee;
But they fade in the distance forever;
They are only a memory for me.
But I fancy my thoughts will go with them
As they float thro' the air to the skies,
And they light on a dim distant planet
Where strange visions will come to my eyes.
And I shudder and turn in my
fancies,
It is lonely, and strange, and so queer;
I have lost the sweet strain of my music,
And another strange chord greets my ear.
I awake with a start from my fancies,
For the darkness has covered the earth;
In the light of the last dying
embers,
I must finish with glad songs of mirth.
With the chords of a march tune triumphant,
I forget many care of the way,
And I'm glad to be living and loving
On this earth with my comrades today.

ABOUT PEOPLE AND NEWS

I WAS very interested
AND A bit amused
AS I watched
OUR school choir
START ON THEIR week-end tour
LAST FRIDAY
BUT I FELT sorry for them
BECAUSE IT was hot
AND A sultry wind
WHICH DIDN'T help much
BLEW THROUGH the bus
AND THERE they sat
THREE ON a seat
OR AT LEAST two and a half
AS NEAR AS I could see
BUT THEY were good-natured
AND DIDN'T seem to mind
THE IDEA of riding
OVER A hundred miles
IN SUCH an uncomfortable way
AND I couldn't help
BUT ADMIRE
THIS GROUP of students
WHO CARRY to others
THE true spirit OF OUR COLLEGE.

POMONA GLEE CLUB ENTERTAINS

A CAPPELLA ON CONCERT TOUR

The A Cappella Choir, under the direction of Prof. Harlyn Abel spent the week-end of April 16-19 touring North Los Angeles, at KFI, and in surrounding cities of Pasadena, Hollywood, Glendale and Inglewood.

The Glee Club portion of the choir assisted by other choir members sang three groups of songs at the assemblies of the Glendale and Los Angeles Academies. Two numbers from the Glee Clubs were especially well received—"The Sleigh" rendered by the Girls' Glee Club and the "Italian Street Song" from Victor Herbert's "Naughty Marrietta" rendered by the Male Glee Club with Virginia Smith as solo obligatist.

The rendering of Brahms' "Requiem" by the Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra and Chorus at the Philharmonic Auditorium under the direction of Otto Klemperer was enjoyed by many of the Choir who attended on Friday afternoon.

During the Sabbath school hour, soloists and other special music sections visited other and smaller churches, not listed in the choir itinerary.

Juniors To Give Annual Picnic

Mystery and secrecy surround the facts concerning the soon coming Junior-Senior picnic. In spite of the reticence of the Juniors, it is heard that it will be held next Monday, April 27.

Several committees are actively functioning. The committee, consisting of Jim Norton and several others, is active at the time this goes to press.

Planning the food is the committee Pat Clement, Mrs. John Libby, and Jean Atkin. It is expected that these committees will have completed plans by Monday, April 27.

Seniors are wondering if the picnic will be held at Lake Arrowhead, Brookside Park, or the beach, Camp Baldy, Idyllwild, Fairmont Park, or any of the other places in this vicinity.

Because of the "peppy" group of juniors in the class, the seniors are anticipating an interesting day.

S.C.J.C. Takes Honors in Contest

Bringing to Southern California Junior College the first prize for the second time in narrative type of article in the College Pen League contest, sponsored by the Youths' Instructor, Miss Gwendolyn Brodby, pre-nursing student, received the $10 cash prize in chapel, Monday morning, April 20.

Miss Brodby's story, that of a girl whose brother called for her to take care of his motherless children on the prairies of Canada, was laid in England. The girl at real sacrifices to her own interests accepted the call and went.

Carlos Nicholas won a second prize of $5 in the same field. A third place with a prize of $3 went to Eugene Munson. Miss Matilda Chavez and Arthur Dockham received honorable mention with an award of $1 each.

Competing with the students in our junior and senior colleges all over the United States and Canada, members of the English Composition class at S. C. J. C., in writing narratives, have thus taken the first prize in this field, half the second prizes, a third of the third prizes and two of the nine honorable mentions. This is the second year that S. C. J. C. has taken first prize in the narrative type in the Instructor contest.

Articles numbering 222 were submitted in the three types in the contest and from these there were 3 first awards, 6 second awards, 9 third awards, and 20 honorable mentions. In the field of narration alone, 91 papers were submitted and from these there was 1 first prize, 2 second awards, 3 third awards, and 9 honorable mentions.

Pre-Nurses Have Camp Fire Supper

The pre-nursing students had their annual camp fire supper up by the gravel pit, last Wednesday evening, April 15. Supper was naturally the most important thing, and it consisted of baked potatoes, fried eggs, buns and dill pickles, hot cocoa and doughnuts.

The pre-nurses hurriedly finished their bacteriology laboratory experiments so that they could start at five o'clock for the picnic spot on a hill behind the school. Everyone had the usual trouble getting his eggs cooked sufficiently soft or hard, in balancing full cups of hot cocoa, and in finding the most

Mayor Criddle Addresses Students

Taking as his subject a statement his father made "Despise not the day of small things," Mayor E. B. Criddle of Riverside spoke Monday, April 20, to the student body.

Comparing our life to a game he said we should play according to the rules. It will help us mentally and morally just as outdoor games do, and Mayor Criddle stated that "if we play the game according to the rules, success will be inevitable."

Since each one has a goal in view, Mayor Criddle brought out the fact that our education will take us, step by step, to the place for which we are working.

Bringing out the importance of opportunity, he stated that a small opportunity grasped may lead us to fields far beyond our dreams.

"First, however, we must have a desire to do something, then exercise absolute thoroughness and honesty," said Mayor Criddle, "as well as having courtesy and kindness toward all."

He brought out the phrase "all men are created equal" and stated that in mental and physical respects this is not so. If we will keep our bodies fit mentally, morally, and physically, we can preserve ourselves to a higher degree, however.

R.H. Lyman Directs National Champions

On Sunday evening, April 9, the Pomona College Men's Glee Club, under the direction of Professor Ralph H. Lyman, rendered what might be classed the most outstanding musical program given at Southern California Junior College for quite some time.

After the rendition of but two of their numbers, "Loyalty" and "Chivalry," two Pomona songs, it was plain to see how this club won the National Championship. The cup which signifies national supremacy in this line was won in 1932 and has remained in their possession since that time.

The second group consisted of such sacred favorites as "Ezekiel Saw the Wheel," "Listen to the Lambs," and "Swing Low Sweet Chariot."

"Immortalis" was the first number sung that was directed by Professor Lyman, the previous numbers having been masterfully directed by the student director Bob Shaw.

"The Builder," "By Moonlight," and an Irish ballad followed. These numbers demonstrated a thorough technique on the part of the singers as well as skillful directing on the part of Mr. Shaw.

M. V. Officers Present Program

"As students of S.C.J.C. are you representative of Missionary Volunteers?" asked Dorothea Findley, as she announced the student speakers for M. V. meeting Friday evening.

"Influence is not what you say, do, or wear, but everything combined," explained Helga Birch as she showed the necessity of exerting an influence for the good in their homes this summer.

"Opportunity never comes to you but what it brings an equal amount of responsibility" said Clifford Barber after showing the responsibility that school life adds. In some small way you are going to be a light to the world when you go out this summer he reminded the students.

Virginia Hurd impressed upon the students the need of taking an active part in their respective churches this summer. Never turn down a chance for it is not egotistical to be aspiring to be a leader.

EDITORIAL

CONGRATULATIONS!

I suppose those present at last Sunday evening's concert should be congratulated — I should say not for the quietness displayed but rather for making less noise than usual.

Our present chapel to me has always been, a specific sort of embarrassment. In the first place, it would be almost impossible for the most quiet to tread soundlessly across its floors.

Several have remarked that they were moved by a strange feeling when suddenly out of nowhere came the ticking of the chapel clock, certainly we have heard clocks tick, but perhaps the feeling was evoked by the unusualness of the incident, rather than the sound itself.

My convictions that the clock should be heard more often have been so overpowering that I have been carried to talk about it.

A SUGGESTION

For the past year the Editorial staff has been crowded in an office 14' by 10' which to say the least is bad enough, but when one is told the same office is occupied by the A. S. B. executive officers, and the Sabbath School Department, one is then fully aware of the crowded conditions which now exist — of course it has been impossible to improve these conditions, as it seems every office and room on the campus is taken, but if you should drop around to our pandemonium some afternoon, you might hear a conversation such as follows: "Now, Mrs. Friend's Music Studio will be vacant when the new chapel is completed, and that would be an ideal location for our editorial office, three windows which afford plenty of light (our present office has none) and then too it's right across the hall from Prof. Fentzling's room, which would eliminate our running around to the point of collapse trying to get his O.K. on questionable material, etc., etc." We hope that the professor within whose power it is to grant us this wish will prove as sympathetic, and as generous as he has in times past.

Prof. Sorenson Speaks Sabbath

Make preparation for the end is very near urged Elder C. M. Sorenson in the church service Sabbath morning, April 18. All should watch developments of the world for the fulfillment of Bible prophecies.

"Blessed is he that watcheth and keepeth his guard," quoted Elder Sorenson for many in the time of the end will have no shelter. Probation is closing, he explained, and Christians need to think in the light of God.

Seek ye the Lord while he is near for no one knows when the end will come. From "Messages to Young People," Elder Sorenson read that the youth should seek God most earnestly that they may not be found wanting in the trying day.

All need to read the Spirit of Prophecy more for the testimonies of God's Holy word.

Elder Sorenson read Revelation 16:12-15 and explained the need of reading it, for it has been of great blessing to his Bible classes this year.

McPherson Visits With Pre-Meds

Another step toward their goal was completed when the pre-medical group of 15 students were interviewed here by Dr. W. McPherson, dean of the College of Medical Evangelists, Wednesday afternoon, April 15, previous to consideration of their applications by the Medical College.

Approximately ten minutes was devoted to each student by Dr. McPherson, during which time they were asked various questions which were mostly of a personal nature dealing with ability, temperament, adaptability and stability. In these interviews the students were given the chance to display their "winning personalities," instead of merely being considered from the written application submitted to the Medical College earlier. Some students considered this an advantage while others were inclined to disagree.

Most of the interviews began with the question, "How old are you?" Then followed questions regarding temperament, why they desired to be a doctor, how long they had been interested in this line, what fields of leadership they had been active in, and several questions regarding church membership. The students were also asked if they thought they were capable enough to take the medical course.

If you could have heard some of our modest pre-meds answering these questions you would have decided they were a very self assured group. All who were interviewed said they liked Dr. McPherson very much and it didn't sound like they were merely "apple polishing" either.

Milk Truck Crashes Near Corona

In an attempt to avoid hitting a gravel truck which was backing across the highway, Walt Ehrler, who was driving Jim Aitchison's milk truck, swerved to the side of the road, but the side of his car collided with the gravel truck.

The cab of the milk truck was wrecked and James Keeton, who was riding with Walt received cuts about the face and an injured shoulder, but the driver escaped injury. James Keeton received medical attention in Corona and Professor Crandall brought him out to the school.

The accident occurred Monday evening April 13, on the highway between Riverside and Corona when Walt was just starting on his milk route, in Orange County. Although the cab of the car was wrecked, not a single bottle of milk was broken and Mrs. Baker who happened along lent her car for delivering the milk.

As a result of the accident it was necessary to buy a new milk truck which is similar to the old one, different only in color.

Pomona Glee Club

"Old King Cole was a Wretched Old Soul" was presented very uniquely by the men. The two encores which followed were enjoyed equally as well by the enthusiastic listeners. Other humorous numbers were sung that pleased the crowd immensely.

The "Echo Song," and the "Torchbearers," the latter being the college song, were presented at the close. These are the songs that have made the glee club internationally famous.

Messrs. Bill Platt and Morrie Davenport, both received encores on their baritone solos.

The glee club was accompanied by Mr. Jimmy McNabb. He also received an encore on his piano solo. The number which followed was a very unique one.

Professor Lyman has directed the glee club to eleven championships out of twelve contests entered. He came to head the music department at Pomona in 1917, and during this time he has made many friends among Pomona College students and alumni.

A. S. B. Election To Be Held

A nominating committee to nominate A.S.B. officers for the rest of this year and next year was selected Friday, April 17, when the respective classes of the College chose their representatives to sit in the committee. The faculty members chose Professor C. C. Morrison as advisor.

Waldo Nelson, Clifford Barber, Franklyn Hoyt, George Gay, Mildred Randall, and Olive Simkin were selected.

The purpose of this committee is to nominate officers for the organization who will take office before school is out. Plans were laid to have a meeting Sunday, April 21.

Pre-Nurses Picnic

comfortable and convenient seats among the big boulders.

After the ordeal of eating supper was accomplished, the groups gathered around the camp-fire for worship. Old familiar songs such as "In the Garden" and "The Old Rugged Cross" were sung while everyone tried valiantly to recall his favorite text, which Miss Paulson asked each student to repeat. One of the most popular texts was John 14:1-3, "Let not your heart be troubled . . ." Several chose to repeat their texts in the verse speaking choir style.

As the first lights came on in the village and valley below, "Let the Lower Lights be Burning" was sung to conclude this traditional evening's program, which is sponsored yearly by the pre-nursing teacher, Miss Anna D. Paulson.

OUR BIOTA

Perhaps one of the most friendly birds in our community is the mockingbird. I am sure we all know its beautiful song and its profession of other bird's song. Sometimes it even fools them. On moonlight nights mockingbirds very often sing for hours at a time.

About the campus are several mockingbirds' nests, usually near a building or in a pepper tree. Their four or five greenish eggs spotted with brown are laid in a very neat nest. Pairs of mockingbirds have been known to raise their family and get all their food without going over several hundred yards from their nest. Each bird claims his own territory and any intrusion means war. Their food is insects.

Another house bird, the Brown Towhee, is most interesting. He is commonly called "brown bird" because of his entire brown plumage. The brown towhee has no very beautiful song, but can make many queer noises and calls.

The Brown Towhee's nest is a firmly built nest of sticks lined with horsehair. Towhees lay about 4 eggs which are white with black curling lines around the large end.

The Cafeteria normally seats 180 students at 30 tables. The tables were designed and made in our own shops.

The Auditorium and Music Conservatory building, plans for which have been approved by the College Board, will contain an auditorium seating 750 persons, large studios for the piano, violin, and voice departments, 10 individual music practice rooms, a small auditorium for private recitals and student body meetings, and the equivalent of 4 additional class rooms.

The value of labor given to students has averaged about $35,000 each year for the past ten years.

During the past year and two months we have used about 350 gallons of paint, varnish and similar materials in interior and exterior decorating of the college plant.

The Normal Training and Elementary departments are housed in an adequate building at the North end of the campus. Three full time teachers supervise the work of the student teachers.

The value of the college property is a third of a million dollars.

The campus elevation above sea level is 759 feet at the entrance columns.

The top of the higher of the two hills behind the college is just under 2000 feet elevation. There are good hiking trails to the top of these hills.

The school property comprises 414 acres, in campus, orchards, fields, and pastures, and extends up the mountain side far enough to include the reservoir, the gravel pit, pan cake feeds, marshmallow roasts, etc.

NEW CHAPEL TO BE BUILT

Alumni of S.C.J.C. and San Fernando Acad. Entertained

By Eugene Munson

On Sunday, May 3, S. C. J. C. will be host to the alumni of both the college and its forerunner, San Fernando Academy. The graduates of both institutions will meet at ten o'clock in the morning for an all-day picnic and varied program, including games, basket lunch at 12:30, campus inspection, and an interesting program in the evening.

Among those expected to attend this reunion are Elder R. R. Breitung and Elder F. G. Ashbaugh, chairman and secretary, respectively, of the San Fernando Academy Alumni Association. Others who plan to be present are several principals of the San Fernando school, including Professor H. E. Giddings, the first, and H. G. Lucas, the last.

San Fernando Academy had its humble beginning in 1902, with meagre equipment and facilities, but its dormitories were crowded far beyond their capacity long before the institution was closed in 1923, in favor of its successor.

In the spring of 1921, a move was started to establish a junior college in the southern part of the state. It was not until the summer of 1922 that this project could be carried out. On the first of July, 1922, it was announced that school would open at La Sierra Academy on October 3. To many, this seemed to be presumption, for there were only three faculty members chosen, there was no equipment, and they did not even have a building. But God prospered the enterprise, and on October 2, the kitchen and dining room equipment were moved from the farmhouse that had been used for that purpose, to their new quarters in the basement of the girls' dormitory. The initial enrollment of 84 students grew during the first year to well over a hundred, in spite of the great difficulties encountered — the girls used a ladder to reach the second-story rooms of their dormitory, candles were used to light the halls and rooms, and other such inconveniences as wood cook stoves, poor heating equipment, and — dust storms!

With the addition of a Normal Training Course, in 1923, the school became La Sierra Academy and Normal. At the close of this

Glee Clubs to Present Concert

The combined Men's and Women's Glee clubs will present their final concert of the school year on the evening of May 6, under the direction of Harlyn Abel. Final arrangements have been made for a very novel and entertaining program and tickets are now on sale by members of the organizations.

Plans were at first being made to present the program in College Hall, but according to the latest word from the music department the college chapel will be used because of better acoustics and seating accommodations. The chapel has been divided into sections and all seats will be reserved with the exception of a few general admission tickets to be sold at the door.

It is believed that both glee clubs will be at their best for this concert, having worked the entire school year and presented several programs in the vicinity of the school and Los Angeles. There are thirty-two members in each organization which are somewhat contrasting in appearance, the girls in their white uniforms with the boys in black.

The program consists of both sacred and secular numbers from both clubs with several combined renditions. The boys' "Italian Street Song" and the girls' "Sleigh Ride" have proved to be the most popular numbers in past programs.

Primary Grades Give Courtesy Skit

Little men and women who will soon be graduates from the first grade of the training school demonstrated courtesy to the college students in chapel Friday, April 24.

Mr. David Anderson, the master of ceremonies in full dress, the most important part of which was a swallow-tailed coat, introduced Mr. Merle Lafferty, noted lecturer on Social Ethics, who ably told the students that "life is short but there is always time for courtesy."

Four little gentlemen in top hats and swallow-tailed coats tipped their hats and bowed to the cadence of a rhythmic tune as they marched on to the platform. Soon these little gentlemen were accompanied by four pretty little ladies with big bow ribbons, also of the first grade, who repeated to the audience in unison their motto, "Be Ye Kind."

S.C.J.C. Is Host to First Pre-Nurses

To honor the first graduates of the Nurses' Preparatory course trained at S. C. J. C., who finished in 1933, home-coming exercises were held Wednesday, April 22.

At chapel the S. C. J. C. alumni who this spring will finish the nurses' course in the various sanitariums, were seated on the rostrum.

After a brief resume of the growth of S. C. J. C. since 1933 by President Cossentine, three talks were given by the nurses; Miss Fick from Paradise Valley, Miss Chong from Glendale, and Miss Scott from Loma Linda.

"Take Joy Home," a number by the girls' chorus sung in honor of the visitors, and a selection by the boys' glee club, with a medley by the orchestra comprised the musical selections given by the school.

Of the sixteen graduates in 1933 from S.C.J.C. one dropped out, two did not start training because they married, and the others, thirteen in number, are all graduating this spring, President Cossentine said.

With seniors on the rostrum from Paradise Valley, Glendale, and Loma Linda Sanitariums, Miss Fick, from the first named, told of the thrills of wearing the stripes, of receiving one's first cap, or giving one's first treatment, and of the thrills of surgery.

Will Include Auditorium and Music Conservatory

Putting a definite end to a three year wait which started in 1933, the College Board, conjoined with the local and union conference committees, recommended last week the immediate construction of a chapel and music conservatory.

It is supposed that bids for the letting of a contract will be received at once.

The main structure is to be modern classic in design, simple and economic in detail according to the architect's specifications. Designed by Mr. Clinton Nourse, it is to be constructed entirely of concrete with detail in wood and plaster.

The basement of the building will house a lecture hall for small audiences, a number of the rooms will be set apart for the use of the music department, and the main floor and balcony will comprise the chapel. It is estimated that the building will cost $32,000 including landscape, and will be completed and ready for occupation by September 14, 1936.

Students Hear Own A Cappella

Affording S. C. J. C. an opportunity to hear its own talent the A Cappella choir gave a concert Friday evening, April 24, in the chapel.

"Lord of All Being Throned Afar" was sung by the choir in a special arrangement prepared by the director for the choir.

As the A Cappella is a revival of the oldest type of singing, "O Holy Light" by Jones, was sung as it is characteristic of the old choirs throwing the melody from tenor to soprano and alto.

"Remember Me O Mighty One" was sung by Harry S. iarrillo, Bob Wood, Paul McIntosh, and Professor Abel as a male quartet, following "O God Our Great Jehovah" by the choir.

"King Jesus Is Listening," a form of Negro spiritual, "Praise to the Lord," and "Day Spring" were given by the choir.

Claude Steen, Jr., Barbara Steen, and Mrs. Abel played a special number as a string trio.

Our School

Several days ago our very distinguished guest, the Mayor of Riverside, commented in his speech on the high standards of our system of education. A few days before, our president brought us a report from the convention of college presidents from the Northwest Association of Colleges. He mentioned a number of commendations which he received on our junior college from outstanding educational leaders.

As students and teachers of this institution, we should feel proud of our school, and its advancement in the last few years. We should be proud to be a part of a growing organization of young people who stand for principles which the world admires. Our college stands at the top in scholastic attainments, and it is recognized as one of the best equipped in its field in southern California.

It is a privilege to attend Southern California Junior College. To work and co-operate for its advancement and upbuilding is indeed an honor.

Apropos of Examinations

"And examinations are not without their solid benefits to the serious student. They give training in analysis and proportion; they compel one to discriminate; they demand that the mind grasp and hold a vast amount of information for instant use; and they train the mind to sustained effort. An examination tests one's bottom, and gives evidence of one's staying powers."

Annual Picnic Held at Fairmount

Monday, April 25, the campus at S. C. J. C. was entirely deserted!

After the Juniors and Seniors left on their picnic, the remainder of the student body, amounting to about sixty with several teachers accompanying them, at 10:00 A.M. boarded the trucks which took them to Fairmount Park, Riverside, for the annual school picnic.

Tennis and volley ball were the main diversions with a few taking short strolls and many patronizing the "playground" attractions — swings, bars, etc.

At 12:00 A.M. lunch was served, consisting of the usual delicious fare: potato salad, baked beans, "hamburgers," pie, ice cream, and punch. The serving was handled very efficiently. Ask Callie (Eloise Callender) for further details.

After lunch, activities were resumed, boating being the main attraction

Several spent the entire day on the tennis courts. If anyone hears of a new tennis star looming up on the horizon, please refer to Professor Fentzling who is all set to defend his title.

At five o'clock the homeward trek, began, all leaving about six, exhausted but happy and agreeing that the annual picnic is a very worthwhile tradition of S. C. J. C.

Grade Program

Each one of these ladies and gentlemen of tomorrow expressed their desire to attend S. C. J. C. next year and take Normal, secretarial, pre-nursing, and pre-medical courses. Realizing that it was necessary for them to have a chaperon if they took a walk together, these young people asked little Miss Hopkins, a first grader, to chaperon them. "Miss Hopkins," with a book in hand and glasses on the end of her nose, very ably chaperoned the four couples off the platform.

Mr. Kenneth Krohn thanked the practice teachers for their kind guidance and explained, "If we are always good, bad boys you would not know how to manage."

Nurses' Home-coming

The advantages of nurses' training at Glendale, as told by Miss Chong, inspired some aspiring students with a desire to go there.

An inspiring talk by Miss Frances Scott of Loma Linda convinced some of the students here to want to go there for their training.

"But no matter what school is your choice, be loyal to it forever," was her comment.

A vocal duet by Miss Ione Riggle and Miss Inez Paulson, accompanied by Miss Elinore Adams, gave the message to "Do Thy Work Prayerfully."

S. C. J. C. During Summer Vacation

Vacation is just around the corner and like all normal students, S. C. J. C. students have made plans and more plans.

Work comes first in the plans of many. Those planning to work are:

Hazel Lay, Balboa Beach; Mildred Randall, Father's confectionary stand, San Diego; Eleanor Rothgeb, Lovell Sanitarium, Rosemeade; Grace Scott, Glendale Sanitarium; Pat Clement, Glendale Sanitarium; Evelyn Palmquist, Glendale Sanitarium; Lillian Harvey, Drug store, Barstow; Evelyn Adams, Medical office work, Burbank; Genevieve Howell, Tehachapi Valley Hospital.

Summer school and work here at S. C. J. C. will also claim a number. Those staying are:

Berwyn Palmer, Summer school and then home; Dale Nesbitt, summer school and home where she will resume her leadership of a 4H club; Betty Riley, Oregon first and then work here for the remainder of the time; Theodora Boyd, General Conference and then work here; Delpha Rocke, summer school and work here.

Others who have planned different things are:

Barbara Steen, General Conference, leaders' training camp, and then camp counselor at a junior camp; Miss Wallace, General Conference and then back to S.C.J.C.

Three very original answers were obtained from Mary Thompson, who said she would get married if the right one asked her; Millicent Grant, who said "She 'tank she go home to Sweden;" and Murl Quick, who plans (?) on being a "soda jerker" on a world cruiser.

The young men have also made plans for the summer. Those interviewed who hope, plan, etc., to be accepted at Loma Linda are Waldo Nelson, Francis Paul, Harry Scarrillo, and Ivan Martin.

Those going east are: Lyle Heaton, North Dakota to the good old farm; Harold Kanenberg, North Dakota to the farm, also; Carl Willers, Detroit; "Art" Dockman, Detroit; Carl Holland, Oklahoma to attend the university in hopes of escaping "Golden Opportunity."

The majority of them plan to work. They are:

John Judson, work on farm at home; Willard Bridwell, gas station in Los Angeles; Walt Ehler, continue his milk route around here; John Hopkins, Glendale Sanitarium; Jack Cales, some type of work at the Paradise Valley Sanitarium; Conrad Hay, home first and then back here to work; Waldo Brown, work here, probably around the laundry; Eugene Chapman, has been reported, plans to work in a cement plant; Norman Hopman, enter his father's real estate office.

Colporteuring will occupy the time of Joe Mashmeyer, Elmer Bryson and Lawrence Nelson.

Charles Gallion will probably be a wondering minstrel instead of wandering and Jimmie Keaton plans to attend Dr. Worcester's school for Medical Technicians at San Gabriel.

their dream is realized

Last Friendship Friends Revealed

Friendship friends were revealed for the last time this year in the meeting of the Girls' Forum held Wednesday evening.

An entirely different method was used, that of three descriptive words which began with the same letters as the initials of the girl to be revealed. Because there are only several weeks left, it was decided not to choose new ones for the remaining time.

One which drew the biggest laugh was "Love Elmer Cautiously" which was given for Eloise Calendar. Several other clever ones were "Dust Every Alcove" for Dorothy E. Anderson; "Gay and Plump" for Gurlie Paulson; "Very Clever" for Virginia Chapman; "Makes Many Salads" for Mary M. Sidmore; "Dines Many Farmers" for Dorothy M. Findley, and "Very Many Worries" for Miss Wallace.

 dent of the Southeastern California Conference, the building program was lauded by both faculty and students.

Prof. E. E. Cossentine, who has been greatly interested in this addition, said, "Regarding the project as one of the most important ever to be undertaken by the school, we can indeed be glad that we have the support and friendship of our conferences through whose generosity this undertaking has been made possible."

Students Go On Biology Trip To Salton Sea

As a reward to the three winners of the Bird Contest held recently, Professor and Mrs. Cushman took Annella Carr, Donald Garvin, and Willard Hoag for a week-end biology trip, leaving Friday about noon, April 17, going through the mountains and Palm Springs to the Salton Sea, where many varieties of flowers as well as interesting birds were studied.

Hiking, collecting flowers, and the novelty of swimming in the Salton Sea proved to be greatly enjoyed.

While on one of the hikes, a rattlesnake was seen, causing quite a commotion among the class, but it was soon lost among the large rocks.

Specimens of pumice found on the sea and beautifully colored rocks unusual desert flowers and plants were brought back to the school by this fortunate group of students.

Arriving at Date Palm Beach, near the Salton Sea, about dark, April 18, the group met Donald Hemphill and Robert Cossentine. The college biology class arrived the next morning, making about a dozen who were privileged to go on this trip.

Alumni Reunion Held

second school year the first edition of the "El Serrano," the annual, was published, with Paul Adams as editor-in-chief.

The year 1927 was a red-letter year, for it was then that the institution became a junior college, with a corresponding change in name — the first appearance of Southern California Junior College. During this year the first bi-monthly publication appeared, under the editorship of Willis Risinger. It was called the "College Cushi," named after the outstanding Bible messenger. This paper continued for two years, until 1929, when the name was changed to "College Criterion."

Important events occurring in 1932 included the building of the Science Building, and organization of the Associated Student Body. The next year climaxed several years of untiring work on the part of the faculty and others, in the accrediting of the junior college.

During the last few years the college has grown much in facilities, as well as in favor among its many friends and patrons. New shower rooms for the dormitories, a large swimming pool, and College Hall are standing witnesses to the great progress of the school where "God is revered and men are trained." — Southern California Junior College.

Emma Flinn, who has been in the hospital for some time, returned to school last Sunday night, April 19.

Mary Sidmore, who also has been in the hospital for several days, returned Wednesday.

Millicent Grant and Barbara Walters attended the Junior-Senior banquet given by the Medical students at the Oakmont Country Club, Sunday night, April 26.

Berwyn Palmer, thinking the student who was speaking during Botany class, Tuesday, sounded hoarse, went out, and returned with a glass of water which she presented to him. It wasn't reported whether the speaker appreciated it, but at least the class did.

It seems that certain girls aren't joining the Junior class and going on the picnic because certain other people aren't.

Bethene Hedrick attended the concert given by Nino Martini at the Los Angeles Philharmonic Auditorium, Tuesday night.

Ronald Scott received a visit Thursday afternoon from Mrs. Van Der Stad.

Members of the A Capella choir heard Brahm's "Requiem," conducted by the Philharmonic Orchestra of Otto Klemperer, Friday afternoon, April 17.

Miss Wallace, Murl Quick, and Genevieve Howell were invited to breakfast by Miss Hopkins, Thursday morning.

Juniors Entertain Seniors With Picnic At Griffith Park

Baseball Game is Big Event

The game began as a pitching duel between Ritchie of the seniors and Denmark of the juniors. Carl Rose smashed a rousing home run into right field to put the juniors ahead for the first seven innings. The end of the eighth inning found the juniors with a four to three lead. However, this did not last long, for singles by Anderson and Bridwell and an error by the shortstop, put the upper-classmen one run in the lead.

With one away in the last of the ninth, Aitchison doubled, and scored when the center fielder fumbled the ball and then proceeded to throw wide to third base. Nicolas doubled to center, and Rose doubled to left to bring in the winning run.

Although the fielding was ragged, there was some masterful mound work done by both Ritchie and Denmark, the latter fanning sixteen men.

The remainder of the afternoon was spent in much the same as the morning had been.

After supper the senior class will be read much to the amusement of those present. Many very generous gifts were bequeathed to the juniors.

Grade School Seniors Organize

S. C. J. C.'s eighth grade has also organized into a senior class, with Georgia Garvin as president and Jean Rittenhouse as valedictorian.

Although Jean Rittenhouse received the honor of being valedictorian, not far behind her is Pearl Porter, only 1/2 point behind her. For this reason Pearl will also give a valedictorian speech.

On May 14 the class will give a program in the chapel. The girls will wear pastel colored dresses and the boys as yet have not decided on their attire.

"A Message We Bear" is the timely motto chosen with royal purple and gold the class colors, and pansy as the flower. A class poem has been written by Mrs. D. L. Sturges, the eighth grade teacher.

Grade School Has Annual Open House

Thursday, April 30, was a red-letter day for the grade school at the S. C. J. C. Training School. That was the annual Open House day, when all the parents and friends were invited to visit the school, and look over the work the children have been doing this year.

School was supposed to be in session in the morning, but everyone was so excited and happy that not much was done in the way of studying. There were last-minute touches given before the guests arrived. The manual arts classes had some very interesting displays of woodwork and sewing in both the intermediate and upper grade rooms.

The parents brought basket lunches and served them on long tables placed in the porches surrounding the patio. Of course the dinner is a very important part of Open House day.

An interesting program was given after dinner by the grade school children. The intermediate girls gave a flower drill, and the primary room gave the courtesy skit which they presented in chapel two weeks ago, and it was just as enthusiastically applauded. Several readings and solos were given, and the children all did so well that the parents have reason

Institute Held for Colporteurs

With the purpose of stimulating the interest in Colporteur work a Colporteurs' Institute for the students was held here from Tuesday, April 28, to Friday, May 1, under the supervision of Elder Remsen, Pacific Union Field Missionary Secretary.

Other leaders present were A. J. Barnes, field secretary of the Southeastern California Conference; D. Pond, Nevada-Utah Conference field secretary; and C. J. Oliver, Arizona Conference field secretary. Elder J. H. McEachern, Secretary of the Home Missionary and Publishing Departments in the Far Eastern Division, was present and spoke several times.

Joint evening worship periods were held Tuesday and Wednesday evenings and were devoted to the subject of Christian salesmanship and colporteur work. The chapel periods were also given over to the colporteur work with several of the leaders speaking. The final chapel period of the Institute, Friday morning was devoted to talks by members of the public speaking class which dealt with colporteur work and the benefits derived from it.

Other meetings were held during the afternoons and evenings for those who were especially interest-

College Chorus Gives Mendelssohn's "Elijah"

Felix Mendelssohn's famous oratorio "The Elijah" was presented by the chorus of the Southern California Junior College composed of 75 voices under the direction of Harlyn Abel, head of the College music department, Saturday evening, May 2, in the College chapel. Barbara Steen served as accompanist throughout the entire evening.

Solo parts were taken by the voice students. Virginia Smith, soprano, and Paul McIntosh, bass, sang the leading solo parts. This also served as the junior recital of Paul McIntosh, a junior voice student. Other soloists were Evelyn Ruth Dale, contralto, and Harry Sciarriello, tenor.

The presentation of this oratorio, which attracted a large number of music lovers, was the climax of nearly four months of intensive practice by the chorus. Throughout this time at least two hours a week have been spent in practice and of course, towards the end more time was spent. As a result of this intensive practice the blending of the voices and the manner of rendition were very commendable.

The oratorio, which is divided into two parts, is made up of solos and duets by the soloists augmented by chorus numbers. Of course, as the name applies, it is based on the Biblical story of Elijah and contains selections from it.

The singing of this oratorio by the chorus is becoming a tradition similar to that of "The Messiah" presented during December, which represents the first semester of chorus work while "The Elijah" represents the work of the second semester.

Wicklein Speaks Through Interpreter

That all might have Christ and the winning of souls as their goal, was the message of Elder A. Wicklein, field missionary secretary of the South German Union, who spoke to the students Thursday morning, April 30, through an interpreter, Miss Talitha Neuman, one of the college students. "If God wants me in his vineyard, he will protect me," Elder Wicklein proved by recounting several of his experiences in Hungary which is one of the hardest fields in northern Europe. He, with many other colporteurs, was put in prison several times for canvassing.

In 1914, Elder Wicklein enlisted in the Red Cross in order to keep from bearing arms but nevertheless he was sent to the front. God answered his prayers and although he had to remain at Verdun on the front for two and one half years he was allowed to work in the artillery.

His aim was to be a preacher but instead he went into the colporteur work where his goal was not only to sell books, but to win many souls to Christ.

Miss Talitha Neuman very ably interpreted Elder Wicklein's sermon from German into English. While in Europe Miss Neuman often translated from English into German and also did some translating in French and Portuguese.

A Cappella Sings at Hole's Estate

In the quiet and inspirational setting of the Music Hall at Mr. W. J. Hole's La Sierra home, the A Cappella Choir presented a program Thursday evening, April 30.

Opening with the "Vesper Hymn" by Beethoven, the choir presented a group of sacred numbers. "Lord Of All Being" by Taylor, was one of the selections. This has been specially arranged by Professor Harlyn Abel for this group.

A soprano solo, "O, Lord Be Merciful" by Bartlett was given by Miss Virginia Smith accompanied by Miss Barbara Steen.

"Intermezzo," a special selection, was played by the string trio, composed of Miss Barbara Steen, Mrs. Harlyn Abel, and Mr. Claude Steen.

The choir presented a chant arrangement of the hymn, "Still, Still with Thee" and the selection "King Jesus is A Listening" which is a form of a Negro spiritual.

Professor Abel, after pronouncing the Lord's blessing upon the home, directed the group in the benediction, "The Lord Bless You And Keep You."

Each year the choir is extended an invitation by Mr. Hole to sing in his Music Hall. The group looks forward to this event as they feel it is a great honor to sing there.

S. C. Jaysee Entertains San Fernando Alumni

During the noon hour on May 3 a goodly number of the former students and teachers of the San Fernando Academy gathered around a long table spread with picnic dinner. While they ate and visited they renewed former acquaintances.

After a time the group was called together in front of Gladwyn Hall, seated facing the valley that they might enjoy S. C. J. C.'s view while they listened to a most interesting program.

Elder Floyd Ashbaugh, vice-president of the San Fernando Academy Alumni Association, acted as chairman in the absence of Elder Breitigam who found it impossible to attend. In his introductory remarks Elder Ashbaugh mentioned the changes that had taken place on the old San Fernando campus, referring to the loss by fire of one building after another until, as he said, there were not enough ruins on which to write Icabod.

President Cossentine was introduced and stated that he felt that the mantle of old San Fernando rests on this campus. As a tribute to the ideals and accomplishment of its predecessor, he suggested that S. C. J. C.'s finest building bear the name of "Fernando Hall." This suggestion was unanimously accepted and a collection was taken to furnish the bronze plate for the science building which will bear that name hereafter.

Many letters of greetings were read from workers in various parts of the world who were at the gathering in spirit while far away. Some of these came from Berger Johnson, John Brown, and J. A. P. Green of South America, J. I. Robison of Africa, and F. D. Nichol of the "Review and Herald" office.

Various talks by missionaries and others present were given. When the meeting closed late in the afternoon, all felt that it had marked another mile post in their experience.

Spring Fever

With examinations coming next week, and with summer so nearly here, my sentiments, — and yours, are embodied in a selection I recently found —

"When I look out of the window I can see that spring is here, the days are getting warmer, and summer's drawing near. The yellow of the acacia has turned to dusty brown, and gardens are being planted in every corner of town; the lawns are getting brighter and the hills are getting green, and the blossoms on the fruit trees are the biggest ever seen. The bright gold of the poppy defies old man Depression, and in proclaiming 'Spring Is Here' it leads the whole procession. The skies are getting bluer, the clouds are fleecy white and as they lazily roll along they make a pleasing sight. The air is warm and balmy, the nights are fresh and cool — I hate to go to bed at night — It's worse to go to school! And I am getting lazy — studies are a task — the sunshine makes me dreamy I'd prefer in it to bask. The fields are so inviting, the schoolroom is so dead, and teachers find it hard to cram Knowledge into my head. I'd like to wander far away and play among green hills — my playmates would be robins and golden daffodils, but I must come to earth again and put these dreams away and Spanish and Geometry will be my only play.

"Some people never have to work — I wish that lot were mine! To play all day and never work must be exceeding fine, but that such luck should fall to me will never happen, ever, for I must always work away while suffering with Spring Fever!"

"Mother" is Topic of M. V. Program

Vespers was appropriately dedicated to Mothers and Mother's Day, Friday evening, May 1 which was sponsored by the Missionary Volunteer Society.

"All that I am or hope to be, I owe to my angel mother" Lincoln once said and Norman Cole expressed the thought that all could well say this.

Eleanor Rothgeb gave a history of Mother's Day which was started by Miss Jarvis of Philadelphia in 1900 but carnations were not worn until 1910. This was done by an act of Congress and signed by President Wilson.

Thoughtfulness of one girl for her parents by sending them a record of her voice was told by Talitha Neumann assisted by an unknown voice who sang the song of the record.

Mother's fairness, sweetness, and work and sacrifice were enumerated by Carlos Nicolas.

Lorraine Swartout, Dorothy Raley, and Virginia Wolforth sang "My Name In Mother's Prayer."

ed in this work. Elder Remsen announced Friday morning that as a result of the Institute a good number had decided to take up this line of work during the summer.

Composition Students Practice Oratory

With shaking knees and much stammering, members of the English Composition classes have been trying a bit of public speaking. The topics chosen for the 3-minute speeches have been varied but have remained, for the most part, in the literary field. At the end of each speech the time taken by each speaker was reported by a fellow student. Harry Sciarrillo chose to talk about a "Newspaper Reporter." He enumerated briefly the qualifications of a good reporter and explained why each is necessary to success. Continuing along the same line, Carlos Nicolas spoke on a subject familiar to him, "Journalistic Style." "Journalistic writing is the opposite from artistic writing," he stated. "The question who, when, where, and how must be answered at the beginning of the write-up." Judging from the big sigh of relief which Sally Toby breathed as she concluded her speech "On Learning to Read," talking must be an ordeal for her. Mildred Weisenhutter, one of the first to speak, gave a short biography of Robert Frost's life. Other interesting topics were: "What Is a Poet?," "The Life of Samuel Clemens," and "Poetry of Robert Burns."

Professor Fentzling has laid down two set rules: The speeches must not be memorized, and anyone appearing before the class with a huge sheet of paper for notes must surrender them or expect to give his talk sometime in the future. To guard against extemporaneous speaking, each student must prepare a full, speaker's outline in sentence outline form.

Eld. McEachern Speaks in Chapel

"To do the greatest amount of good to the greatest number of people," should be the aim of every Seventh-day Adventist youth, according to Elder J. H. McEachern, field missionary secretary of the Far Eastern Division when he spoke to the student body in chapel Wednesday, April 29. The colporteurs' work was his interpretation.

Explaining that preparedness in this field is as important as in other lines of work, the speaker emphasized the fact that many years are spent for various professions which are limited in the amount of good they do.

"What wilt Thou have me to do?" a desire which follows a conversion, was illustrated by Paul's conversion. The answer is, "A life of usefulness," or "Do good unto others."

High ideals, preparedness, and prayers are essential for success in this work, as well as courage and tact.

Winning souls for Christ is one of the most important activities Remsen, Pacific Union field missionary secretary.

Elder White Traces Publishing Work

Tracing the development of the publishing work from the first paper printed by this denomination down to the present with our numerous publishing houses with their tremendous output, Arthur White, grandson of Mrs. E. G. White, spoke Tuesday evening, April 28, during a joint worship period.

Further interest was added by the use of slides to illustrate the lecture. Pictures of the following were shown: Some of the old publications such as early editions of the "Review and Herald," "Present Truth," and "Youths' Instructor;" the first publishing house; some of the early works of Mrs. White; some of the early workers in this denomination, and also several pictures of Mrs. White.

Those who began this work had such confidence in the soon-coming of Christ that they objected strenuously to the first advances made in the publishing work. They even opposed the publishing of a second paper, maintaining that one paper could meet all their needs for the short time remaining, but owing to the divine instructions given by Mrs. White, the work progressed and is still growing.

Circumstances surrounding the writings of several of Mrs. White's books were related and pictures of these early books shown. The old Harmon family Bible used by Mrs. White and several of her early books were on exhibit at the close of the lecture.

Elder Robinson tells of African Experiences

Superstition, fear, and ignorance play a great part in the life of the African natives as described by Elder Robinson, education secretary of the South African division when he spoke during the church hour Sabbath, May 2.

Witch doctors play a very important part in the village life of these heathens as they are consulted regarding every disaster such as sickness, fire, etc. Elder Robinson gave an interesting description of some of their recitals and showed a witch doctor's basket he had obtained from a man who had become converted.

The work of the Missionary Volunteers of this African division was also described. Once a year, instead of being taught themselves, they go out to those who are still in heathenism and teach them of the gospel. Many times such an interest is created among these heathens that it is necessary for them to remain several months with the interested ones instead of the usual week.

to be proud of their children's accomplishments.

To conclude the perfect day, the children put on their annual pet parade. Their wagons and dogs were all gaily decorated. Everyone excitedly got his pet into line for the parade, for there was a prize to be given for the best one. There were ponies, cats, chickens, doves, goats, ducks, and kittens to be seen everywhere.

Jimmy Stearns received first prize on his covered wagon drawn by his Shetland pony. "Pioneer" girls and boys accompanied the wagon and it really looked as if they were going West.

The teachers and children of S.C.J.C. Training school are to be commended for their good work.

General Conference May 26 - June 11

Margaret MacKay and James Pampian, alumni of our college, visited us on Saturday night to hear the school chorus present the "Elijah."

Mr. Ralph Giddings, a former student here, was seen on the campus last Sabbath. He is now one of the poor suffering "Meds" at Loma Linda.

As a result of the typing test taken recently, 40-word pins were given to Beth Seaward, Roselyn Trummer, Dwight Herbert, and Grace Levine.

Edith Rice, a former S.C.J.C.ite, was seen on the campus again reviewing the scenes of her former work.

The NEWSETTE Column

Tom Pellow returned from San Diego this week-end bringing with him "Spud" Kunkel and Jack Waller, both former students.

Art Dockham claims he should be rewarded some sort of medal for having caught 12 gophers from the campus lawns during the past week.

Our second-year pre-meds were all agog Saturday evening when they received letters from Loma Linda. (They were expecting either their acceptance or refusal.) But it was merely a long epistle inquiring as to their financial status.

The A Cappella Choir sang its last concert at Pomona, last Sabbath. This concludes a very interesting and much appreciated season. An organization such as this can well be rated a valuable asset to our school.

The age of miracles is truly at hand. This is well illustrated by the fact that after two unsuccessful tries, John Hopkins succeeded in cleaning his white shoes. This is the first time that he has undertaken such a difficult and extensive task.

Bouquets to Professor Abel, the soloists and the chorus for the splendid work that they did in the "Elijah" last Saturday night even though they were handicapped by lack of proper platform room. The new chapel will take care of this in due style.

Jimmie Keeton, our Campus Romeo, will return to his home in Washington, D. C. where he contemplates making a yachting trip this summer.

Several students and faculty members were entertained at Alyce Van Tassel's home Saturday evening.

Blaine McDermott went to Santa Monica, Sabbath, returning late Saturday night.

Clifford Barber, Vernon Rickard, Byron Sanford, Walter Freeman, Virginia and Lorraine Handy, and Francis Betts sang with the Arlington choir in Fullerton Friday evening.

Miss Florence Voth visited former friends over Sabbath.

Bill Williamson, Harry Hickman, Tony Muff and Louis Fisher, former pre-medical students, visited the College last week.

Eddie Potts' family visited him Sabbath afternoon.

Gurli Paulson went to Huntington Park for the week-end.

Glendale was the destination of Mae Smith this week-end.

Burton Jackson from Hinsdale, Illinois, visited John Hopkins last week.

Don Smith, through special arrangements, has completed his school work and checked out for a visit to his home in Indiana. Before his return he will proceed to Detroit and drive a car back for Mr. Friend.

Did you know that constitutionally we have been without an A. S. B. president thus far this semester. Ask Jerry Smith about it.

OUR BIOTA

By Donald Hemphill

Have you heard the beautiful songs coming from the canyons and tops of the hills? Investigation reveals a bird as beautiful as his song. A patriotic bird displaying his red, white and blue. He is the Laguli Bunting.

A brilliant flash of turquoise blue and a reddish-brown chest band identify this warbler. From early morning to late evening his pleasant song pierces the silence of the rocks.

The buntings live on seeds of weeds and shrubs. Their nests are almost always found in clumps of sage on the half-shaded hill-sides.

The California Whip-tailed Snake, commonly called "Red Racer," is the swiftest of this region. It inhabits dry, gravelly washes and low sandy hills sparsely covered with scrubby vegetation. When first seen it is usually in rapid motion, making its capture very difficult. Unlike many snakes the Red Racer travels freely about in trees and shrubs plundering the nests of birds. It also lurks about fence posts and hedges where lizards seek refuge from hawks, and there patiently waits to secure a meal.

The reptile cages house two specimens of this snake. Examine them; and see the color variation between the La Sierra and the Mojave Desert Racer.

Since the Junior-Senior picnic on Monday, Harold Connor has been limping because of a stiff knee.

A. S. B. OFFICERS ELECTED

SENIORS ARE FACULTY'S GUESTS

In a decorative setting of Royal Blue and Cream the faculty members of S. C. J. C. entertained the Senior class at a banquet in the College Dining Room, Monday evening, May 11.

During the meal which consisted of fruit cocktail, glutton croquettes, mashed potato, mushroom gravy, string beans, fresh tomato salad, brick ice cream and fancy individual cakes in the colors of royal blue and cream; music was furnished by a string trio comprised of Barbara Steen, Claude Steen and Carl Holland.

Prof. Joseph Craig, acted as Master of Ceremonies for the occasion. President Cossentine gave the farewell address to the seniors and Mr. Frank Judson, president of the Senior class gave the response which was followed by words of council, advice and admonition by Professor Keld J. Reynolds, the senior faculty advisor.

Elder E. F. Hackman spoke of his interest in the members

Native Pastor Tells of African Beliefs

What it really means to be a heathen was shown by Pastor Isaac Xiba, delegate to the coming General Conference from So. African Division, when he spoke Sabbath afternoon, May 9, in College Hall. His talk dealt largely with the various customs and beliefs of the heathen before the missionaries came. Many of these customs and beliefs are so hideous that the people live in constant fear, fearing even the dark.

Several times Pastor Isaac expressed the thanks of the Africans for what the white people have done for them by sending over missionaries to break the bonds of superstition and fear which had held them for so long.

Immediately upon death the body is buried, he said, for fear it will turn into a spirit and bother them. Burial is made near an ant hill and in a shallow grave, but covered over with large stones so the wild animals cannot dig it up. A snake is the

Mr. McDermott is the type of man who can carry on an intelligent conversation along any line—history, literature, both dramatic and journalistic, medicine, industry, and finance. Professor Harlyn Abel Directs Glee Clubs

Bringing to an end a year of interesting study was the glee club program Thursday evening May 7, given by the Girls' and Boys' glee clubs combined.

"Italian Street Song" was sung by the Boys' Glee Club with Miss Virginia Smith, soprano, taking the solo part, holding high C for several measures.

The Girls' Club opened the concert by singing "Spirit Flower," followed by "Snow Legend" and "Bells of Youth."

The Boys' club with 32 members attired in black shirts and trousers and a large red sash sang "Two Grenadiers," with Allan Cossentine and Carl Holland singing the parts of the two grenadiers.

"Sunset," "In the Gloaming" and the well-known piece, "A House by the Side of the Road" were the first group sung by the Boys' Glee Club.

"Hills of Home" was sung by the combined clubs after which the girls sang a group of secular songs, one of which is the familiar and fantastic, "Sleigh Bells."

Virginia Smith sang "Good bye Summer" and "Morning" by Speaks with an encore "Wake Up" by Phillips.

White sweaters and skirts with red and white glee club emblem were worn by the 32 members of the Girls' Club.

... a president was elected

Miss Barbara Steen and Mr. Clifford Barber received the call to fill the vice-president positions. Mr. Jack Cales was elected for the second year to take charge of the treasury with the assistance of newly-elected Mr. John Libby.

Miss Pat Clement, secretary, will be assisted by Miss Joyce Kibbler. Mr. Olaf Locke, of oratory fame, and popular cowboy yodler, received the call to act in capacity of parliamentarian.

Mr. Norton, more popularly known as "Jim" has been a prominent figure in student activities. In 1934 he successfully managed the campaign for the tennis court. The following year he attended the Los Angeles College of Law, a department of the University of the West, where he was associate editor of the college publication.

All of the students remember the successful way in which Jim piloted the CRITERION campaign at the beginning of the current school year. At present he is one of the associate editors of this paper.

On being interviewed about his plans, Jim stated that first, the Student Campaign would be backed up strongly. Then he plans to help out in every way to put the

From Seniors of '36

Although everyone looks forward to his senior year, when the goal is reached, he realizes that even being a senior has its hardships. Seniors are always being called upon to do something somewhere. I sometimes think there should be a course given in College on bearing responsibility. I am sure such a course would be very beneficial to seniors. It would improve the efficiency of a senior class about seventy-five per cent and lessen the duties of the president ninety per cent — that is, if its principles were practical. But since we are not making up school curriculums, don't you think it would be a good plan to study in to the subject during our spare moments? Let's try it. By the way, freshmen, sophomores, and juniors, wouldn't you like to join with us in this extra-curricular subject of bearing responsibility?

To Seniors of '36

Another class is leaving the old Alma Mater to face life in its many and varied forms. Many will go forward with their preparation to be nurses, doctors, dentists, business men, teachers, and ministers, while others will take a more serious view on life in June.

Before you noble Seniors of '36 depart, we wish to give you a pat on the back and say that we are proud to follow in your footsteps. We see you finishing "the grind" with a happy smile and we resolve to work so that we may follow your example and build up the good name of the college.

May the future hold in store for you health, happiness, prospertiy, and a home in the new earth. As you have done, so we will do, striving to help others as you have helped us.

From Juniors of '36.

Criterion Campaign Trophy Presented

Late — but nevertheless important, was the presentation, Monday May 17, of the "College Criterion" campaign trophy to the men of S. C. J. C.

This last chapel of the year, and probably the last that will be held in the Administration building, was also notable for the introduction of Mr. James Norton, new A. S. B. summer Student Campaign president.

The subscription campaign trophy is of sun-gold metal, and is of the loving cup style. The name of the winning side, this year the inscription "MEN '35" being engraved on the trophy, will be inscribed each year upon the cup and the winners will keep the trophy in their house throughout the year.

Supplies Given for M. B. K. Kitchenette

The task of supplying the kitchenette in Mu Beta Kappa with the necessary implements for cooking was ably accomplished recently by a group of ladies in the vicinity

Mr. Lee Zinn, president of the men's organization, presented the assortment of pots, pans, dishes, knives, and even dish cloths to the men on one of the regular night club nights. The gift was a complete surprise and the enthusiastic vote of thanks that was given proved that it was a pleasant one.

The ladies who contributed toward getting the kitchen equipment are faculty members, faculty members' wives, and ladies from the village. The men of the M. B. K. extend their appreciation to the following: Mesdames Abel, Adams, Alcorn, Bagley, Cossentine, Clark, Craig, Baker, Carr, Crandall, Cuff, Curtis, Cushman, Fentzling, Gibbs, Friend, Giddings, Knoss, Leslie, Morrison, MacKinnon, Nydell, Raley, Remsen, Sorenson, Petrik, Reynolds, A. R. Smith, M. Smith, Sidney Smith, Stearns, Sturges, Van Atta, Walters, and the Misses Hopkins, Jensen, Paulson, Ragon, Rittenhouse, Sorenson, Scott, and Wallace.

A. S. B. Officers

(Continued from Page One) though he has not remained here all these years, he has always taken an active part in the editing of the CRITERION and College Cushi while he has been here.

He plans a bigger paper with a bigger subscription list. He stated that he was going to endeavor to edit a paper that will make students proud to be on its staff.

Although Blaine is taking a pre-med course, all who are acquainted with him personally know that he is as equally fitted to expand into the literary field and become a writer.

Social Events of Year Provide Recreation

Climaxing the social hi-lights of the school year 1935-36 was the Faculty-Senior banquet in which the Seniors of '36 were entertained by the faculty in the school dining room. The dining room was decorated in blue and cream, the class colors.

Are you chosen? Have you gotten your tickets yet? Was the subject of conversation prior to the banquet sponsored by the A. S. B. just before Christmas. More students attended this than have ever before taken part in an A. S. B. function.

And then there were the many interesting picnics, first of which was the Baldy trip. Approximately one-half of the student body, who had obtained six subscriptions to the College Criterion, enjoyed a day at Camp Baldy. About 45 out of this group were successful in reaching the top of "Baldy."

Next in order was the skating party at Big Pines. School was dismissed at 11:30 enabling students and faculty to enjoy the entire afternoon and evening in the mountains. Ice-skating was enjoyed by many who knew how to skate and many who were learning during the afternoon and evening.

One foggy Monday morning in March the senior of '36 stealthfully—at least that is what they meant it to be—left the Campus in two trucks headed for Orange County Park and Huntington Beach. An abundance of good food particularly interested the students at meal time.

Appreciation

At the close of this school year the Criterion staff wishes to express its appreciation to the students and faculty for their ready cooperation in every matter, which has undeniably been responsible for making the Criterion as much of a success as it has been. Of the thirty issues promised the subscribers, twenty-seven have been produced leaving three issues paid for which present subscribers will receive and which will allow the Criterion to be published from the very beginning of next year.

From the conclusion of the overwhelmingly victorious subscription campaign to the publication of this final issue there has been constant support from each one connected with the publication of the school paper. Everyone has worked—everyone appreciates the results.

So—to associate and assistant editors, to managers, to faculty advisors, to columnists, to typists, to reporters, to subscribers who have made the Criterion financially possible—and to each one of you, students and faculty of S. C. J. C., who have created the news for our paper, and have borne with unfailing demands for "copy"—sincerely, thank you.

The Science Hall, which is located south of the Administration Building, is modern in all respects. Laboratories and offices for chemistry and physics occupy the entire first floor. The biology laboratory, equipped for bacteriology, zoology, and biology; two lecture rooms; the dental clinic and nursing office, are situated on the second floor. In the basement are located the Organic Chemistry laboratory, the automatic furnaces, air compressor and generator. Provision has also been made here for a museum and additional laboratories. The equipment throughout the building is new and unusually complete.

Active Summer Plans of Faculty Told

Attendance at summer school and General Conference or both, constitute a large part of the summer plans being made by the faculty.

Those attending General Conference other than the ones mentioned above are Miss Velma Wallace, who hopes to be able to go and then will return here and continue as Dean of Women; Prof. K. J. Reynolds, who will work on the locating committee of the General Conference and spend his summer working among prospective students; Prof. Harlyn Abel, who after the conference will act as leader at the junior camps and then will return here; Miss Caroline Hopkins, who plans to go to Portland, Oregon, to see her sister and attend the N. E. A.; Elder C. M. Sorenson, who, following the sessions, will return here; President E. E. Cossentine, who will also attend a pre-Conference council in addition to the General Conference and then return and assist in the new building project; and Prof. J. W. Craig, who will work here after General Conference.

Miss Anna D. Paulson plans to attend summer school again this summer at the University of Washington, and Prof. C. C. Morrison will attend both sessions at Berkeley and work for students during the remaining time.

Those staying here to carry on the work are Dean W. T. Cranda, Miss Fedalma Ragon, and Miss Minnie Belle Scott.

Speech Students Discuss Peaks

Members of the public speaking class told of the assets of the "Three Peaks" within sight of S. C. J. C., San Geronimo, San Jacinto, and San Antonio, in chapel Wednesday, May 6. Carl Willers, Millicent Grant, and Dwight Herbert were the speakers.

On a clear day, several states besides a foreign country, Mexico, may be seen from San Jacinto. The American Desert is also visible from each of these mountains.

Social Hi-Lights

And last but not least was the Junior-Senior picnic at Griffith Park. With every amusement available the students had a grand day. Incidentally the juniors won the baseball game, which wasn't an accident.

We must not forget the Open House's held by the Women of Gladwyn Hall and the men of M. B. K. respectively. A very interesting program and many unique rooms will always be remembered when the girls think of the men's open house. Strawberry shortcake with lots of whipped cream will ever remind the boys of girl's open house.

Mrs. L. H. Cushman will teach general chemistry here in summer school and Prof. L. H. Cushman will work among the juniors in various camps.

We Wonder About Graduates

Alice Clement

Oftentimes I like to wonder
 If they really mind at all
 As they're getting their diplomas
 And they start to leave the Hall.
 Will they call to mind their old friends
 Those that they will leave behind,
 Or will hopes of future glories
 Take our mem'ries from their wind?
 As they leave their midst and campus
 Will they ever stop to think
 That we wish to keep their friendship
 And decline to break the link?
 Friends and comrades they are leaving
 Will they take it all to heart?
 As for us, we know we'll miss them.
 Does it matter that we part?

President's Address

We, the graduating class of 1936, have a feeling of deep appreciation tonight, for what you, parents, friends, and faculty members, have done for us. Through the past years it has been you who have kept us progressing. Due to your influence we came here, and because of your counsel and assistance we have here remained.

To be graduating from a Christain school we now realize is a great privilege and blessing. Many of us perhaps would have become discouraged because of economic and other conditions had it not been for the assurance that we are in partnership with an unlimited power. We realize, as did Edison, that we are merely channels between our heavenly Father and the human race for the passing along of benefits to mankind. It was this, the desire to serve, that made Luther the moral colossus of his time, while Erasmus, his friend, shrank back into the littleness of his scholastic ease. This same desire is ours for we have chosen as our motto, "The world's need is our call."

The problem of life is not an easy one to solve. We are ever in danger of misusing our education. Chauncey M. Dewpey, when interviewed by a New York Times reporter on his eighty-ninth birthday said: "I entered Yale seventy two years ago. I felt that I didn't know anything on entering, but when leaving I hadn't the slightest doubt that I knew it all I've been getting over that idea ever since." Striving to profit by the mistakes of others, we, as a class, have endeavored to keep the "know it all" idea completely from our minds.

The practicability of our education is another feature for which we are very grateful. An unbalanced education often proves of less value than none at all. The story is told of a college man (who was very proud of his scholarly attainments) being rowed across a lake in the old world by a certain boatman. He was ridiculing the boatman because of his ignorance along such lines as philosophy, science, and art, and endeavoring to point out that because of this lack he had lost three fourths of his life when suddenly a violent squall struck the boat. Although the boatman struggled courageously he soon realized that it would be impossible to make the shore. Turning to the college man he questioned "Sir, can you swim?" "No," was the reply. "Then the whole of your life is lost, for the boat is going to the bottom." Although we pride ourselves to some extent that we have a balanced education, we realize that "every faculty, every attribute with which the Creator has endowed the children of men is to be employed for His glory. And in this employment is found its purest, noblest, happiest exercise," and that "The principles of heaven should be made paramount; and every advanced step taken in the acquirement of knowledge or in the culture of

"Study to Show Thyself Approved" — Theme of Paster Xiba

Coming as a representative of Southern African Division Conference, Africa, Pastor Isaac Xiba of the Solusi Mission, So. Rhodesia, Africa, spoke Friday evening, May 8 in the College chapel.

The command given by Paul to Timothy, "Study to show thyself approved" was taken by Pastor Isaac as the theme of his sermon. Paul owed his success as a missionary to the fact that he studied.

Of course the prospective missionary must study the Bible but he must also study humanity and acquaint himself with world developments, he said. Those who study are better able to adapt themselves to surrounding conditions and this is one thing the missionary must be able to do. If the natives are understood they are easier to reach and will place more trust in the missionary.

Quoting one of his native proverbs, "The front is backward and backward is front," Pastor Isaac showed that in these times one can never tell what position he will be called to fill in the Lord's work. "So fit yourself for whatever place the Lord may have for you" was his admonition.

Work in Denmark Told by Elder Varmer

Bringing greetings from Elder H. F. Johnson, former president of this college and other of the Danish workers, Elder Axel Varmer, president of the West Danish conference, spoke during the church hour, Sabbath, May 9.

Work in Denmark is difficult, he said, due to the skeptical attitude of the people there. Not over ten per cent of the people attend any kind of church and as a whole they are not interested in religious matters.

Telling of his own experience, he showed that God can reach souls anywhere. He was born and raised in the slums and as a child often wondered how God could ever find him, he said, for around 8,000 people lived on the same street as he did. But due to the invitation given by a friend to attend some meetings, he became converted and has worked for the Lord since then.

All Europe is alive to the strained situation which exists there, he said. Nearly all the statesmen and even the common people expect war within two years.

Miss Sorenson Entertains German Class

German games, songs and supper were enjoyed by twenty German students in Miss Sorenson's garden Tuesday evening.

Partners gotten by matching German proverbs, figured out German infinitives for advertisements distributed through the room. Aubrey Wyatt, Lillian Harvey, and Eugene Chapman won chocolate mints as their prize for getting every one right.

Miss Sorenson served ribbon sandwiches and buns, rice, fruit salad, punch and cookies to her students as they sat on the lawn.

Aubrey Wyatt exclaimed that this was the first time he had ever appreciated German.

President's Address

the intellect should be a step towards the assimilation of the human to the divine."

Tomorrow we shall receive our diplomas from this, our Southern California Junior College. Yet we do not intend to discontinue our education, for the moment one ceases to grow he begins to deteriorate. Upright traits of character are always to be desired, yet they are not all one needs to succeed in this life. A certain telegraph operator who was noted for his accuracy and honesty was discharged from a company for which he had worked twenty years simply because he could not operate a typewriter. To be sure he had plenty of time in which to acquire skill along this line, but he had not considered this improvement essential to his success.

Having had the exceptional opportunity of a complete education—that of the head, the heart, and the hand—and realizing the danger in ceasing to continue, we the graduating class of 1936 are determined if this should be our last opportunity to attend an institution of learning, to acquire from now on spiritual and mental truths that will better fit us to serve our fellow men in the spirit of Him who came not to be ministered unto but to minister.

Commercial Students Attend Court

Enthusiastic with an opportunity to visit superior and justice courts, city jail, and police courts, approximately fifteen persons of the Commercial department enjoyed a trip Monday afternoon, May 4, to Riverside.

After leaving the College the early part of the afternoon, the class heard a case concerning a negro boy who will be put in Preston Industrial School for killing his brother-in-law while fighting.

No hesitancy in decisions by the judge of the police court was in evidence over any of the trials there for the defendants were sentenced in a hurry.

In addition to seeing the loot from recent burglaries, the class also saw knives and other weapons previously taken from prisoners. The city jail was far from pleasant.

The students saw deeds and patents being recorded.

Fairmont park was the place chosen for relaxation and a picnic lunch, as everyone was ready to eat by this time.

Seniors '36

Today our class forever parts;
We'll never meet again
As now we meet in one glad group,
Where spirits never wane.
Our joy is full; our hearts are glad
For blessings of the past;
And now we look to higher goals
We'll strive to reach at last.

Our friendships here have been so dear,
The memory lingers still
Of hopes and joys inspired to heights
Ambitions to fulfill.
There's joy indeed in work complete;
We're glad for our stay here:
'Twas brief, its true; we must go on;
Departure's drawing near.

In years to come, as years gone by,
We'll live for aims we've set.
The needs of earth to which we're called
God bids us ne'er forget.
So let us serve with love and care
The world until the end,
With colors true, the cream and blue;
Their honor we'll defend.

Grade School Gives Class Night Program

Amid purple and gold pansies nine eighth graders gave their class night program, Thursday evening, May 14. Georgia Garvin, president of the class, thanked the faculty for all the good things they had done for them and for helping them in the class room.

"A Message to Garcia" was aptly represented in the valedictorian speech by Jean Rittenhouse. Because she was only one-half a point behind the valedictorian, Pearl Porter gave a second valedictorian address to show the necessity of making better use of our time.

After Bill Petrik gave the class poem, which was a class prophecy, Beryl Grecian welcomed the parents and visitors to their class night.

Gwendolyn Nydell extended their farewell to the seventh grade and Marjorie Carr, representative of the seventh grade, answered with a farewell to the seniors.

"There is only one true goal that leads to happiness," explained Pearl Van Tassel as she discussed the class aim.

The combined ages of the eighth grade are 127 years, explained Marian Grecian in an unique class history.

Elton Patterson told the meaning of pansy and why the class chose it as their class flower.

Music ability of the class was shown by Gwendolyn Nydell and Jean Rittenhouse, who played a piano solo and a violin solo, respectively.

"Commencement Song" and "School Days are Gone" were sung by the entire class.

Gift of Benches Presented to College
by Senior Class

The time is fast growing shorter when many of us who are seniors will bid adieu to our alma mater as far as consistent relationship is concerned. We shall always with pleasure revert our minds to the days we enjoyed here. There is not one of us but who will recommend S. C. J. C. to others who are aspiring to attain a higher education. It is not often that we obtain the opportunity, to show our college the high conception we hold for it, but it is with great pleasure that the class of '36 presents to S. C. J. C. an acknowledgement of their gratitude in the form of two beautiful cement benches inlaid with the numerals '36. They are to occupy places near the new building where they will forever be submitted as criterions of the class of '36.

Elder R. M. Mote, from Northern Rhodesia, Africa, who spoke a few words of introduction, also told some more of the African customs and Pastor Isaac translated them into his own language.

About six-thirty, Sunday morning, a few members of the A Cappella Choir began to arrive at the home of Professor Abel; however the majority of them arrived nearer seven o'clock than the announced time of six-thirty.

Soon Lyall Davis was busy flopping flap-jacks—only two of which landed on the floor—while Pat Clement and Grace Scott made the chocolate in Professor Fentzling's immaculate kitchen. At that time a small token of the Choir's appreciation of the tireless efforts of the director was presented to him. In short, the gathering was just a fast "get-together" for the year.

Orchestra Plays
G Minor Concerto

S. C. J. C.'s orchestra played Joseph Wagner's G minor Concerto accompanied by Mrs. Harly Abel and Geraldine Gatten, under the direction of Prof. Harlyn Abel, Friday morning, May 8.

Miss Evelyn Dale, a vocal student, sang "Morning" and "It is Spring," between the first movement and the intermezzo of the concert.

Following the intermezzo, Allan Cossentine sang a song taken from the "Oratorio of St. Paul." In the piece St. Paul, in the Strait street of Damascus is asking God for mercy.

Different from most concertos the G Minor has only three movements. The last movement is in two time, almost march time.

The members of the orchestra have been working on this concerto for several months.

This orchestra is considered the best and largest S. C. J. C. has ever had.

Next he worked at the Pacific Press in Kansas City, for seven years, after which he came to Loma Linda where he worked for five and one half years.

His next position will be that of Auditor in the Union Conference office at Glendale.

He expressed his regret that he would not be here when the new chapel was built, as he had drawn practically all the plans for the building.

Presentation of Flag
Made by Prof. Avery

As a token of appreciation from Southeastern - California and Southern - California conferences and their church-school teachers, W. L. Avery, head of educational department of the former conference, presented a flag of the United States and rostrum standard to President E. E. Cossentine in chapel, Monday, May 4, as the first addition to the coming new chapel.

That the flag of our country means more to us than we think was emphasized by President E. E. Cossentine when he told of the thrill of seeing it after having been in a foreign country under another flag for some time.

A salute to the flag concluded the chapel hour.

Students Employed for Summer Work

Thirty-five students have been signed up for summer work at the College at the present time. It is expected that several more will be admitted in the near future.

Because of the new chapel being built, there will be more employment for students. Work is expected to begin on this building in the very near future.

There are a great many departments in which students may obtain work. For the boys there are the farm, the grounds, the dormitory, the woodwork shop, the dairy, and excavation for the new building.

For the girls the main departments are the laundry, the kitchen, and the dormitory.

It is estimated that a girl who works the entire summer will have approximately $120 credit at the opening of the school year. A boy will have approximately $160 - $180 credit. This estimate is without vacation time. If a student desires to have a short vacation, his credit will be somewhat less.
